Grimalkin's dead, that good old cat, We ne'er shall see him more, His coat, though chiefly silver white, With black, was varied o'er, Full fourteen years his steps he led O'er life's uncertain track-He had one spot upon his head, And three upon his back.

Where'er he heard the well known call Of "puss," he came in haste-Two ears, both white and rather small, Upon his head were placed. And prompt to save the garnered grain, The plundering rat he slew-His face was quite demure and plain, And he had whiskers too.

He lived in peace with nought to dread-No care his joys to break-But, when the festive board was spread He sometimes took a steak. To drive invading foes away; In strife he would engage-His tail was somewhat dappled grey, And shorter grown by age.

When angry looks o'errpread his brow, Histail ran up and down. Though oft to roam he had a mind, Yet home to him was sweet-To purr he sometimes was inclined, But never wet his feet. His varied sports when life was young Beguiled my early hours;

But good old Tom is sleeping now,

Nor heeds misfortune's frown;

To him in childish glee I sung, And wreathed his neck with flowers. I shared with him a thousand plays His pranks were ever new-He never mewed on stormy days, As many kittens do. Thus varied scenes he journeyed through, Nor drew his parting breath, Until to good old age he grew,

And silent slept in death.

His fate we sorrow at-

Though now he lies in calm repose, which sewing of all descriptions is executed in a very rapid manner, and in fineness and strength superior to hand work. The simplicity of the mechanism, its diminutiveness, and the amount of work which it accomplishes are truly astonishing. A single machine occupies so little space that it can be put inside a man's hat, and yet by the turning of a small crank, the instrument will sew ten times faster than any sempstress. It can be used for any kind of sewing, fine or course, or for embroidery. Every part of a man's dress, coat, vest and pantaloons—button holes excepted-can be made by this machine, also, ladies dresses, shirt bosoms, cape, collars, &c. In fact there is scarce a single branch of needlework to which this instru-ment cannot be applied, sewing ten times fas-JUST RECEIVED

Two Spanish officers recently met to fight a luel outside the gates of Bilbos, after the seconds had failed to reconcile the beligerents: "Wewish to fight—to fight to death, "they replied to the representations of their companing like the ghost of Romeo's apothecary, approached the seconds, and, in a lamentade voice, said, Gentlemen, I am a poor arisan, with a large family, and if you would-" My good man, don't trouble us now," cried one of the officers, " don't you see my friends are going to split each other? We are not a charitable homo." "It is not alms! ask our " said the man; "I am a poor carpenter, with eight children, and my wife is sick; and aving heard that those gentlemen were bout to kill each other. I thought of asking ou to let me make the coffins." At these words the individuals about to ommence the combat burst into a loud fight
