Edenton still plays baseball, it is observed; but no more games are scheduled with Elizabeth City.

"What," says the Greensboro News, "seems to be needed by North Carolina is a certified public interpreter of audits made by certified public accountants." So say we all.

The Advance has now had the new equipment purchased last year nearly twelve months and has run the greater part of the distance toward paying for it. But the immediate needs of this newspaper in the way of new equipment seem larger than ever before.

After all, is there any greater tribute than that which his countrymen pay Warren G. Harding in saying that he was great because he was good? Kind hearts are not only more than coronets. They are more than wealth or power. And simple faith also is not only more than Norman blood. It is of more worth than any aristocracy of brains or of breeding.

Mrs. W. N. Hutt, who runs a page in the Progressive Farmer, says that we are having all sorts of co-operative associations these days, so why not a Family Co-operative Association, with members of a family finding their pleasures together and sharing their burdens. Sounds like a revival of long ago, doesn't it? All the same, it might work, if the right amount of thought and time and effort were put into it.

In the Land of the Free
This is the land of the free, and its people may worship God in the way they prefer. Some prefer to gather in union service, others like their nearby church where they feel most at home. Some would lay aside all differences of creed, others would hold fast to the faith of their fathers in all doctrines of their denomination. Our forefathers came to America seeking religious liberty. Let us be generous enough to give the other fellow the right to worship as he wishes, while following our own inclinations. We would not go so far as an anti-prohibitionist we once knew who argued that "every man has a right to go to the devil in his own way," but we would urge that every person has the divine right to worship God in the way he sincerely believes to be right.
