IUPORTANT FROM NEW GRANADA. Threatened Revolution-Confusion at Carthagena - Gen. Mosquera at Baranquilla.

Our advices from Bogota are to the 4th. Santa Martha to the 5th, and Carthagena to the 8th inst. They are important. From the Aspinwall Courier, May 11.

CARTHAGENA, May 8, 1854. With much regret and sad foreboding I have to inform you that the dogs of war (the worst of wars, and a civil war,) are usurping government, called on the 17th of let loose among us.

A revolution broke forth in Bogota about the middle of last month, and the adjacent country, in fact most of the interior, is in people and the army had proclaimed Jose a blaze of excitement, and anarchy and Maria Obando, the President of the Rethe tyranny of a dictatorism are struggling together.

Our accounts are so conflicting, and at the same time so meagre, that it is impos- composed of five persons, to solicit of the sible to advise you with any certainty as President General Obando that he would to movements in the interior. We know become a member of the provisional gothat General Melo has pronounced himself vernment, who replied, on the following dictator at the capital.

Here, in Carthagena, all is confusion worst confounded, divisions existing in every party and class of society, and nothhaving yet been made manifest.

General Mosquera will be the most formidable opponent he will meet. The war cry of the former party, will be "up with the dictator, and down with the constitution;" that, of the tion."

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

ceived the following communication:-REPUBLIC OF NEW GRANADA. OFFICE OF THE SEC OF STATE-SEC. IST., BOGOTA, April 18, 1854.

MARTHA. On the night of the 16th instant a disgraceful and unjustifiable outbreak took place in this capital, which has completely descroyed constitutional order, The military garrison, at whose head Gen. Jose Maria Melo had placed himself, and to which a body of the National Guard had united itself, formed an organization, by proclaiming the said Gen. Melo as supreme chief of the Republic. Several arrests their insertion. were made, and proclaimed throughout the city. The citizen President of the Republic and his Secretaries were arrested; others in the city garrison. It was demanded of the cittzen General Obando that he should accept the supreme coin mand of the diciatorship, and he refused they have organized a provisionary government; the liberty of the press has been restricted, and other similar measures have been adopted. These are, in brief, the

C. Freesecretary shall be named. The Congress sessions in Socorro on the 15th day of May, MAN & Co., No. 175 Front street, corner of Bowupon which the Senators and Representatives have agreed, some of them having gone in that direction.

Fully acquainted with these events, you will appreciate in the first place the great evils of the present state of things, and in the second place, the efforts that every patriot New Granad an has to make, and especially those that find themseves invested with legal authority, in order to save the principle of legitimacy, and with it the republic. In consequence, the Executive fully authorizes you, by delegating to you all the constitutional and legal faculties for taking whatever measures your patriotism, and the urgency of the case, may suggest, to the end that this provice shall be preserved from the revolutionary contarion; to prevent the rebel factions from obtaining resources of any kind in it; and. finally, for resisting them in every practicable mode.

Place the public means in safety, ensure the armament and ammunition, send the cattle and the horses out of the way, call the citizens to arms, and do not neglect any means for the re-establishment of the legitimate government.

Several officers of high grade have already left the capital in different directions, fully authorised to organize forces to come upon it, and within a short time the constitutional government will have a surplus of means and resources for re-establishing legal order, among which it counts upon those that you will without doubt furnish it, by sending in the safest manner the public funds that cannot be of urgent necessi-ty in the province, or the sum of the loans wan shall raise, under the guaranty of the government, or by sending troops in good order to the command of the chiefs in its UPHOLSTERS & PAPER HANGERS, confidence. I am you obedient servant. Domingo A Maldonado.

DR. I. B. MISCELLANY.

