ANOTHER SCIENTIFIC WONDER DR. J. S. HOUGTON'S

The True Digestive Fluid, or Gastrie Juice Prepared from Rennet, or the fourth stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liebig, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Hougnton, at

This is a great Natural Remedy for Indigestion, and Dyspepsia, curing after Nature's own Method, D., Philadelphia, Pa. by Nature's own Agent, the Gastrie Juice. Pepsin is the chief element, or Grent Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intestines It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming an Artificial Digestive Pluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice, in its Chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it. By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of indigestion and Dyspepsia are removed just as they would be by a healthy Stomach. It is doing wonders for Dyspeptics, curing cases of debility, emaciation, nervous decline and Dyspeptic consumption, tsupposed to be on the verge of the grave The Scientific Evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable. Baron Leiebig, in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An Artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Ox, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, wil be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach. C. DePRI Druggist and Che st CRITICISM-AN UNPRECEDENT CALAMITY AT LONG CREEK. To the Editor of the Commercial, marks regarding some statements and conclusions drawn by a writer styled "Monos"

Sin:-I beg leave to make the medium of your respectable paper, a in the columns of a late number of the Journal. The writer asserts that "owing to the workings of a parrow minded prejudice" the public Academy contemplated at Long Creek has not been built. Now prejudice, according to its derivation, is a forejudging, an opinion taken up aforehand; or, in other words, it is a judgment formed before the subject matter thereof has been well weighed or considered, and generally implies dielike. Prejudice must, of course, have an object which, in the case of the Academy must be either person or education. The writer, then, imputes a narrow minded prejudice [I do not suppose there is any other kind) to certain gentlemen in the neighborhood of Long Creek, and attributes the failure of the Academy, to its workings or effervesence in their narrow mind; a grave imputation surely. That the failure of the proposed Acade, my is not to be attributed to a prejudice, is in my opinion very easily proved. That gentlemen, who are great abetters of education, and who are taking great pains, comparatively speaking, to educate their children, should or could be at the same time prejudiced to education is morally impossible .-But those gentlemen, who come under the writer's censure, are great abettors of education and are taking great pains to educate their children. Therefore it is morally impossible that those gentlemen should or could be prejudiced against education, and wherefore it is equally impossible that the writer's statement can be true. Bendes, as a proof of their zeal in the cause of education, those gentlemen have been most active in fitting up in the Masonic Hall at Long Creek an ample and spacious apartment, appropriated erected by Capt. G. Potter, on Front between Mar ample and spacious apartment, appropriated ket and Dock streets, where they will always keep to the duties of a permanent public school, to the erection and completion of which the writer himself bears testimony. Away, then, with such a charge-and with prejudice, that ugly narrow thing. Now for logical conclusions. The writer after attributing the failure of the Academy to the workings of a narrow minded p dice, jumps to this conclusion; 'and thus the blessings of a good educational course have been lost to the rising generation of the country around." There is logic for you! Let us see how it will look in a syllogistic dress. Where a house has not been built in a certain place, at a certain time, by certain individuals, the blessings of education, [a bad education being no education] are lost to the rising generation around. But such a house. under such circumstances has not been built at Long Creek. Therefore, the blessings of education are lost to the rising generation o

Long Creek and its adjacent country. Mr. Editor, what kind of logic de termed, chopped or jumping.

Did any one ever so identify the blessing of education with a house or the building of one? The writer must certainly be a great adept in Metaphysics, to discern such dependency and relation; but perhaps he is rather a little superstitious and thinks there are some lucky spots for houses, and does not altogether mean that the blessings of education could not be dispensed from another house just as well as from the proposed Academy; if so, he deserves to be overlooked and only smiled on for his simplicity. But "Monoe," because he, in view of the ample and spucious apartment alluded to above; positively concludes that the blessings of education are lost, &c., a house under certain circumstances not having been built-must either think there are some lacky spots for houses, and thus entails on himse the imputation of silly enperatition; or m wish to make it appear he had an interview with the Genius of Education himself, who fi formed him he would preside over no oth house save that which had been in contemple. tion and that, since inconsequence of the workings of a narrow-minded prejudice, that one could or would not be built, he would abandon Long Creek altogether, and leave after him a dark, gloomy cloud of ignorance hovering over that unfortunate village and its adjacent country, during the natural life of its ill-fated rising generation. This may be all a quixotic affair, but it it be real, what a fastidious creature this Genius of Education must be! How vengeful and choleric! And above all, what an appalling calamity-mental darkness for so long a time! What a strange and awful predicament for any place or persons to be involved in ! The writer unfortunately does not positively define the limits of the influ-See Fourth Page.
