The True Digestive Fluid, or Gastric Juice Prepared from Rennet, or the fourth stomsch of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liebig, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Houghton, M.

This is a great Natural Remedy for Indigestion, and Dyspepsia, curing after Nature's own Method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastrie Juice. Pepsin is the chief element, or Great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intestines It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice, in its Chemical powers, and furnishment of the Complete and pariset substitute for it. It is doing wonders for Dyspeptics, curing cases of debility, emaciation. nervous decline and Dyspeptic consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave The Scienrine Evidence upon which it is based, is in the Highest degree curious and remarkable.

Baroh Leiebig, in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An Artificial Digestive Pluid, anaugous to the Gastric Juice, may be prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Ox, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

A TERRIBLE NARRATIVE.

The annexed account of the requiction and execution of a man on the basis of circumstantial evidence, is copied from a late volume of Chambers' Edinburg Journal.—
The trugedy transpired more than a handred years ago; and, is now cited to warn sourts and juries against relying too implicitly on circumstantial evidence.

"In the year 1742, a tase of a very remarkable nature occurred near Hull England. A gentleman travelling to that place was stopped late in the eveing, about even milestrom the town by a single highwayman and robbed of a purse containing twenty guineas. The highwayman rode off by a different path at foll speed, and the gentleman frightened but not injured, except in purse, pursued his journey. It was growing late, however, and being naturally much agitated by what had passed, he rode only two miles further and stopped at the Bell Inn, kept by Mr. James Brunell. He went to the kitchen to give directions about his supper, where he related to several persons present the fact of his having been robbed; to which he added this peculiar circumstance, that when he travelled he always gave his gold a peculiar mark, and that every guinea taken from his purse was thus marked. Hence he hoped that the robber would be detected. Supper Being ready, he retired.

"The gentleman had not long finished his supper, when Mr. Brunell came into the parready, he retired.

"The gentleman had not long fluished his supper, when Mr. Brunell came into the parlor where he was, and after the usual inquiry of landlords as to the guest's satisfaction with the meal, observed. 'Sir, I understand that you have been robbed not far hence, this evening? 'I have sir,' was the reply.—'And your money was marked?' continued the landlord.' 'It was,' said the traveller.' 'A circumstance has arisen,' resumed Mr. Brunell, 'which leads me to think that I can point out the robber. Pray, at what time were you stopped?' 'It was just setting to be dark,' replied the traveller. 'The time confirms my suspicions,' said the 'landlord; and then he intermed the traveller that he had a waiter, one John Jennings, that he had a waiter, one John Jennings, who had of late been so very full of mo-

he was very sure was not upon the other; but that he should probably have thought no more of the matter, Jennings having frequently had gold in his pocket of late, had not the people in the kitchen teld him what the traveller had related respecting the robbery, and the circumstance of the guineas being marked. He (Mr. Brunell) had not been present when this relation was made, and unluckily, before he heard of it from the people in the kitchen, he haid paid away the guinea to a man who lived at a distance, and now had gone home. The circumstance, however, said the landlord, in conclusion, struck me so very strongly, that I could not refrain, as an honest man, from coming and giving information of it.'
"Mr. Brunell was duly thanked for his con-

now agreed to go up to his room. was fast asleep, his pockets were searche and from one of them was drawn forth a purse containing exactly nineteen gu neas. Suspl A. A. B. SOUTHALL, COLLECTOR AND GENERAL AGENT.

I WOULD here take this opportunity of returning my thanks to my friends and patrons for the very liberal patronage I have received at their hands, during the time I have been collecting for them and hope by strict attention to business and with a determination to please, still to receive a continuation of their confidence and support, as I intend to devote my time to that business.

I will astend the Cours of the adjoining Counties whenever inducements is offered. My office will be in the store of Messrs. Whitaker and Whitflied, at which place I will be found unless when

So etrong seemed the case against him, that most of the man's friends advised him to plead guilty, and throw himself on the mercy of the court. This advice he rejected, and when arraigned, pleaded not guilty.—
The prosecuter swore to the fact of the robbery; though, as it was in mask, he conot swear to the person of the prisoner, thought him of the same stature nearly, the man who robbed him. To the purse guineas, when they were produced in lief; and he teetified to their having been to ken from the pocket of the prisoner.

The prisoner's master, Mr. Brunell, deposed as to the sending of Jennings for the change of a guinea, and to the waiter's having brought back to him a marked one; in the room of the one he had given him unmarked. He also gave evidence as to the discovery of the purison and guineas on the prisoner. To consummate the proof, the man to whom Mr. Buruwell had paid the guinea as mentioned, came forward and produced the coin, testifying at the same time that he had received it on the very swaing of the robbery, from the prisoner's master, in payment of a debt; and the owner or prosecutor.

who had of late been so very fulf of money, and so very extravagant, that he [the landlord] had been surprised at it, and had determined to part with him, his conduct being every way suspicious; that long before dark that night he had sent Jennings out to get a guinea changed for him; that the man had only come back since the arrival of the traveller, saying that he could not get change; and that, seeing Jennings to be in tiquor, he had sent him off to bed, determined to discharge him in the morning.

Mr. Brunell continued to say, that when the guinea was brought back to him it was not the same one he had sent out for change, there being on the returned a mark, which he was very sure was not upon the other;

To Merchants in the interior he would say, that all Goods shipped by him, will be delivered to their Agenta in Payetteville. His Agent in Wilmington is DAVID BANKS, to whom all communications may be underessed, as agent of the Steamer Brothers.
