Husbands Grow Beards As The Wives Bob Their Hair

Washington Benedictis Set Themselves to Go Unshaved Until Their Mates Listen to Reason on Subject of Bobbed Locks

Washington, Aug. 19.—Can a woman bob her hair against her husband's wish and get away with it? Washington barbers who cut the hair and did not touch the sprouting beards of at least 14 male customers today suggested what will be the answer to that question.

"You bob your hair and I will grow a beard so long I can tick it in my over shoes," said one of the rebels.

The 14 rebel husbands repeated the challenge to their now-bobbed wives. They were found in groups of two and three, discussing their plans and caressing bristly chins in the fashionable barber shops of the city. Three of them were young—the others were middle-aged.

With all the enthusiasm of a convert, Randolph Green, who boasts just 30 years, pointed to the prickles on his face, told of the heartsome battle hair had begun, and of what seems likely to be its end.

"We are going back to the age of hair—we will drive the women back in self defense by going back ourselves," he said. "We will organize on a 100 per cent basis with none but the men who are suffering from bobbed wives eligible for our campaign. And we are going to fight against short hair in earnest."

"Bobbed hair is for the flappers," he continued hotly. "It is not for women, certainly not for wives of men who must maintain a position of more or less dignity. And I told my wife that I would threaten to grow a frightful beard if she did."

"Well, she did, and I am. And a group of other men who felt the same way are going to take the same revenge. I know of 20 who have already begun. Others will follow suit. And I can guarantee that we'll let our hair grow and grow—if it has to be tucked in our shoes—until they call off the bob."

Out of the shop that minute stepped Mrs. Emma Barnes Smith with 80 years to her credit, her newly bobbed white tresses curling about her cheeks. Stunned by the roar of his voice, she stopped a minute to listen—and then counter-attacked.

"Bobbed hair is not for the flappers. Bobbed hair is for every woman who wants to be comfortable. That is why I had mine cut. It is much more convenient, and any way, everybody else is doing it. So why shouldn't I—and any woman?"

Her tone clearly implied that it was much more logical for any woman to cut her locks for comfort than for any man to grow his facial hair for revenge. And there was the suggestion of a glint in the idea that small comfort was to lie in such a man's satisfaction.

Still the back-to-beards movement is on. Twenty years ago beards and side whiskers were common, even to young men. Earlier, beards were even more popular. Presidents, generals, statesmen, diplomats and other public characters wore them in every style.

Today beards—save the embryo ones—are rare in the United States.

"We are not trying to set a style," said the spokesman. "We have no idea of being handsome. But we have a jolly notion that when our wives have to be seen with us on the street with our heads, their hair will begin to grow."

Fashion News Notes

Paris, Aug. 19.—The frock of black and white printed crepe de chine is now likely to have red figures added to the pattern. It is frequently trimmed today with an edging of black fur.

New York, August 19.—Pansy purple, translated into georgette, is exquisite when made into lingerie. It is trimming, of course, consists of folds of georgette in the lighter pinkish purple tint that goes so well with pansy.

New York, Aug. 19.—With the white linen riding trousers for summer wear, there is a delectable sleeveless jacket in heavy crepe de chine, instead of the customary fannel or gabardine. This jacket is in peppermint-candy stripes of white and bright pink.

London, Aug. 19.—The idea of a dog to match one's costume has been revived. Many of the beige crepe costumes so fashionable for afternoon wear are accompanied by a sand colored dog of the toy variety.

New York, Aug. 19.—One of the prettiest and newest of bracelets is a flexible chain studded with sapphires.

Chenille Crepe

MATERIALS for the coming season are so decorative and so rich looking that they need only to be handled with skill to make the most stunning gowns. This one is of chenille crepe with a whirled panel of plain satin the same color edged with fur for relief. The long snook blouse effect is bordered with satin and the under tunic is of the same. This makes an exceptionally attractive outfit for afternoon tea or dinner and yet it may be worn at any hour of the day and not be inappropriate.
