MISCELLANY.

A WOMAN AND AN ANGEL. BY LINA BELL.

"Is my cashmere vest ironed? I want it and my white duck pantaloons this evening." This interrogatory was addressed by a very fashionably-dressed young man to his sister. who was not so fashionably dressed; in fact had on only a neat catico. She was putting the band to a beautifully made shirt, which was for the aloresaid fashionably dressed in-

"No. Harry it is not. You know this is a wishing day, and it is hardly dry." "There is time enough to dry it by the Stove, and I must have it, for I am going to wait on Miss Al—— to the cone rt to night. So do not lorget," and he took his hat a.d. His sister, for it was to her he was speak ing flushed, and it must be told, looked anshe put her irons in, and sat down to take a I'm stitches while the were heating. And while she is doing so. I will tell you something about her. The young man, her brother, belonged to rather a minierous class. He was a clerk getting a fair salary. He lived at home paying no regular board, but helping with the expense of the family. He diessed, as most clerks do. quite fashionably; were the next es made shirts, and nicest smooth cloth s, all of which was done for him by his sister She took great pride in the appearance of ber brother, and bestowed more physical bahor in keeping him looking so nice, than he did in return for his good salary. But lately he had become quite exacting and ord red her in rather a peremptory manner and at inconvenient times to do such things as he had just asked her. She had a great d at to do in assisting her mother with the family besides attending to his wants; and his demands at times appeared arbitrary. Yshe never refused him. He is not the only one whom a sister's toil has embled to make a better appearance in the world at less expense than otherwise could have been done. These extra calls on her labor, and want of appreciation of them, had only been made since his acquaintance with a ce tain Mis-M ........ He was continually praising her as one of the most angelic beings in existence. perfectly beautiful, with the sweetest little hand, no broader than three of his fingers. and so white and so soft; and he would glance involuntarily at his sister's hand, which was not so very small and white; and how could it be when she had to stand for hours at the ironing table, besides sweeping. dusthing and making beds—in fact, leading an active and useful life. Yet the comparison would hart her feelings, and she often wished he would not talk to her of Miss-for she knew if she had done her duty her hands would not be so very soft and white for she had seen her mother scrubbing down the steps, and washing the yard, although Harry had told her Miss M- said her Will gire his personal attention to business entrust-

"Ma had dericate health." The more the young m in thought of Miss M ---- the less he seemed to care for Lizzie, and the more he asked her to do for him. And no matter how much she toiled, he never had time to do the slightest for her, so occupied was he with his courtship to his angel

Now, to let you into the secret, Miss M--had something to do with this. She had learned the character of his devoted sister, and fancied her lover would expect some hing like it from his wife. So she had weated him from her purposely; and from the very cause that should have made him think more of her, he actually thought less. He had unconsciously imbibed the very common idea that soft hands and fine airs were indispensible in making a lady. His sister not being either, he felt a little ashamed of her; not withstanding his knowledge of her sound sense and true heart. He was too much in live with a pretty face to reflect if she performed the duties called for by their circumstances, it would be impossible for his lady-love to do so. They were very well performed, however, by her mother, who was somewhat ailing, it is true.

When at last the young man married his angel, though Lizzie shed tears at the separation, her labors certainly were considerably lightened, and her hands had a better chance of becoming soft. She loved her brother. and like a true woman, hoped he would be very happy, and shat his wife would keep tim nice. This had been her especial pride and every wife ought to consider it a duty. But when, in a very little time, she saw him wearing soiled vests and erumpled bosoms she very easily knew to whom the blame be longed. He began to look frowning, and speak cross and frowning, and at length was taken very sick. When Lizzie went to see him, he begged her so hard to stay and give him some "real old time nursing." She now learned that angels get very fired waiting on " fretful ' sick people, who have been 'spoiled" by too much attention at home. They were enough to "kill one with latigue,"-And how many cross looks the sister gor while attending quietly but constantly to her brother's wants. The brother-look came back to his face, and he got so much better in one day that Lizzie offered to stay all night with him. And the angel determined to sit up with him only I ying down to take a short nap-which lasted all night. With this xperience. Lizzie thought that women make considerably better wives than angels. Their proper place seems to be where there is no care or trouble. Young men, be careful of catching an angel. They are quite numerous.

A NEW PARISIAN DEVICE. A man named Boissonneau was tried by the tribunal of correctional police, in Paris. on Thursday for a very ingenious, though scureely credible, species of robbery. He one day went to a pastry cook and said, "I shall require to-morrow 400 brioches" (a sort of bun.) " They shall be got ready. sir," replied the pastry cook, after having asked for his name and address. He then went to a watchmaker opposite, and selected a watch of 2601. As the tradesman was packing it up he said. "I am a wholesale butter dealer; the pastry cook opposite owes me 400f -he will pay you-come with me." The watchmaker followed the man to the pastry cook's. "I have come to tell you." said the prisoner, "that I shall only want 200 - and that you must give the other 200 to this person, your neighbor." On this the watch maker unsuspectingly allowed him to walk off with the watch, but to his profound asment there arrived the next day not 200f. but 200 briches. The trick was then discovered. Nothing was seen of the man until a few days ago, when he was recognised by the pastry cook's boy, dressed in grotesque style, and selling pencils in the midst of a crowd. The tribusal condemned film to a year's imprisonment.

