Misses Fawn Lippincott and Tawney Apple are inseparable, as they both hate the same people. What's become of the fellow who used to say, "I haint doin' nothin'—just wearin' out my ole clothes?"

Surely the Democrats have enough candidates to choose from to pick a man who can beat Coolidge.

The situation in Europe offers pertinent commentary on the question of the drift toward "bloc government" in America.

It's been quite a while since New York had a National Convention. And probably it will be longer before it gets another.

If this Democratic Convention is as slow to get through balloting as it is to begin it, it will be a record breaker.

It would now seem to be time for the leaders of the Democratic hosts to cease crying unto the Lord and speak to the people that they go forward.

Watching from our editorial sanctum the potatoes coming in by water, we'd risk a guess that Saturday's movement will come pretty nearly up to that of Friday.

Some of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention, we imagine, are beginning to figure on how much more it's going to cost them to attend this convention than they thought it would.

With an afternoon and probably a night session on the program, for once since the convention opened the morning papers Sunday should have something that has not been covered in the dailies of the preceding afternoon.

The Republicans won overwhelmingly in 1920 by opening wide the floodgates to every current opposed to Wilson. But we have always regarded it as a sorry victory and one the methods of which it would be base to imitate.

In what we do not know as yet whether to think of as sheer madness, mere haste, or a firm faith in our own and our section's future, The Advance has bought a new press. News that it has been shipped comes to us in the midst of a Democratic Convention which may adjourn early next week but which, on the basis of present indications, will last at least another week and may go over into the second week of July. We wouldn't be at all surprised if in the period of transition from the old press to the new one we didn't find it necessary to resurrect the agony column.

Speaking for One Vote in Solid South. The editor of The Advance has never scratched a Democratic ticket in his life, but if it comes to voting for President of the United States, he'd sooner vote for Calvin Coolidge than Al Smith.

Now that is sober judgment based neither on the fact of Smith's religion nor on his leanings toward modification of the Volstead Act, but on the deliberate opinion that Al is not the type of citizen that we want to see in the White House.

If that be treason to the party of Jefferson, our Democratic friends will have to make the most of it.

WHO OUGHT TO PAY FOR LISTENING IN?

While Radio Fans Tune in on Democratic Convention, Manufacturers, Distributors and Dealers Wonder.

By J. C. ROYLE. Copyright, 1924, by The Advance.

New York, June 28.—Millions of radio fans in this country tuned in on W. J. Z., and W. E. A. F., today, or tried to, to listen to the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention. At the same time, nearly all of the three thousand radio equipment manufacturers, one thousand distributors and twenty eight thousand dealers throughout the country began to ponder deeply just who ought to pay for broadcasting, whether they should be allowed or compelled to pay and how, in order to prevent the killing of the golden goose which yielded sales of $350,000,000 last year and is expected to yield $500,000,000 in 1924.

It is estimated that there are now in this country between 3,500,000 and 5,000,000 tube sets of various sizes and circuits and at least 7,000,000 crystal sets. The interest of the owners of this equipment in the radio game was built up gradually and with effort and expense. It is realized it can be killed far easier than it was aroused with consequent detriment to the industry which provides employment for some 250,000 people, provided broadcasting is not properly systematized and regulated. Secretary of Commerce Hoover under whose jurisdiction radio falls does not favor a tax on receiving sets.

There are at present a few more than 550 broadcasting stations in the United States ranging in power from one thousand to five watts. Those operated by municipalities, as by educational and religious institutions have their broadcasting expenses met by taxes and funds raised by members. Newspapers operate about 50 stations largely devoted to entertainment programs.

The viewpoint of the commercial concerns which operate broadcasting stations is the advertising viewpoint, but so far neither they nor the newspapers have found it advisable to do much more than announce their names for fear of killing interest in the air entertainment.

Public Service corporations, through inter-agreement, have already solved the broadcasting expense problem to some extent and are making a charge of $10 a minute for time in the air. Should the broadcasting of the New York convention equal or exceed in success that at Cleveland, it would indicate that entertaining programs of other sorts could be put over to a huge audience and time on the air might become worth far more than $10 a minute.

Radio enthusiasts say however, that a clear line must be drawn as to the amount and kind of advertising and publicity or propaganda to be permitted as differentiated from the purely entertainment part of the program.

Radio equipment manufacturers are not specifically worried as to who shall pay for their broadcasting stations and expenses, for broadcasting is their form of salesmanship.

Some way will be found of producing revenue which will make their plants profitable. The expense of most of these runs from $100 to $500 a week. It costs an owner, therefore, from about $5,000 to $50,000 a year to operate a broadcasting station to my nothing of investment in equipment. Up to the present nearly all the entertainment talent employed has given its services free, in view of the publicity and advertising gained. But this arrangement is becoming less satisfactory. The publicity lure is not sufficient to attract artists of the highest class and there is a general feeling that the performer is worthy of his hire as well as the laborer.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, one of the chief broadcasting and patent holding concerns, is expressed as follows by President Thayer: "The art of broadcasting is new and changing. Speculation as to the future is futile. We shall make it possible to secure broadcasting apparatus at moderate prices. Far from desiring the sole responsibility for broadcasting, it is our strong belief that a monopoly either of broadcasting for entertainment of the public or for hire is not desirable from any point of view." Interest of delegates to the convention was enhanced by gifts of match box receiving sets to each. A lot of delegates heard the proceedings today by this means who never got near their seats in Madison Square Garden.
