

FORBES - GALLOP
Miss Filena Gallop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hodges Gallop, on West Cedar street was married Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock to Mr. Thomas Edward Forbes of Currituck county at the parsonage of City Road Church by Rev. Daniel Lane.

The wedding was very quiet, a few friends of the bride being the only witnesses. The bride was attractively attired in a brown traveling suit with accessories of the same color. From the parsonage the happy couple left for Powell's Point where they will make their home.

Mr. Forbes is a young farmer in Currituck county with a home at Powell's Point. Those present at the wedding were Miss Ollie Owens, Miss Irma Leigh, and Miss Maude Manden.

Alathian Class Meets
The Alathian Class of the First Baptist Sunday School, held the first meeting of the new year Monday night at the home of Mrs. J. S. Sealey on Matthews street. L. W. Holloman, superintendent of the adult department, met with the class to help them form plans for the year 1924. Dr. S. H. Templeman gave a helpful talk and it was decided to meet on the first Wednesday of the month at the ladies parlor of the church. Four visitors were present beside the 18 class members. After completing the business of the evening refreshments were served.

Mothers Club Meets
Although only a small number attended the Mother's Club meeting Wednesday afternoon, a very interesting and instructive afternoon was enjoyed. Miss Marie Albertson demonstrated the art of roll making. The gas was cut off, but after making up the rolls they were taken to a neighbor's and baked. It was feared that on account of too many Christmas goodies that some of the babies would have lost their weight, but on weighing them, it was found that the youngsters had held their own. Because of the small attendance the annual election of officers was postponed, and it will probably be held at the next meeting.

Mrs. Glover Hostess.
Mrs. Duckworth Glover was hostess Wednesday afternoon at her home on West Main street when she entertained the Bridge Club. The prize for high score was won by Mrs. W. P. Duff, while Mrs. Louis Mays won the guest's prize. After the game delicious refreshments were served. The coffee was poured from an urn that has been in Mrs. Glover's family for over 150 years. The guests of the club were: Mesdames Louis Mays, Andrew Hathaway of Virginia Beach, L. W. Borneman of Wilmington, Carlton Evans of Norfolk, Walter Small, Tommy Hughes and Mrs. Jerome Flora, Jr.; club members, Mesdames W. P. Duff, Harry Johnson, William Skinner, Albert Worth, W. A. Worth, Ethel Lamb, C. P. Brown, E. R. Outlaw, J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Wilson Hollowell, F. V. Scott and Miss Nan Burgess.

Blk. Night Tonight
The biggest event to happen in the circles of Redmanship for some time is the "Raising up of Chiefs" which will be staged tonight at the hall of Pasquotank Tribe No. 8. A joint "raising" of the chiefs of the tribe and of Matoaca Council, No. 16, Degree of Pochontas, will be held. A social session will follow the "raising."

Rehearsal Tuesday Night
The first rehearsal for the Girl's Minstrel, under the auspices of the Woman's Club, will be held Tuesday night at 7.30 at the Chamber of Commerce.

Personals
Harry G. Kramer returned to the city Wednesday night from a business trip to Norfolk.
Mrs. Andrew Hathaway of Virginia Beach is visiting Mrs. George Scott at her home on Road street.
Mrs. Carlton Evans of Norfolk is visiting her mother, Mrs. T. S. McMillan, Sr., on Fearing street. From here Mrs. Evans will go to Washington, D. C., where she will make her home.
L. A. Shirley, District Manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, with headquarters at Lynchburg, Virginia, is in the city on business.

CONCERT PLEASSED BEST CITY PEOPLE

Woman's Club Leaders Who Brought Concert Artists Here Receive Expressions of Appreciation.

"Nothing better than that has ever been brought to Elizabeth City in the way of music," and similar expressions came from persons attending the concert Wednesday evening in the grammar school auditorium. Such a verdict was given not merely by those uneducated in the technique of music but by those who really know.

The concert opened late in order to give the prayer meeting crowds time to assemble and also because there was confusion in reserving seats, the numbers being off many of the chairs in the auditorium.