CELEBRATED GERMAN BITTERS. PREPARED BY DR. C. M. JACKSON. No. 120 Arch stree: Philadelphia. Their power over theabove diseases is not excelled, it equalled, by any other preparation in the United States, is the cure aftest, in many cases after skilful physicians had ailed. These Eliters are worthy the attention of invalids Possessing great virtues in the rectification of discases of the Liver and lesser glands, exercising the most searching powers in wzakness and affections of the digestive organs they are, withal, safe, cer-tain and pleasant. READ AND BE CONVINCED. The Palladelphia Saturday Gazette, says of Dr Hopkanes German Bitters. 'It is seldom that w recommend what are termed Patent A. diclines, to the confidence and patronage of our centers; and therefore when we recom-

ment Dr. Hooffind's Goman Bitters, we wish litto the nestrums of the day, that are notsed about for a brief period and then forgotten after they have don-their guitty race of mischief, but of a medicine long established universally prized, and which has met he hearty approval of the faculty itself. 'Soott's Acekly," said. Aug. 25: 'Dr. Hoofland's rman Uitters, manufactured by Dr. Jackson, are now recommended by some of the most prominent

nea. .s I the faculty as an article of much effica cy in c as of female weakness. Persons of debilitated con "utions will find these Bitters advantageous to their callth as we know from aperience the salutary effect they have up in weak systems. 2 MOXE EVIDENCE.

J. G. Moore. Esq. of the Dully News, said. Oct 31.
"Da. Hoopland's German Bitters. - We gretrying his renowned medicine for a stubborn disease of the bowels, and can with truth testify to its efficacy. We have taken the contents of two bottles, and we have derived more benefit from the experiment than we derived previously from years of all ophatic treatment at the hands of our first physicians." Hon. C. D. Hincline, Mayor of the City of Camden. N. J , says:

"HOOFLAND'S GERMANS BITTERS - We have seen many flattering notices of this medicine, and the source from which they came induced us to make inquiry respecting its merits. From inquiry we were persuaded to use it, and mest say we found it specific in its action upon diseases of the liver and digestive organ, and the powerful influence it exerts upon nervous prostration, is really surprising. It calms and strengtlens the nerves, bringing them in to a state of repose, making sleep refreshing.

If this medicine was more generally used, we are satisfied there would beless sickness, as from the stomach, liver and nervous system, the great major-ity of real and imaginary deseases emanate. Have them in a healthy condition and you can bid defiance to epidemics generally. This extraordinary nedicine we would advise our friends who are at all indisposed, to give a trial-it will recommend itself. It should, a fact, be in every family. Noother of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to medicine can produce such evidences of merit," For sale wholesale and retail at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE.

MISCELLANY.

From the Daily California Courier of Dec. 24th. THE NEW ENGLAND DINNER. The attendance on Thursday night last at Wilson's Exchange, of the Sone and Daughers of the Pilgrims, to celebrate Forelather's Day, was quite large and highly respectable. The presence of the ladies on this occasion made the festival one of unusual interest .-The various preceedings of the evening were conducted with extreme good sense and propriety. Nothing occurred to mar the pleasures of the entertrinment. Wilson & Co. placed upon the table a most sumptuous dinner-a dinner that would have done credit to any hotel in the world. We cannot particularize the numerous dishes which were offered to the guests of this festive board.

All present appeared gratified, and all seemed anxious to prevent the commission of any acr that could mar the harmony or disturb the festivities of the night. Speeches were made highly appropriate to the day waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

Gen. James Wilson presided, assisted by Mayor Garrison, S. P. Webb. Beq. and others. The British Consul, Mr. Aikin, and the French Consul. M. Dillon, were unabled retired from the table and entered the main parlor, where their time was still further mutually enjoyed in the merry dance. The whole evening was made a joyous reunion of the descendants of the pilgrims. It is hard to lorget the homes of our childhood and the scenes of our fatherland. Well may the sons of New England feel proud of their pilgrim fathers. New England has a glori-The following regular toasts were offered:

AN AFFECTING SCENT One of the most affecting scenes that has ever taken place in the Police Court since its organization, occurred yesterday morning. After the business of the morning was over a middle aged American lady. neatly attired, approached Judge Spooner and requested that he would send to the House of Refuge her two sons, aged ten and the other eight years. The two liftle boys were presented to the court, and better looking boys than these we have not the court she made the following plain statement, which in its delivery exhibited duty she was compelled to perferin: "I came to this city in '39, where I have resided ever since. In 1842 I was married to Elisha Rettick, who, on account of his dissolute habits and a refusal to maintain his family, I procured a divorce in June, 1853, since which time I have not seen him, nor do I know where he is. have had four children, one dead and three living; these two boys and a little girl about six years of age. I reside on Mill near Fourth street; I have no means of support but my needle. I have tried to raise my children as they should be raised; but whenever it is possible the two boys run away and the oldest one will take things from the mighbors I have sent them to the Fourth Street School, and instead of going, they are continually playing trusts have done all I could, and can do n more. I would willingly support and prvide for them, but I cannot govern them Judge, "it is hard for me to part with them, but their interests compel me to do

Her narration was listened to with room, and frequently the tears which ran down her cheeks evidenced her feelings within When she had concluded, the boys burst into tears, and the younger faintly ejaculated, "Dear ma! don't do it." Here followed a scene which beggars description. The mother sank into a chair and burst into a flood of tears, while her two prodigal sons wept bitterly. Every eye in the Court Room was moistened, and the Court, overcome, left the bench and paced the floor. The boys plead, but the mother replied in deep anguish, "My dear sons, it is too late;" and the scene became more and more affecting. After some minutes respite, the Court remarked that it was the most sad duty they ever had to performseparate a kind mother from her children but the task could not be avoided. The boys were then sentenced to be confined in the House of Refuge until discharged by due course of law. The children were taken out to that institution by the Marshal, the mother accompanying them to take a final farewell. The rules of the institution will not permit her to visit them oftener than once a month.—Cin. Gazette.
