"The Greatest Among You"

Beginning next week with the Crystal Ice & Coal Company, The Advance will present a series of news stories about Elizabeth City industries and business enterprises.

The editor of The Advance began publication of this newspaper with practically no previous business training or experience and with warped and mistaken ideas about business in general—ideas however, that he believes are still shared by a majority of writers, teachers, public speakers and professional men generally, even some lawyers.

Time may have been when this was more or less true. Even yet there are men in business to whom their business is nothing but a means toward making themselves more powerful and toward gratifying their selfish ambitions. But the thoughts of men have widened with the process of the suns and more and more, it seems to us, the service idea is beginning to dominate the commercial and industrial world.

The business world is going to yield more happiness to those who are engaged in conducted businesses when more business men develop the public service attitude of mind. One reason why a broad-gauged advertising campaign pays, aside from actual returns, is that in writing an advertisement to reach the masses a man must begin to think about his business in terms of public service.

NORFOLK PRODUCE

has in it the germ of nobility. A young man, a university graduate, was forced to take over a milk-distributing business from his father, because of the latter's illness. In a few years he increased the volume ten times. He had ten thousand customers, and he owned as many horses as a circus.

Now the foregoing sermonette was not delivered from the pulpit nor is it the pronouncement of a philosopher. It is the thought of a hard-headed, practical and successful business executive who takes an hour a day from the routine of his desk to scribble down ideas about work that come to him while he is at it.

SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF SCHOOL TEACHER

Amherst, Maine, May 23.—Posses are searching the wood for a trace of the slayer of Miss Louise Gerish, 19-year-old school teacher, whose body was found in a shallow grave in a pasture. There were several buckshot wounds in her breast and her watch and ring were missing.

PICTURES CALLED OFF ACCOUNT SENIOR PLAY

The free motion pictures at the First Methodist Church have been called off tonight on account of the senior play, "All of a Sudden Peggy" at the high school.

Tickets to the play are selling like hot cakes and there is every indication of a full house and a delightful evening's entertainment.

OHIO JAILS SPEEDERS

Continued from Page 1 running all the way from petty larceny to second degree murder. The older women in the jail were frankly surprised when they saw the dainty "Rosebud" come tripping in and heard the steel doors clang shut behind her. In true prison fashion they demanded of her: "What-you in for?"

"One day," replied the "Bud" innocently. "Not that. What didja do?" "Oh, nothing, honestly."

"That's a good one," laughed one of the women in a raucous roar; "nobody ever gets in here for doing nothing honestly."

In order to clear herself of any deeper suspicions on the part of her fellow prisoners, Miss Harkrader admitted to her companions in crime that a "nasty officer" who stole up on her in a fliover and ordered her to stop insisted that she was driving down one of the principal streets of the city at 30 miles an hour. The "companions" were plainly disappointed. They had evidently hoped for something far more interesting. Then they told the girl their stories.

The woman accused of second degree murder was the one who the day before had tossed a bottle of acid on her sweetheart and he had died from inhaling the fumes. She said she did it because of her great love for the man and she told the co-ed never, never, never to fall in love with a man. Wide-eyed and open-mouthed the "Rosebud" vowed then and there she never would.

A number of other women have been similarly sentenced here since the new order was adopted. The authorities say that in the end the jailing of all fast drivers is a protection for the motorists themselves.

For one thing it will do away with the "speed traps" in the villages of the country where motorists are picked up and fined for the benefit of the community and of the constables and magistrates. Four very prominent residents of Dayton bowled into Columbus a day or two ago at something like 35 miles an hour. Pretty soon they were bowling to the station house and although they are out on bail, one of their number will have to go to jail. There is no way out. The rule is inflexible. In some cases there is also a fine.

Major James J. Thomas, of Columbus, also conducts a motor school nearly every Saturday morning. For minor infractions of the traffic laws the offenders, chiefly women, are compelled to attend school. Some make an awful fuss over it, but they have to report to the auto kindergarten just the same.
