Abe Martin

Th' saloons have been gone a long time, so if prohibition has got anything as nifty as th' ole time bartender, it's time he wuz showin' up.

"None So Blind"

"The retirement of Dr. Biggs," says the Washington (N. C.) Daily News, "leaves Martin County voters free to support Lindsay Warren."

To be sure, and equally as free, and far more likely, from all accounts reaching this newspaper, to support E. F. Aydtlett.

Being a man of such type as is indicated by the Washington newspaper, is it not reasonable to believe that Dr. Biggs will command a strong following in his own county?

Yes, and The Advance will go further and say that not only has Elizabeth City the best Republican gubernatorial timber in the State but also about the best Democratic gubernatorial timber to be had in North Carolina—a man who can make a better speech than Bailey, who has as good a business head as McLean,—though he's been too busy serving the public to turn his ability in that direction to self profit — and who would make a Governor of North Carolina who would appear in the eyes of the country at large as in every respect a worthy representative of the great State of North Carolina, taking rank with such immortals as Bickett and Aycock.

In due time we may name him, but just now the time is not ripe.

"Partly cloudy with gentle, variable winds." Really sounds like spring.

Too Much Territory

The Albemarle Observer, which accused The Advance of having claimed that E. F. Aydtlett had already carried Pitt County, because, forsooth, this newspaper published an interview quoting a travelling salesman as saying that he found Aydtlett sentiment stronger in Pitt than that of any other candidate and another interview quoting Mr. Aydtlett himself as expressing confidence that he would get a plurality of the votes in Pitt, is respectfully referred to the following from the front page of the Little Washington Daily News:

Dr. Biggs' withdrawal means that the Congressional contest will be decided in one primary. Warren is the only candidate who has developed strength in all the counties. He is the sure winner.

Now on the strength of the foregoing we would not say that our neighbor down in Beaufort was "claiming" that Warren "has carried" Martin County and the whole district, but we would say he was taking in rather wide territory in his claims as to what his candidate has done and will do.

According to promise, we present two chapters of Lawrence's Woodrow Wilson today; but the two remaining chapters are so long that they will probably be published one at a time. The break with Horse and the break with Lansing, two events in the President's life that have heretofore been more or less mysterious, are explained in this issue.

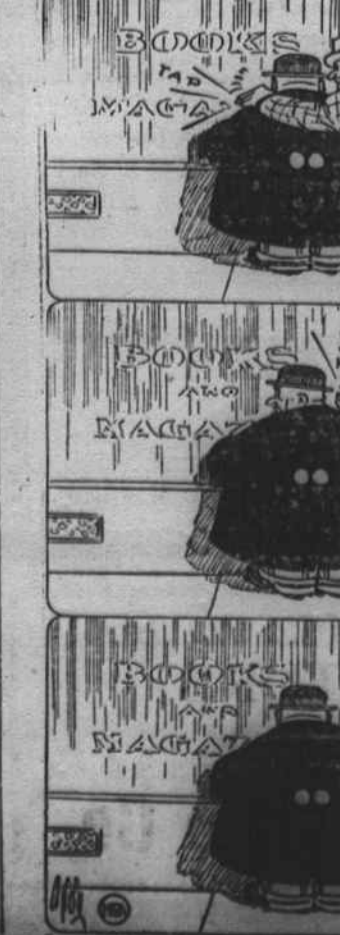

"The women members of the Woman's Club," naively remarks the Edenton News, "are busy making preparations for the fourteenth district meeting to be held in Edenton on April 8." Now will the News tell us what the sheep and the goat members of the club are doing?