WANTED A WIFE!-A CAPITAL BOAX. An advertisment appeared in a recent publication of the Leeds Mercury, setting forth the matrimonial views and intentions of a gentleman aged 27. The proffered engagement was taken up by some parties residentin Leeds, and a correspondence which covered a period of several weeks ensued the ideal tair one writing under the assumed name of 'Hey.' More than twenty le ters (one containing the dupe's photo graph,) passed through the post-office upon the all-absorbing them, in the course of which the gentleman, who resided in London, and whom in mercy we shall call Mr. Simple, made great efforts at the sent mental, one of the latter letters closing with a rhapsody irresistible in its effects upon the risible faculties of the hoaxers. The correspondence showed, as might be avadvertising was mercenary. The attrac tion in this instance was said to be £110 per annum, and this Mr. Simple deemed quite satisfactory,' and induced him to pledge his word,' to be faithful. A few days after this explanation of his views, Mr. Simple entered upon a correspondence with a Miss Emily B ..., of Halifax, little thinking that this supposed young lady and Miss Hey, of Leeds, were one and the same person. The bait in this instance was a clear income of £200 per annum, and Mr. Simple accordingly declared his intentions in favour of the £200. Miss B. was now all his aim; but, alas! his hopes were speedily quashed in that quarter. 'Miss Hey's' star was consequently again in the ascendant. 'The course of true love never lid run smooth,' so it happened in this instance. Mr. Simple's hopes and fears were now alternately swayed till near the climax of 'he affair, when delicate hints at an elopement were proposed by his now Dear Louisa,' and most warmly responded to This was the prelude to the meeting, which came off with all due eclat at Kirkstall Abbey, notwithstanding some sleepless nights passed by Mr. Simple. The meeting was not effected, however, without giving the address of his fair correspondent, which Mr. Simple's foresight dictated to him in case of accident. "The Oaks, near Kirkstall,' was accordingly sent him By the side of the river they were engaged to meet, and long before the appointed hour (five p. m.) the would be lover was seen perambulating its banks with pocket hankerchief in hand, which was previously agreed upon as the signal of recognition. His 'dear Lousia' soon made her appearance, accompanied by her supposed the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence we feel in an article which are the confidence will be application to the subscriber, or lattice and order and will be are the confidence will be application to the subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence was duly application to the subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence was duly application to the subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence will be are the confidence will be a subscriber or the confidence will be a subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence will be a subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence will be a subscriber or the confidence will be a subscriber, or lattice and order are the confidence will be a subscriber. He was now hastening to that most thrilling of all questions. Mr. Simple earnestly wished the nuptials to be celebrated within a week ; but no, it could not be, as ladies require time for preparation. An hour and a half was thus spent, when adjournment for refreshment was proposed and carried. Mr. Simple said he would take anything, it did ish, and the startling reality to be revealed. A very large company of 'Heys' had assembled in another room, as Mr. Simple had already been informed, and were waiting to receive him. He was accordingly introduced amidst profound silence. A flash of suspicion seemed to cross him as he entered, but he quietly took his seat -His health was then drunk with all the honors-toasts and sentiments were showered upon him. His feeling of suspicion seemed every moment to be increasing, when one of the company, with a knowing look, asked Mr. Simple 'if he had yet been up to the Oaks?' He said he had not -Then (replied his tormenter) allow me to inform you, sir, that you are at the hoax now.' A scene of laughter and confusion followed which beggars all description, and during which poor Mr Simple made several ineffectual attemps to get away. Order was, however, partially restored, and as soon as the shouts of laughter had subsided he was addressed by several of the parties upon his duplicity and meanness, as exhibited in several portions of the correspondence; after which the lady who had personated 'Miss Hey' that evening with such admirable tact was introduced by her husband Poor Mr. Simple. He appeared utterly dumb foundered and speechless. hours from New York, we can execute orders with 'Miss Hey' kindly gave him some excellent advice, and to which he respondend with evident feeling, and upon making his exit remarked:-- Gentlemen, this will be a lesson to me as long as I live.' Fortunately for Mr. Simple a train was now due for Leeds, and twenty minutes after its arrival saw him on his way home to London, where it is to be hoped he arrived in safety Fancy Hair Plaiting.
