

FOR THE GAME'S SAKE

BY LAWRENCE PERRY.

New York, March 1.—The Royal and Ancient Golf Club has at last accepted an invitation of the United States Golf Association to send over a team of amateurs this summer to compete for the Walker Cup.

This invitation was sent to England last fall and in reply came word that it was doubtful whether or not it could be accepted. Definite information as to this would come later. Within the last fortnight the U. S. G. A. officials had read in the press dispatches from London that a movement was on foot to raise money for the Walker Cup invasion through such expedients as charging admission to the British amateur tournament and the like.

Whether or not this is mere golf gossip, whether or not such a plan has been seriously broached, the United States Golf Association is not in a position to say. All that is known is that the British amateurs are coming over, just how they are to be financed is not known. Maybe the British themselves do not know.

Hagen and Sarazan played golf at Orlando on Monday, each paired with a local professional. And incidentally Sarazan, showing all of his real form, had a wonderful 69. Both Hagen and Sarazan announced they would play in the British open provided they could arrange to take part in the American tourney as well.

Quite evidently what the two stars wish to do is to essay the national open early in June and then hurry to England in time to enter the British affair. They believe that the chance exists this year to do something no golfer has ever succeeded in doing, that is, winning the national open and the British open in the same year.

As both tournaments will be played in June, the first in the early part of the month, the other toward the end, a golfer would be able to hold his top form through both events. Usually when a star attains his best he is able to hold it for several weeks.

The National open title is worth at least $25,000 in a year to a professional. The British championship would return a similar sum to the winner. It will thus be seen almost at a glance that the player who won both these golf features would reap a young fortune.

Ten Game Pitchers Generally Retained

But National League Managers A've Letting Few Of Game Slab Artists Go

By JOHN B. FOSTER (Copyright, 1924, By The Advance)

New York, Mar. 1.—The National League Clubs, as a rule, have hung on to those pitchers of 1923 who worked in ten or more games.

The Giants let Scott go—the "pitcher with the totally ruined arm" who was the sensation of one world series and the goot of the next. Pittsburgh gave Earl Hamilton an unconditional release after some of the fans had clamored for two years for his head. Dreyfuss had clung to him for two years, hoping his cunning would return. The Phillies dropped Head to Fort Worth and Behan to Mobile. The latter had speed and a hop in the spring of 1923, but both of them lagged when they got North. Behan was one of those pitchers who had pitched his club, up in Canada, to victory the season before.

Some times such pitchers can't get over that sort of thing for two or three years. Boehler was a man of steel out West when Pittsburgh took him on for the season of 1923 and at Hot Springs Manager McKeechie could see nothing for him but a long string of victories, with possible championship for the Pirates. Against 38 wins and 13 losses for Tulsa the season before, he won one game for Pittsburgh and lost three. Now he's out on the coast and with him is Kunz, a coast pitcher who had speed when he was chasing the golden fleece over the Sierras, but who had nothing but a uniform when he essayed to pitch for Pittsburgh. The Braves have permitted Gillingim, one of the originally registered major league spit ballers, to go to Beaumont. It's a long ride from Boston, but don't think he is going where the going is easy, because a ball player must show something besides a glove to get by in the Texas League.

Of those pitchers who did not pitch ten games for National clubs, is John Smith, long in service since he first essayed to help the Giants after he was through with Columbia, who has been sent by Brooklyn to Indianapolis. Smith is a pitcher with a real curve, but despite the fact that real pitchers are badly needed, he can't make his perform when he wants to. Ball players say that if "Smithy" would put the third strike over he would be a wonder.

Cincinnati has sent Keck out to Vernon. The Cubs have sent Fassel to Wichita Falls and Stueland has gone from Chicago to Seattle. Not so many faces have disappeared. But what may happen if the coming season doesn't ripen more fruit is something else again.

Africa is buying rail equipment from Germany. It is not true that a German locomotive snorts at sight of a Frenchman.

GAME CLOSE HERE FRIDAY EVENING

Elizabeth City High School Girls Defeated by Washington Girls' Team by Score of 23 to 22.

In the best exhibition of basket ball seen on the local court this season, the E. City High School girls lost last night to Washington by the close score of 23 to 22. There was not a second during the game when play was not fast and snappy, since the luscious girls were determined to make things interesting for the local supporters. The Washington girls have a long string of victories behind them, and are generally recognized to be one of the best teams in Northeastern North Carolina.

