DIVORCE SCANDAL REACHES CLIMAX... SPICY BITS QUOTED FROM EVIDENCE

Judge Huffie Thinks Case Will Be Settled Next Week

Statements by Plaintiff, Mrs. Lula Slump.

"My husband is as useless as a glass eye at a plugged keyhole. He's so dumb he thinks a geyser is the Emperor of Germany."

"He lied when he said I made a monkey out of him. I'm not a member of the Improvement League."

"He's so lazy that he only brushes his front teeth, and so conceited that he writes love letters to himself."

"The lawyers have keys these days to fit just any old wedlock. But it takes too much time. They ought to have a slot machine where you drop a nickel in and a divorce rolls out."

"Yes, my husband's a handsome brute all right, but many a rotten

Statements by Defendant, John Slump.

"She married me for my money and now she's gonna divorce me for it. I ought to sue her for cruel and inhuman treatment to my bankroll. Every time she put her arms around my neck it was either a new-hat hammerlock or a powder-draw half-nelson. Her favorite motto: 'With all thy worldly goods I me endow.' But the last straw that cracked the camel's spine was that auto business. She slid under the steering wheel of my flivver just to prove she wasn't fat. George Wagner says the car can be repaired for just a few dollars more than its original cost."

"Before marriage she used to say: 'I believe you, dear, no matter what ANYBODY says.' Since marriage it's: 'Shut up! I don't care a hang WHO you can prove it!'"

"Too bad a man can't sue a poodle dog for alienation of his wife's affection. Every time she kissed me once she kissed the dog twice, poor little devil. I used to tell her that either me or the dog was gonna get a divorce."

"Yeah, it's easy to keep a woman guessing. Easy to keep her guessing RIGHT!"

"Marriage is all right for some folks but not for me. I wish the man that invented marriage had got it patented and retained the exclusive rights. I'd marry in haste, repent at leisure in the bunk. After a man marries he's got no leisure. Before marriage I was the 'captain of my soul.' Now I'm not even a corporal."

"The trouble first started at our wedding, when Joe Turner kissed my bride and said, 'For the last time, sweetie, I was just recovering from that blow when my wife's mother came down all packed and said she was going along on the honeymoon to chap-on her daughter! Yes, sir, inlaws are worse than outlaws.'" egg has a perfect shell. Yes, I grant you he's always "in the public eye," but so is dust."

"Men are such fish. You can fool all the men some of the time, and some of the men all the time, and the rest of the time the rest of the men WILL FOOL THEMSELVES."

"I married the poor sap because he swept off my feet. The first time I met him he proposed to me. 'Pleased to meet you,' he said. 'What'll we name the first one?' Just like that: the crazy fool!"

"Yes, it's all right to have your husband amputated by law provided he can divorce you in the style to which you're accustomed."

"Ha-ha. I guess we call 'em 'grounds' for divorce because they're made of dirt."

"Hello, Judge Huffie. Ain't we got fun?"

Eph Geddy is very sick at this writing.

Judge Huffie deserves praise for the way he handled the Bumbarter trial. The Judge is fair-minded and never allows himself to be prejudiced by the evidence in the case.

Seven Hurt When Bride Collapses

We wish to apologize for a few misprints which appeared in last week's WEEKLY as follows:

"They were crossing the river in their car when the bride suddenly collapsed, throwing them into the stream." It should have been "bridge," of course.

"After being bitten in four places by the dog Mr. Bumgardner was afraid of having babies." The "b" should have been an "r."

"At the Macabee Hall last Friday evening an enjoyable entertainment was presented by the Jintown String Band." The "v" should have been an "s."

"Soak Sturgeon had walked down the street and was standing on the corner."
