MISCELLANY.

THE CHRISTIAN AND INFIDEL FAMILY.

BY GRANT THORBURN. About three months after I came to New York, there arrived from England a man by the name of William Carver. He entered as a journeyman blacksmith in the same shop where I was at work, in Liberry street, opposite Little Garden street. His craft was to make horse-shoes and horsenails; my craft was to make house-nails. We both wrought for the same employer He had a fine woman for a wife, and three young children. They were both members of an independent congregation in the town of Lowis, from which they brought certificates, and joined themselves with the same Church in New York. As William was a great talker, a great radical, and as hot as the iron which he hammered, he was soon laid hold of by the pure Democracy, and honored with a sitting in the walls of St. Tammany.

At this time (1796) there came into the city a man who was blind; he had once been a preacher of that gospel he was now laboring to destroy. I heard two or three of his lectures. He said that he professed to preach the gospel for three or four years cheat and the Bible a compound of lies -Observe here, this man had the modesty to rail against hypocrisy. I heard him relate the following circumstance: said he, "some time after I became a preacher of infidelity, I was conversing with some one on the subject, when, in order to give weight to an assertion I had made, I expressed myself thus: 'I as firmly believe the fact, as I believe that I shall see the sun shine to morrow.' " This was at 10 o'clock p. m.; but he never again saw the sun. Before he awoke, the sun shone on every hill; but with him there was darkness in all his borders. He died in Philadelphia, about three years thereafter, as blind in body and mind as the Devil himself could wish. Elihu Palmer was his name. He mentioned this awful phenomenon in one of his lectures, that he might explain away the judgmentlike aspect of Heaven, and account for it from natural causes. Some of his disciples perhaps were satisfied by his explanation; but he was not satisfied himself.

Palmer, the blind leader of the blind, held his lectures on Deism in what were opens going down into Pearl street. Ce- er the property is owned by the alvertiser or by dar street terminated in William street at "immediate business"

But we return to William Carver. He cendiaries (who worship the Devil in Tainmany Hall at the present day) into this Dungeon of Despair. He drank deep of their cold and cheerless do trines, and soon came forth a flaming infidel. He now turned his back on the Church, and set his face towards the City of Destruction; and like all free thinkers, who never allow any one to think freely but themselves, and he compelled his wife to follow. She, too, joined him in his downward murch. The children were young, so the father and mother let them all go the Devil in their own way. This then was the beginning of sor-

For several years after this, William and I wrought in the same shop, and our families grew up within three doors of one another. I warned and expostulated with him in vain.

One day he brought into the shop an armful of books, magazines, tracts, misstonary journals, &c , and among them a fine edition of the Bible, printed in Oxford. He threw them on the hearth and commenced blowing the bellows. "What are you about, William?' said I. 'To make a fire of them," says he. By begging, coaxing, and a three dollar bill, I secured the lot, and saved them from the flames. Having gathered up my purchase, says I. "William, mark my words: Before twenty years you will become a beggar, and your children vagabonds on the face of

It is a remarkable coincidence in the or der of providence, that my coming in contact with Carver brought me also in close communion with Thomas Paine; Carver. his wife, and Paine being natives of the same town in England; and Paine and I boarding with Carver at the same time.-Thus, while we four joined in social converse for hours in the winter evenings, I learned Paine's history from his cradle, and, as our intimacy continued more or less, I traced him to his grave. I think also that Providence has lengthened my days that I might tell to generations yet to come what I saw with mine eyes, heard with mine ears, and felt when conversing | E. P. Hall, Esq. with this enemy of men.

We return to William. Having now commenced the downward track, he began to neglect his business (some time previous he did business for himself, and was prospering) in his zeal for propagating his new principles. In the shop, in the street, and at every comer, you might find him pouring out his new light; and so vulgar and so brutish was the language in which he blasphemed everything which society in general holds sacred, that moderate men of any principles got disgusted, shunned his shop and his company, and his worldly circumstances fell into decay. He removed above the shipyards, I think. We did not meet for twenty years. But while I kept store in the meeting house in Liberty C. DUPRE. street, in 1828, he came in one morning about ten o'clock, and asked for twentyfive cents with which to buy his breakfast. At first I knew him not. He looked so poor and heart-stricken that I could not refrain a tear. Said I, "William, has it come to this?" He answered that he had not a cent, a friend, nor a child to help him in the world. I asked for his wife .-"Dend." I inquired for his children by name. His sons were killed in Canada; his daughters went on the town Said I "William, these three young men behind the counter are my sons; my three daughters, young women, are with their mother. Neither of them ever gave me a sore heart; ders, they would strive who should be first to feed me with a spoon. Your children and mine were brought up within three D. C. FREEMAN. doors of one another; what should make them to differ?"

"I can't tell," said he. Says I, "You remember the day I paid ou three dollars and snatched your Bible from the fire?"

"I do; and your prediction is fulfilled to he letter," said he.

"Having parted with your Bible," I con inued, "you turned your back on the church. Your children were left on the Sabbath to wander like stray sheep; they soon fell into the snares of the destroyer. led mine to church, where they were not exposed to evil precept and example, till they were old enough to judge for themselves. Now they walk in the ways of wisdom, which are pleasantness and

He literally groaned in spirit, and exclaimed, "Oh! could I recall the last thiry-three years of my life, I never would renounce my religion."

Said I, "You ought to publish these seniments with your name."

He said it was now too late : he felt that he could neither recant nor repent. after he was convinced that religion was a THE TRI-WEEKLY COMMERCIAL.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE. Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured them-selves by private and improper indulgences, that secret and solitary habit which rules both body and mind, unfitting them for either business or society. These are some of the sad and melanchely effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derange-

This grand and important Remedy has restored strength and vigor to thousands of the most ner-vous and debilituted, many of whom had lost all hopes, and been abandoned to die. By its complete invigoration of the Nervous System, the whole facu ties become restored to their proper pawer and functions, and the fallen fabric of tife raised up to beauty, onsistency, and duration, upon the ruins of an en ac ated and premature decline to sound and pristine health. LOVING HOMES.

Nothing appears to us so beautiful i.t. human experience as the reciprocal affection of parents and children, especially after the latter have attained maturity, and, it may be, formed new relatious in life.-We have seen the loving and lovely daughter, after she had become a wife and mother serze every apportunity of visiting the parental home to lavish her affectionate attentions upon her parents, and by a thousand tender and graceful kindnesses, assure them that though she was an idolized wife, and a happy mother, her heart still clave with ever strengthening fervor to father and mother, who watched over her infancy and guided her youth. It has been our privilege to know such, and as we have witnessed the outpourings of love and happiness between these devoted and glowing hearts, we have felt that surely much of heaven might be enjoyed in all families were equally attached. And would that every daughter knew what pure joy she might create in the parental bosom by a constant keeping alive of the spirit of filial devotion, and seizing frequent opportunities to make it manifest in little acts of gentleness and love, not withstanding the child may have become a parent. The child, never grows old to a fond parent. It is always the dear child, and never so dear as when it keeps up the childish confidence and love of its earliest vears. NO PRINTERS THERE. The report of the Inspectors of State Prisons in New York, discloses the very gratifying fact, that of the large number of convicts no w in the prisons of the State there is not a single printer, while nearly all the other occupations are represented This is a fact honorable to the craft, and affording evidence of the general good character of those engaged in it.