The local girls started in with a rush. Belle Miller caging three field goals almost before the visitors could get their bearing. The first quarter ended with Elizabeth City 6, Washington 3. In the second quarter there was a terrific "come-back" on the part of the visitors, who scored 13 points, while the locals scored only one, the first half ending E. City 7, Washington 16.

In the third and fourth quarters the local cagers clearly had the advantage, scoring 15 points to Washington's 7, but time was too short to overcome the lead of the second quarter.

While each member of the local squad gave a good account of herself, the game played by Belle Miller should be given first place. Of the 22 points made by the locals, Miller is credited with 16, throwing 5 field goals and 6 foul goals. For the visitors, Eborn made the record of 5 field goals and 3 foul goals.

The line up follows:

Elizabeth City	Position	Washington
Forward
Sawyer, M. W.	Phillips, M.
Forward
Cartwright, M.	Eborn, E.
Forward
Miller, B.	Winfield, I.
Guard
Williams, J.	Ross, M.
Guard
Stanton, L.	Bowen, R.
Guard
Dozier, M.	Hodges, H.

Summary—For E. City—Miller 5 field goals, 6 foul goals; Cartwright 2 field goals; Sawyer one field goal; for Washington, Eborn 5 field goals, 3 foul goals; Winfield 2 field goals, 2 foul goals; Phillips 2 field goals. Referee R. W. Holmes. This is the last game of the season, and in behalf of the team, the management wishes to thank the people of the town for the loyal support given the girls.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE FOR WAKE FOREST

Wake Forest, March 1.—The tentative baseball schedule for Wake Forest College as issued by student manager Moore shows twenty-two games to be played in North Carolina, eight of them on Gore Field here, two to be played in South Carolina, six in Virginia, and one in Washington, D. A trip into South Carolina to meet the University of South Carolina and Wofford, together with a seven day trip through Virginia to Washington, D. C. distinguish the schedule.

A Spring Series For Champion Minors

That's What San Francisco and Kansas City Are Expecting to Play Soon

By JOHN B. FOSTER (Copyright, 1924, By The Advance)

New York, March 1.—The modified draft, as it was accepted by the Pacific Coast League, has an angle that perhaps wasn't figured on by the clubs when they went in for it. They knew, of course, that it meant having their best players drafted away from them. But probably it didn't occur to a lot of them that this same draft would give the players a club to swing on them.

Waner, the phenom of the San Francisco Club, is busy just now trying to hammer the lesson in. Waner, like Rhyne and Valla, two other San Francisco stars, figures that he is due either to be drafted or sold at a good round sum by the end of the 1924 season. Accordingly, he has not yet signed a contract, holding out for a salary for the coming season that will reflect some of the gold he figures he is worth to the San Francisco Club.

San Francisco has won the championship of the coast twice in succession. No club has won it three times, and the baseball magnates of that city are eager to do it. That, of course, gives added force to Waner's demands.

San Francisco and Kansas City will play some exhibition games before the 1924 season opens, billing them as for the national championship of the minor leagues. Kansas City defeated Baltimore in the fall season of 1923 and if Kansas City is willing to accept a challenge from San Francisco, there seems to be no reason why it should not call it a title contest.

That a spring national minor championship series should follow a fall national minor championship series is something new in baseball.

has arranged to send John B. Foster, famous baseball writer to all of the big league training camps in Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Texas, to write of what he sees there. There is no more impartial or critical an observer than John B. Foster. No one knows more about the present fitness or past performances of the stars of the big leagues. Nor is there a better judge of new raw material.

John Foster believes in getting first hand information about the line-up of teams, the status of the veterans and the chances of the rookies. He gets the interesting facts for his readers, not from hearsay but from actual observation.

The Daily Advance

It was made possible by the fact that Kansas City is going to train on the coast, a long ride from home for a minor league championship outfit. Toronto, of the International League will train at Macon, a city that has turned out many champions. If Toronto had better material for 1924, it might appear as if there were a good omen in going to Macon. Rochester will go to Savannah, the old stamping ground of the Giants, and Buffalo is to train at Rome, Ga. It is probable that Pensacola will get a major league club in 1925. There is talk of it. The club in question would like to establish a permanent training camp where it could get a good turf diamond. Good turf fields are what have taken so many major leagues clubs to Florida.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the food and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
