

ARRIED AT LAST.

Two natives of the Emerald Isle were ined in wedlock in our city on Tuesday of last week. The happy groom has buf-feted with the storms of fifty winters, while the silvered locks of the bride tell that she also has passed the meridian of life. The perish in the attempt-armed to the teeth history of their love is not without its romance. In their young days, in old Irehand, they were betrothed, but the purse pirate approaches-hundred guns-pirate proud parents of the girl prevented her nuptials with the choice of her heart and call for a surrender—young man scorns forced her to wed with age and wealth .--Her lover left the home of his boyhood, and ship-beauty in distress-young man vows Her lover left the home of his boyhood, and sought in this country by distance and ab-sence from his heart's idol, to forget the feith of his strong affection. Devoting Devoting faith of his strong affection. Devoting himself to business in a Southern city, he found in his activity and bustle a partial relief. Wealth came to him, and at last he wedded. In the meantime reverses of fortune came to the family of the girl. "At one fell swoop," father and husband lost their wealth. The latter died, and the widow followed her father to America, who obtained employment in this city. During man son of nobleman-young lady rich heiress-tells her story-was stolen away hy ginsies sold to pirate captain-heaven the merchant died, and recently on a Northern tour, he found in this city the betrothsay, that both being free, arrangements were speedily entered into for a fulfilling ocean wave—shipin port—young man proed of his young days. It is needless to of the "ancient contract" and that this time the penurious parent found no objection to the nuptials, which were duly celebrated as above. The happy pair are now
