Should'nt I like to make a bonn fire of all the Hints to Young Wives. Married Woman's Friends, &c., and three in the author after them! I have a little neighbor who believes all they tell her is gospel truth, and lives up to it. The rainese she sees her huslives up to it. The minute she sees her hus band coming up street, she makes for the door, as if she had'nt another minute to live stands in the entry with her teeth chattering in her head till he gets all his coats and muffers, and over-shoes, and what do call'ems, off, then chases round like a cat in a safter the bootpack; warms his slippurs and puts'em on, and dislocates her wist carving at the table, for fear it will tire him.

Poor little innocent feet the Poor little innocent foel! she im that's the way to preserve his affections.

Preserve a fiddlestick! The consequence he's sick of the sight of her, and he her wh she asks him a question; after he has cuten her good dianer, takes himself off as soon as possible, bearing in the mind the old proverb. that too much of a good thing is good for nothing. Now the truth is just this, and I wish all women on earth had but one car in common, so that I could put this little gospel into it: Just so long as a man is not quite as sure as if he knew certain. quite as sure as if he knew certuin, wheth nothing on earth could ever disturb vo nothing on earth could ever disturb your affection for him, he is your humble servant; but the very second he finds out (or thinks he does) that he has possession of every inch of your heart—and no neutral territory—he will turn on his heel, and march off whist-ling "Yankee Doodle!"

Now it's no use to take your pocket hand-kerchief and go sniveling round the house with a pink nose and red eyes; not a bit of it. If you have made the interesting discovery that you were married for a sort of upper servant, or house keeper just fill that place servant, or house keeper just fill that place and no other, keep your temper, keep all his strings, and buttons, and straps on, and then keep him at a distance, as a house keeper should—"them's my sentiments!" I have seen one or two men in my life who c bear to be loved (as a woman with a not knows how) without being spoilt by it converted into a tyrant—but they are my birds, and should be caught, stuffed, and say to Barnum! Now, as the ministers say. It close with an interesting incident that can under my own observation.

under my own observation.

Mr. Fern came home one day when I had such a crucifying headache that I couldn't have told whether I was married or single and threw an old cout into my lap to mend. Well, I tied a wet bandage over my head 'left all flying,' and sat down to it—he might as well asked me to make him a new one however, I lined the sleeves, mended all the house holes and severed an arm ballons of the sleeves. button holes, and sewed on new buttons d finally it occurred to me (I believe it was a suggestation of Satan) that the pocket might need mending; so I turned it inside out, and BLANK BILLS OF EXCHANGE, on fine paper and of a very handsome impression, for sale at The Commercial Office—bound in Books of the coat, I dropped the work basket, I dropped the coat, I dropped the work basket, ed the baby, [it was a FEMALE, and I the it just as well to put her out of future misory, and then I hopped up into a chair in front of the looking glass, and remarked to the young woman I saw there, FANNY FERNIN YOU—ARE—EVER—SUCH—A—CONFOUNDED—FOOL AGAIN'—and I wasn't!
