

Not Policy But Yawn

Thus Lloyd George Characterizes Bonar Law's Tranquility Before An Audience Of Three Thousand

London, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—A rousing reception was given Lloyd George's speech by three thousand today, when he answered Bonar Law's description of him as a drummer boy by declaring he was not ashamed of the characterization, asserting that Germany lost the war because she had no drummer boy.

He declared Bonar Law's watchword of "tranquility" was not policy but a yawn.

London, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—All London waited today to see if Lloyd George at the eleventh hour would release a host of candidates to fulfill his threat to spread war against the Conservatives who overthrew him.

Lloyd George is said to have thirty new candidates ready, putting the total in the field nearly two hundred. The former premier is to speak here today, at which time he is expected to make his position clear.

PROHIBITION IN ICELAND IS CALLED MERE SHAM

Copenhagen, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—Prohibition in Iceland has gradually come to be a mere sham, according to the Lord Mayor Zimson, of Reykjavik, the chief city of the island.

In an interview the Lord Mayor is quoted as saying:

"Iceland is no longer a prohibition country. Wines of 21 per cent alcohol may now be brought in. Although the Spanish commercial treaty, which provides for the importation of wine, is unpopular with many people as having killed prohibition, it is only fair to mention that the prohibition act worked satisfactorily only the first two years. Afterwards smuggling and home-brewing practically made the law non-existent."

VENIZELLOS HAD VERY MYSTERIOUS SECRETARY

London, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—M. Venizelos, former Greek premier, who is just now very much in the public eye and is something of a mystery to the British public, has an equally mysterious young secretary, a tall dark youth named Andreeo Constantino Michelopoulos.

He was an undergraduate at Oxial College, Oxford, until a few months ago, always immaculately dressed and a brilliant scholar. His studies, however, did not prevent his participation in politics, and he frequently obtained permission to spend a night away from college ostensibly on domestic affairs. It has since transpired, however, that such trips included flying to Paris by aeroplane and returning the following day.

Michelopoulos left Oxford a few weeks before the Tino coup, but arrived in Greece only in time to escape on board Venizelos' private yacht. Before coming to Oxford he had been civil governor of Lemnos, prefect of Eastern Macedonia, and had served in the Greek Army.

Elizabeth City High Defeats Great Bridge

The game was a one-sided affair, and interest could not be maintained inter-scholastic game of the season by the score of 48 to 0.

The game was a one-sided affair, and interest could not be maintained after the first few minutes of play. The visitors lacked spirit, and made only two or three first downs in the whole game.

The main feature of interest was the way Elizabeth City walked over the visiting aggregation. Prospects seem bright for a highly successful season.

From one standpoint Elizabeth City had hard luck. Despite the one-sidedness of the game and the ease with which Elizabeth City carried everything its own way, one of the players, Zack Owens, suffered a broken collar bone.

Kiwanians Enjoy Hallowe'en Banquet

Dr. Templeman, Speaker Of Evening, Urges Need Of Playgrounds In Elizabeth City

The regular luncheon on Friday night of the Kiwanis Club turned out to be their celebration of the Hallowe'en season as well.

The banquet room of the Southern Hotel was very tastefully decorated with a myriad of paper pumpkins and black cats. The lights were subdued by paper coverings. In the center of the floor stood the caldron of the witches, a very large kettle hung on plow chains from a tripod of weather beaten boughs appearing to simmer over a glowing fire of wood coals. Placed upon the top of the tripod was the large illuminated insignia of the Kiwanis Club, the big drum with the "K" in it.

The meeting was opened with a vociferous rendition of the hymn, "America," followed by the invocation by a special guest, Dr. Templeman. The evening was filled with stunts and music, most of the music being furnished by the quartet composed of Fatty Blades, Harry Kramer, Roy Simmons and "Long Distance" Woodley.

Two new members were admitted to the Kiwanis Club, E. L. Sawyer, clerk of the court, and A. B. Combs, principal of the High School. E. L. Sawyer was presented by the club with a beautiful basket with a hinged lid that he was instructed to open before dinner proceeded and when he did there emerged from that basket an artificial snake about six feet long and three inches in diameter. It was one of the times in his life when Mr. Sawyer was startled.

The most enjoyable stunt of the evening was the depicting of the witches caldron scene from Shakespeare's Macbeth. The actors swathed in sheets marched mournfully around the caldron while they chanted Shakespeare's never forgotten "Bubble, Bubble, Boiling Trouble."

The president, upon notifying the membership that election of officers would take place on December 8th, was given a rising ovation when Cam Melick proposed a motion that it be unlawful for anyone to vote for president, any other than Pateon Myers. Dr. Templeman, the speaker of the evening, said in part, "I have become very fond of Elizabeth City but there is one thing that I hold against it, and that is her attitude towards her boys and girls. One thing that I have noticed that I don't remember having seen in any other city of this size is the absence of a playground. Only today I saw a car piled up against a telegraph pole because the driver took that method rather than strike several children that were playing in the street with their toy wagon. The effort to secure a playground for the child in Elizabeth City would be a noble manner of expending some of the energies of the Kiwanis Club."

At the end of the meeting the Weatherly Candy Company's factory, the sweetest place in Elizabeth City, was visited by the club, where they were shown machines that make the tremendous amount of candy that the Weatherly company turns out. The entire working force of the factory had been kept on in order to demonstrate to the Kiwanis Club the method by which the candy was made and many expressions were heard of the courtesy of the hosts. Feeling that a good Kiwanian should know his home town's industries, the club plans to visit systematically the various factory plants of the city.

