COLBY TO SPEAK AT CHAPEL HILL

Will Make Address At Second Session of State Council Which Convenes August 17

Chapel Hill, N. C., July 14.—The second session of the state and county council, to be held at the University of North Carolina, August 17-19, is going to have as a principal speaker Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby.

Announcement of this effect has been made here recently by Prof. E. C. Branson, following a conference in Governor Bickett's office with the heads of the state departments at which tentative plans were agreed upon.

The exact date and subjects of the talks to be made by the out-of-state speaker have not been definitely fixed, but the talks will certainly relate closely to North Carolina problems. The Federation of the Public Welfare Forces of the Commonwealth, State and County, is the general subject of the conference this year, and at its first meeting the plan will be to bring together state and county officials engaged in all manner of public welfare problems so that they can relate their work up a little more closely than they have been able to do heretofore.

COLORADO SPRINGS FARM HOUSES LIKE MANSIONS

One Hundredth Anniversary of First Climb Up of Pikes Peak Is Occasion For Festivity

Colorado Springs, Colorado, July 14.—One hundred years ago today Dr. Frank James accomplished the world by climbing to the top of Pike's Peak, 14,109 feet above the sea. Since that time 2,000,000 persons have made the trip and today Colorado Springs is celebrating the anniversary with ceremonies all along the 18 mile serpentine automobile highway to the summit.

Lieutenant Zebulon M. Pike is credited with the discovery of the mountain in 1806. As history is recorded it was the discoverer, he declared the peak was inaccessible to non-Indian Indians in 1806.

Major Long discovered the mountain James Peak, but the presence and plainness persisted in giving the name of the discoverer and Pike's Peak it has remained.

The history of tourist travel to this most famous spot of the Rockies has been that of the development of highway transportation. First came a horse path in 1878, two years later a wagon road was built and in 1891 a cog wheel railroad was constructed.

With the development of the automobile industry came the demand for a motor road, and in 1913 the present road was built, with the present road built in 1913.
