The Blind department is just in its infancy, an but few have as yet availed themselves of its benefits. Those, however, who have done so, are evidently deriving from their new and ample advantages a cheering degree of improvementa. They are rapidly advancing in the difficult art of roading books printed in raised letters, and in the acquisition, by oral instruction, of a variety of the more useful branches of education. It is indeed ntemplated to make the course of instruction equal to that of the best schools in the cquutry. The cultivation of music as a source of elevated enjoyment, and a resource for future support, occapies much of their time and attention and when the number of pupils becomes sufficient, their performances as an instrumental band will no loubt add a great deal to the attractions and popularity of the institution.

For the purpose of fully employing the time of the pupils, in both departments, and of fitting them for future usefulness, and, as far as possible, for independence, a considerable degree of attention is paid to their instruction in certain mechanical trades, and other manual operations adapted to their various conditions of age, sex, and health and to the sphere they may be expected to occupy hereafter. Printing seems to be the employment generally preferred by the Deaf and Dumb and in the office of the Weekly Post, which is on the premises, some of the adults enjoy the most ample advantages for that object. They there see the art executed in its best style, and promise to make graceful and rapid compositors; whilst they are encouraged by the hope of being employed hereafter, in the same office or elsewhere, after the completion of their studies. The improvement, as scholars, which they must derive from this useful occupation, must be obvious to every printer, and is sufficient of itself to recommend this department to the fostering interest of the

It is also designed to teach the Blind such man nal operations as experience has shown to be best adapted to their condition.

It may be added that according to the general experience of similar institutions, mechanical departments are very far from being a source of pecuniary profit; but such are the manifest benefits flowing from them to the mared, intellectual, impton, Mass., that Kossuth would deliver an ad- and physical interests of the pupils, that they are

> If persons having blind children in their families, or under their charge, were fully aware of the advantages provided in this institution for their education, and of the pleasure they take in such pursuits; if they could witness the evidences there presented of their rapid improvement and elevation in the social scale, they would not long hesitate to place them within its walls, and introduce them to its privileges. That many will embrace an early opportunity to do so, there can be little doubt; and it would be a truly benevolent object for persons who wish to be useful, to diffuse the necessary information among the people, and exert themselves to promote the prosperity of this excellent institution.

And nature wears a lively scene. The stately oak and the towering pine, Encircled by the graceful vine, The gushing rill, and the silvery stream Remind us of a fairy dream. Hark ! dost thou hear the merry thrush, Singing in the hawthorn bush. Whilst the warbling mocking-bird With its varied notes are heard. The lark his morning lay doth sing, As high in the heavens on soaring wing. He tries to catch the first bright ray, Of the fair dawning first of May. The flowers breath their incense sweet. The joyous streamlets dance and leap, Through the flowery nook and shady dell. Where the merry elves and sprites doth dwell. Sweet May, thy steps are every where, On the passing breeze, on the balmy air, On the mountain top, in the lowly brake, In the wild-wood shade, in the sedgy lake, In the alpine glons, in the forest bowers, In the fair smalight, in the cooling showers, There's worlds of poetry and love, Which speak of Him who reigns above, In the starry night, in the rosy morn, Voices of love are sweetly borne; That tells us of the Heavenly way, That leads to an eternal May.

RESOLUTIONS:

1. Resolved, That Milliard Fillmore, for the able firm and patriotic manner, in which he has administered the Government, deserves the confidence of the whole country; and we do not hesitate to declare that he is the first choice of the Whigs of North Carolina, for the office of President of the United States.

2. Resolved, That William A. Graham, by his ability, integrity and patriotic devotion to the country, has endeared himself to the people of this State, and believing him faithful and capable we earnestly recommend him to the Whigs of the Union for the office of Vice President.

3. Resolved, That whilst thus declaring our choice for the Presidency and Vice Presidency, we will nevertheless cordially support the nominees of the Whig National Convention, if they are unequivocally in favor of sustaining the Compromise measures, which we insist should be adhermise measures, which we insist should be adher-ed to, and carried into faithful execution, as a final settlement, in principle and substance, of the dangerous and exciting subjects they embrace.—

And we declare it, at the opinion of this Convention, that no candidate for the Presidency or Vice Presidency can obtain the vote of the Whig Particle of March Checking, indicate he is because doubt. y of North Carolina, unless he is, beyond doubt, in favor of maintaining the entire series of Com-promise measures.

A. Resolped, That we are opposed to the doc-trino of Intervention; and we declare that it is the duty of the General Government, to adhere strictly to the foreign policy of Washington.

 Resolved. That we disapprove the legisla-tion of Congress by which the Public lands—the common property of all the States,—are so often appropriated for the sole and exclusive benefit of the new States; and we insist, and shall continue to insist, that in the disposition of said Lands for purposes of Education and Internal Improvement, the State of North Carolius should receive her

6. Resolved. That we cherish a cordial and immoveable attachment to the Constitution and Union of the States, and it is our determination to resist every attempt to alienate one portion of our country from the rest, and to ensemble the sa-cred ties which link together its various parts. 7. Resideed, That in the opinion of this Convention, whenever amendments are to be made to our State Constitution, they sliculd be effected by a Convention of the people, elected on the ba-sis of the House of Commons; and we are in fa-vor of submitting it to the people, to say, wheth-er such a "Convention shall be called or not, for the purpose of making amendments to our Constitution

8. Resolved, That four Delegates be appointed by this Convention to the Whig National Convention, to represent the State at large; and we recommend to the Districts respectively, that they appoint three Delegates each to said Convention.

9. Resolved, That we recommend to the Whigs of each county of the State, to hold meetings, and appoint Delegates to the Electoral Districts at an early day, so that they may act promptly, as soon as said Districts are laid off by the Legislature; and we further recommend that the Whigs in each county appoint committees of vigilance and a tem-porary elector to canvass his county.

10. Resolved, That the President of this Convention appoint an Executive committee of nine, whose duty it shall be to act for the Whig party in the approaching campaign. The above resolutions having been read, they were advocated by Dr. Hill, in a speech of some length, who examined most of them, and expressed the views of the committee by whom they were reported. When he had concluded, loud calls were made all over the House for Henry W. Miller, Esq. of Raleigh, who rose and addressed the Convention in an eloquent speech, upon the various subjects embraced in the Besolutions.

Henry K. Nash, Esq., of Orange, was then call-ed out who spoke in his usual forcible manner. Messrs. Banks of Fayetteville, Troy of Robeson McDugald of Bladen, Wynne of Hyde, and Winslow of Fayetteville were then successively called upon, and addressed the Convention in speeches which were very much applauded; and which were heard with much pleasure by the Delegates.

After which, Mr. Raboteau moved the adoption of the Reso lutions; and they were passed by acclamation. Mr. Waddell, of Chatham, proposed the name of six gentlemen to be appointed as Delegates for the State at large to the National Convention; and, after some conversation, Mr. Gales moved that the Convention proceed to steet by ballot four Delegates to the National tion be requested to express to the Patriot States man. Histor Curr, our deep sympathy for him in his protracted sickness and enfeebled health and the ardent aspiration of our hearts for the speedy restoration of those powers so long and so ably exerted for the honor, prosperity and perpe-tuity of our glorious Union.

The Chair then announced the following ger tlemen as composing the committee appointed un-der the resolution above to correspond with Mr. Kerr, and inform him of his nomination:—John H. Haughton, F. J. Hill, E. C. Yellowley, H. W. Miller, E. J. Hale, James Owen, Nat. B. Green, R. W. Lassiter, J. G. Ramsey.

The Chair also announced the following gentle men (three to be a quorum,) as composing THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.