The Humble Youpon Rising In Society

In Packages It Looks Like A High-brow And Spells Its Name For First Time

"Youpon, packed by the American Tea Company of Avon, N. C." is the imposing label on a sample package of this product which Pat and Ray Twiddy found at the store of J. B. Flora & Company, wholesalers, one day, and took to their store on Poindecker street as a curiosity.

The pound package is supposed to sell for 25 cents, but Twiddy's Grocery has sold "Youpon" for years in bulk at ten cents a pound.

Those who weren't born and bred here perhaps do not know what Youpon is. Mr. Twiddy says that he never saw the word spelled before and has no idea whether it is spelled right or wrong. Supposedly it is an Indian name and the white people learned the use of this tea from the Indians long ago. Many drink it instead of tea, because they say it cheers as well as the regular kind without inebriating; others drink it because it is supposed to possess medicinal qualities. It is the dried leaf from a small tree, and Youpon is much coarser than the tea leaf. Brewed and served to one not familiar with the beverage, it would appear a kind of inferior tea, that's all.

After all, why not pack "Youpon" and sell it for a profit? Other goods are retailed the same way.

But Mr. Twiddy wonders who will buy it. He doesn't think the Northern people are well enough acquainted with it, and he knows the local trade will prefer it in bulk at ten cents a pound.

The Advance has not yet been able to learn who the American Tea Company of Avon is, but it's an interesting story, of which there will doubtless be more to tell later.

Cotton Dusting Will Control Boll Weevil

Raleigh, Nov. 4.—Demonstrations conducted in Scotland County by the Division of Entomology of the Agricultural Experiment Station show that the boll weevil can be controlled by dusting with calcium arsenate, reports Mr. Franklin Sherman. Mr. Sherman finds that where instructions given by the field members of his organization were closely followed good yields of seed cotton were secured.

One of the cooperating farmers making the test was Z. V. Pate who dusted six times. From these pickings, Mr. Pate secured 1883 pounds of seed cotton per acre against 1481 pounds from the acre not dusted. This was a gain of 402 pounds per acre with a value of $40.20 for the long staple cotton grown. J. M. Gibson dusted his cotton four times and the result of his first picking showed 424 pounds from the dusted area against 260 pounds from the undusted. Mr. Gibson has not made his final report but this gain of 162 pounds from the first picking of his short staple cotton has a value of $11.48.

William McKenzie dusted his cotton five times and from three pickings secured a yield per acre of 1618 pounds of seed cotton from the dusted area and 1281 from the undusted. This is an increase of 337 pounds with a value of $23.59. McLauren Gibson secured 377 pounds more of seed cotton from his dusted plots than from the undusted with only the first picking reported. This has a value of $26.39. Honeyucker gained 206 pounds of seed cotton per acre by dusting with only two pickings reported.

OPEN AIR GOLF SCHOOL IS POPULAR IN LONDON

London, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—Just off the busy shopping center of Kensington in the spacious grounds of the Holland House, retired admirals and generals, government officials, American visitors, actresses, clergymen and just ordinary citizens meet on common ground. The place is an up-to-date school of golf.

A company, recently formed, has acquired the property and made it into an "all weather" practice course with greens, bunkers, and a series of nets which measure the length of the drive. Cumberland turf has been provided for a perfect putting lawn and four professionals are kept busy all the time with their variegated assortment of pupils.

The golf school has proved a popular institution and there is a steady stream of pupils from dawn until sundown. It is even planned to install high powered electric lights in order to allow the city men to play after dark. More than 2,400 golf balls are used daily, and so great is the demand for the use of the grounds that the instructors' time is booked for many days in advance. Further extensions of the school's facilities are contemplated.

American Cranks Are Greatly In Lead

They Tell League Of Nations What To Do Regardless Of Nation's Non Membership

Geneva, Nov. 4 (By The Associated Press)—The general offices of the League of Nations receive daily an enormous number of letters from pretty well all over the world, and in these contributions the crank is well represented. The mail clerks are busy individuals, for theirs is the duty of sorting and redirecting. Countries outside the League produce the largest number of correspondents. The United States is far in the lead, and the cranks in America who feel called upon to tell the League what it should do are seemingly without number.

But Germany and Soviet Russia also aid generously in keeping the mail clerks occupied. Africans and Asiatics, as well as Europeans and Americans, find the most extraordinary excuses for communicating with the League, showing there is a world-wide misconception as to what the League is and what it was set up to do.

The secretariat gets a vast amount of mail matter that ought to go to the foreign offices of different governments, and it receives also a greater number of suggestions, applications and petitions that ought to go nowhere. Men and women bring to the League in all languages of the world their heart-aches, their head-aches and the aching voids in their pocket books. The secretariat is asked for the addresses of reliable doctors; begged to find lost husbands and appealed to to settle domestic as well as other quarrels. The requests for funds come along in a steady stream. The League has not even been immune from the beguilements of the confidence men, several Americans of this species having tried to use the secretariat to help them out with their passport troubles.

Among the most frequent appeals are these: that the League make the world bone dry, that it suppress tobacco as well as all drugs and drinks; that it institute a universal religion; that it reform the calendar; that it adopt a universal language; and that it give votes to women the world over.

The suggestions are mostly for the cure of the world's economic and financial ills, but some correspondents want to show the League how universal peace can be restored through the general adoption of their particular religion, want to design a new world flag, or make the League all over again after their fashion.

The League is often asked to settle strikes and to pacify divided families.

The latest curious demand was from a romancer who wanted material to write an exciting novel about the League; he was referred to the Near East section.
