

Two Powerful Voices Are Added To Irreconcilables

George Harvey And Richard Washburn Child Will Return Home More Confirmed Than Ever In Their Views That The United States Should Stay Out Of Europe

Washington, Oct. 6.—Two powerful voices will be added to the "irreconcilable" group in American politics when Ambassadors George Harvey and Richard Washburn Child return home.

Both men, after a period of first hand acquaintance with European problems and old world diplomacy from London to the Near East, are coming back to America more confirmed in their views that the United States should stay out of Europe than they were before they left.

Word to this effect has reached friends of the two ambassadors on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Harvey originally was one of the most bitter critics of the League of Nations and his first speech in London was an announcement that the Harding administration would have nothing to do with the League or any of its creations either directly or indirectly.

Mr. Harvey was compelled to modify his views somewhat when President Harding came out for the permanent court of international justice which was created by the League and while he didn't like the idea he did not break with Mr. Harding but gave out a diplomatically worded statement to the effect that he saw nothing inconsistent in the President's position.

Both Mr. Harvey and Mr. Child assisted Warren Harding in the preparation of his 1920 speeches at Marion and they both urged him to steer away from European questions as much as possible. Ambassador Harvey always has been a member of that group of American literary men who cherished a traditional fondness for Great Britain and the belief prevails now that he comes back just as friendly to Great Britain but not exactly won over to the idea of any special arrangement for a World League. There was a time when he advocated a new type of association of nations—with the principle embodied in it of investigation of disputes under the Bryan treaty plan of nine months wait before hostilities are begun, but the shifting of currents in American policies make it seem likely that Mr. Harvey will not line up with those who have a formula for cooperation between Europe and America but with those who favor a policy of continued nationalism.

As for Mr. Child he has become a disciple of the theory of intense nationalism which is sweeping Europe today. He thinks the fascist movement is an excellent example of the reawakening of the verile spirit in nations and that democracies can achieve their greatest objectives by following the doctrines of Mussolini's party in Italy.

Premier Poincare in France is following the nationalistic theory of getting all possible advantage for France irrespective of the effect on Germany or the rest of the world and there are Britons who feel their government should withdraw from the continent and take care of the home problems that are pressing for attention. The opposing school insists that continental economic conditions must be corrected before domestic affairs can be improved.

Health Association Meeting In Boston

Distinguished English Industrial Hygienist Is Speaker of Note

Boston, Oct. 8.—Health talks Sunday in many of the churches in this city and the suburbs served as a preliminary to the fifty-second annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, which opens here today. There will be general sessions on Monday and Wednesday evenings and the remainder of the four days' meeting will be devoted to sectional discussions and visits to points of particular interest to the delegates.

One of the speakers at the Wednesday evening session will be Sir Thomas Oliver of Newcastle, England, distinguished industrial hygienist who will make a tour of the country this fall. He will take for his topic "American Leadership in Safety and Sanitation in Modern Industries." Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, also will deliver an address.

The various sections will take up the matters of public health administration, laboratories, sanitary engineering, vital statistics, child hygiene, food and drugs, industrial hygiene, public health nursing, health education and publicity. An important report of the committee on municipal health department practice will be presented in the public health administration section.

In connection with the convention, the Boston Health Show has been arranged under the joint auspices of the Boston health department, the Massachusetts department of public health and the Boston health exhibit committee. Its purpose, as outlined by Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Boston health commissioner, is "to effectively educate the general public in the ways of health and the avoidance of sickness and thus to promote human efficiency, prosperity and happiness."

Clans To Gather At Red Springs

Chieftain from Old Scotland Comes to Speak to the Clan Cameron

Red Springs, Oct. 8.—This little Scotch town in the heart of Robeson county, called the "country of the God Blessed Mac's," is astir with preparations for a gathering of the Clan Cameron here, October 12, which will be attended by the chieftain Lochiel, General Donald Walter Cameron, of Scotland, and his wife, Lady Hermione Emily Graham. Lochiel and his wife will be the guests of the Scottish Society of America and of Flora Macdonald College.

Among other persons expected to attend the gathering of the Clan Cameron are two governors—Governor Cameron Morrison, of North Carolina, and Governor Thomas McLeod, of South Carolina—John Gordon Gray, a former president of the St. Andrews Society of Philadelphia, and Angus Wilton McLean, of Lumber, democratic national committeeman from North Carolina. An invitation to attend the gathering also has been extended to Governor T. C. MacRae, of Arkansas.

Hundreds of Americans of Scotch descent from all sections of the country are expected to attend the gathering of the Clan Cameron. Flora Macdonald College will be the center of activities.

Through the courtesy of Col. Walter Scott, of New York, arrangements have been made for Angus Fraser, champion piper of the state of New York, to attend the celebration here. Lochiel is a territorial name applied to General Donald Walter Cameron. All chiefs of the Clan Cameron have borne the name. The present Lochiel is a veteran of both the Boer War and the World War. In the World War he led the Fifth Battalion of the "Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders," to France where the battalion won the name, "the fighting fifth," and where Lochiel was promoted from the rank of colonel to brigadier general.

Since the war Lochiel has devoted his time to the administration of his estates near his home, Achnarry Castle, Scotland. His wife, Lady Hermione Emily Graham, is a daughter of the Duke of Montrose, of the Clan Graham.