The audience waited patiently, but not with great expectations, perhaps. There were a lot of "tired business men" and tired "working women" in the crowd, who rather wanted to have it over.

In the waiting period, a poet in the bunch inscribed this effusion to the ancient curtain that hangs in front of the stage, with its advertisements of long ago:

How dear to our hearts are the "scenes" of the wildwood
When the grey bearded stage hand presents them to view,
But dearest of all since the days of our childhood
The street scene of Venice in red, green and blue.

How oft have we gazed on this old battered curtain,
How oft have we read what the stores had to sell,
Or sat with our eyes glued on the gondola,
There's not one among us who ever could tell.

The old painted curtain,
The cracked and frayed curtain,
The moth eaten curtain,
We all know so well.

And then, the curtain lifted, and the concert began. After that, no business.

Mrs. Cassie Morrisette, who has been ill at her home on the corner of Main and Road streets, is better. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foreman spent the day Thursday in Norfolk.
Mrs. J. L. Martin of Norfolk who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Dewey, has returned to her home.

one worried about the curtain or the auditorium, but accorded the musicians the tributes of perfect quiet and attention during the singing and of prolonged applause at the end of each number.

It was a joy to hear and to see Miss Younge, the soprano, as she sang with such perfect freedom and with the joy of expression that makes music an "art" instead of a struggle to attain technique.

Miss Younge was at first the crowd's favorite but closer acquaintance brought Mr. Andrews and Miss Veale into stronger and stronger favor. The only disappointment of the evening was that Mr. Ault, the baritone, was suffering from laryngitis and had to omit two of his numbers. The pianist, Miss Franks, came in for her share of appreciation, and was most gracious as well as talented and skillful.

The crowd had a feeling that it had been starved for just the sort of concert given. It had been a long time since such an evening had been attempted, and those who had in days gone by tried to get high class attractions here had grown discouraged.

But the Woman's Club is young and perhaps it just doesn't know any better than to try to do things. So the club put it over, and the people are today giving a vote of thanks to the club women in general, but most particularly to Mrs. I. M. Mockins, chairman of the music department, and Miss Lillie Grandy, president of the club, who had the initiative to bring the concert artists here.

The most pleasing and unusual feature of the program, was that it was sung entirely in English.

The opening number was "Santanita" by the quartet, followed by "In the Garden of My Heart." The quartet graciously responded to the appreciative applause with an encore.

Mr. Andrews, tenor, charmed his audience with two selections, "Woman is Fickle" and "An Old Fashioned Town."

"Fear Not, O Israel," given by the quartet, was a symphony of harmonious sound.

Miss Veale completely won her listeners when she sang "My Love is a Muleteer" and "Love's Shrine," and responded with an encore.

The quartet rendered several happy selections from light operas. A "Concert Etude" and "A Water Nymph," beautifully rendered by Miss Franks, completed part one of the program.

Mr. Ault, baritone, announced that as he was suffering from a severe cold and acute laryngitis the program would be changed, and instead of the sextette from "Lucia di Lammermoor," the quartet from Illegitimate was sung.

Miss Younge next gave several familiar numbers and two encores with a smoothness and simplicity that was very delightful. "Shadows" and "A Night in June" by American composers furnished a high light in the program.

The quartet closed with a number of familiar "Olden Day" selections, the last being a good night song.

SWALLOWED PIECE STEEL BUT SEEMS ALL RIGHT

Just before the close of school Wednesday little Herbert Harris swallowed what he says was a piece of steel about the size of the end of his little finger. Up to this time no apparent harm has resulted and it is hoped that no complication will develop.

Herbert is in second grade, special A, and he put the steel in his mouth supposedly to keep his teacher, Miss Emma Willis, from discovering it. Upon swallowing it, however, he went at once to her. As school was just being dismissed Miss Willis advised the boy to tell his mother at once, and he did so. Mrs. S. B. Harris, who lives at 301 Cherry street says, that aside from looking a little pale, Herbert seems all right. She says another child of hers swallowed a part of a hat pin once without serious results.
