lound Mrs. H- in great distress of mood.

What is the matter with Mr. H--- ?" asked, on meeting his lady, who was in tears, and looking fike the picture of distress. "I'm atraid it is apoplexy." she replied; "I found him lying upon the floor, where he had, to all appendices, fatten suddenly from his chair. His face is purple and though he breathes, it is with great difficulty." I went up to see my patient. He had been lifted from the floor, and was now lying upon the best. Since enough his face, was purple and breathing labored ; but somehow the syptoms did not indicate apoplexy Ev-Sperv vel in his bend and face was surged and be by performs simply but will be ave on clear indications of any potential or approa-ching congestion of the brain.

"Hada't he better be bled, doctor ?" asked the noxions wile. 'I don't know that it's ned stary," I replied. 'I think if we let him alone is will case off in the course of a few hours " "A few hours! He may die Dc. S., although he used a very extraordiin half an hour." I don't hink the case is so dangerous, madam." Apoplexy not dan gerous ?" I hardly think it is apoplexy Pray what do you think it is doctor ?"

Mrs. United anxiously into my fac I delicately hinted that it might cossib's have been drinking too much brandy; but to this she indignantly objected. No doctor. I anght to know about that." she said – "Depend moon it the discase is more deeply cented. I am sure he had better be bled Won't con bleed him doctor? A few ounce of blood taken from his arm may give life to the now seaguant circulat on of the blood."

Thus urged I after some reflection, ordered a bowl and a bundage and opening a vein releved him of about eight ounces of blood. But he fay as insensible as before, much to the distress of his poor wife. Something else must be done, doctor," she urged seeing that bleeding had accomplished nothing. "If my husband is not relieved quickly he must die."

By this time several relatives and friends who had been sent for had arrived, and urged upon the adoption of some active means of restoring the sick man to consciousness One proposed mustard plasters all over his body; another a blister on the head, and a third his immersion in hot water. I suggested that it might he well to use a stomach but they wisely concealed from their merripump. "Why doctor ?" "asked one of his friends. "Perhaps he has taken some drug " Impossible, doctor." said the 1 replied. wile; "he had not been from home to day. and there is no drug in the house." "No brandy ?" I centured this suggestion again. No doctor no spicits of any kind, nor even wine in the house," returned Mrs. H--- in

I looked into the face of Dr. S. with sur FiFa. prise; it was perfectly grave and earnest I hinted to him my doubt of the g od that mode of treatment would do; but he spoke confidently of the result, and said that it would not only cure the disease, but he he lieved take away the predisposition thereto, with which Mr. H- was affected to a high degree

The barber came. The head of IIwas shaved and Dr. S. applied the blister with his own hands, which completely covered the scalp from forchend to occiput .-"Let it remain on for two hours, and then make use of the ordinary dressing," said Dr S. "If he should not recover during the action of the blister, don't feel uneasy ; sensibility will be restored soon after."

I did not coll again, but I heard from Dr S the result. After we left, the friends were anxiously around the hed upon which the sick man lay; but though the blister began to draw, no signs of returning consciousness showed themselves, further than an occa sional low moan or an onensy tossing of the arms. For full two hours the burning plastor parched the tender skin of H.'s share head and was then removed; it had done good service. Dressings were applied, repeater and repeated again, but still the sick man lay mastupor. "It has done no good; lindn't we better send for the doctor ?" suggested the wile.
