

Ham-Ramsay Campaign Is Now In Its Third Week

Foundation Work has been Done, Whole City has been Won to Support of Work, and City's Greatest Revival Is Confidently Looked For Entering upon its third week Tuesday morning, the Ham-Ramsay evangelistic campaign is now in full swing. The two big services Sunday...

Hardly less impressive than the evangelist's own lecture on the Present Day Offensive of the Anti-Christ Sunday afternoon was the testimony of Miss Lucille Hood, former society leader at Henderson...

Another pleasing number of the afternoon program was a solo, "In the Garden," by C. B. Harrison, chairman of the music committee of the meeting at Henderson...

Trained for the law, before he went into business and then into the ministry, Mr. Ham was unusually well qualified to present his subject Sunday night, the Trial of Jesus from a Legal Standpoint...

Another telling interpolation came when the evangelist referred to Pilate's saying "I find no fault in this man."

"That has been the judgment of every man who has ever investigated the claims of Jesus," said the speaker. "Still stands his quiet challenge: 'Which of you convicteth me of sin?'

Because of the tremendous issue involved, the trial of a man for his life always has possessed a fascinating interest for his fellowmen. The crowded condition of every court room where such a trial is in progress attests the truth of this statement.

And just as certain notable local trials of this sort never lose their hold on local interest, but are the subject of discussion for a generation; so the historical records of capital trials of nation-wide importance, have held the interest of every succeeding generation.

Among these may be mentioned the trial of Socrates, the most spiritual and one of the most intellectual of ancient philosophers...

Every document apparently authentic, coming from the proper authority upon its face, no evident marks of forgery, the law presumes to be genuine, and it devolves upon the opposing party the burden of proving it to be otherwise.

It is quite erroneous to suppose that the Christian is bound to offer any further proof of their genuineness or authenticity. It is for the objector to show the spuriousness...

First. It was not made a prerequisite of a warrant or mandate issued by a court or a magistrate of competent jurisdiction, in order to apprehend a fugitive from justice...

Second. It was made after nightfall; whereas, under the Jewish criminal law, all proceedings at night were forbidden.

Third. The arrest was brought about by the betrayal of an accomplice or associate, and both under the Mosaic law and under the Rabbinical rules based thereon...

Fourth. The motive for the arrest was illegitimate, being to bring about the death of the accused rather than to give him a fair and impartial trial upon a legally instituted complaint.

FORK GIRLS WIN SECOND PRIZE

Pasquotank County Home Demonstration Work Gets a Boost at the State Fair.

Miss Marguerite Morgan and Ruth Harrell of Forks Home Demonstration Club are back from the State Fair in Raleigh wearing red ribbon badges which tell the good news that these Pasquotank County girls won second prize in the State's Jellymaking contest.

The girls had already won in the County contest here and in the district contest at Hertford. They came next to the blue ribbon girls at Raleigh who won first prize and got the trip to Chicago.

The second prize is $10 in cash and this will be sent to the Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Marguerite Morgan, here to be presented to the girls.

With the County making such a record as this, Elizabeth City people can not believe that Home Demonstration work will be allowed to be halted in the County...

Those who oppose the work, like Brer Rabbit, are "laying low."

Now if there was any written charge against Jesus neither Matthew, Mark, Luke nor John mentions it, nor does Josephus, Philo or any other Jewish historian or commentator.

Fourth, because private or secret trials were expressly prohibited by the Jewish law; publicity, open and above board, in the light of open day, after the morning sacrifice had been offered, being necessary in all their judicial proceedings.

STATE P. T. A. TO MEET AT DURHAM

President of N. C. Organization Sends Out Message to Parents and to Teachers of State.

Mrs. Curtis Byrum of Asheville, president of the North Carolina Parent-Teachers Association this week sends the following message to parents and teachers of the State:

"It seems a very long time to wait to tell you about the National Convention at St. Paul which you remember was held in May. In the space which is allotted to me here, it will be impossible to relate all the interesting events which took place in that busy week.

"North Carolina was certainly well represented, as Mr. Livers of the North Carolina College for Women, Miss Nellie Robertson of the State University, as well as Miss Albertson and your president were fortunate enough to be present.

"Hearing the National President and the Secretary, the busiest people at a National Convention are the State Presidents. They have to attend all board meetings, sometimes lasting until after midnight, are usually chosen to form the important committees, besides making the reports for their States and getting material ready to carry back home.

"This year our State Convention, which is coming November 11, 12, 13, we are going to have a Local President's Day, just as we had the State President's Day, at the National.

"North Carolina has grown so fast that it is going to be a busy day if we get in the reports from all our locals. At the National the State President had exactly five minutes to give all the outstanding events of the work of their respective States. A warning horn came on two minutes before the time was up and a red light put an end to the report at five minutes.

"The rule at our State Conventions in two minutes for local and five for Council Presidents. If you time yourself before-hand you will have no trouble in giving an outline of all that your Association has accomplished.

"To supplement this we want an exhibit of all your work in position, programs and printed material of all kinds.

"A place will be reserved for this exhibit, and we are sure you will find it most interesting to look over your neighbor's achievements in this way and at your leisure. Then too, we want you to sit with each other at luncheon and go on talking about the points that have especially attracted your notice.

"Mrs. Burke Hobgood and the Durham ladies have been planning for many weeks and are going to make this Convention a wonderful occasion. We have a great deal of work to do, revising the Constitution and making reports, but there will be time to get acquainted and fit will be most interesting. Mr. Reeve will speak to us on Wednesday night.

"The National Constitution was revised at this last Convention and perhaps at most important item was the changing of our name. We are now called The National Congress of Parents and Teachers—a much simpler title, and one which gives the man-parent a better chance.

"The National Convention will be held next year in Texas, and every state has planned to send at least one man. The proportion of men belong and attending is getting larger each year, but the burden of responsibility is still borne by the women. We might begin now by bringing more men to our State Convention.

"Reports from all the visitors to St. Paul will be given from time to time and the full program, as well as some interesting literature, and souvenirs will be put on exhibition at Durham.

"It is always such a difficult thing to leave the children and attend these Conventions. Mothers all have the same problems when a trip is anticipated—children, clothes, to say nothing of unhappy husbands, but it is certainly worth the struggle, and we do want to meet you in Durham."
