CELEBRATED CATHOLICON, A STREET SCENE. For the relief & cure of Suffering Females. This world is a great dice box, and no-It stands pre-emibody can tell what will "turn up" at the nent for its curative next throw. There are incidents and ropowersin all the dis-eases for which it is mances enough transpiring every day in the streets of the metropolis to furnish mas recommended, call terial for the poet and novelist to the end of time. A short time since, a well dressed gen tlemen was passing up Broadway. Foreign sun had evidently given to a face once fair, a tinge of bronze, and though nearly half a century might have rolled over his head yet it had left few traces behind it, and no evidence that the shadows were falling far to the eastward.

Near Trinity Church, sat an old apple woman. A tattered cloak of plaid was brown over her shoulders ; her eyes were d m, her hand trembling and thin gray hair, escaping from the keeping of a cap such a remeedy call and obtain a pamphlet (free guil ess of lace, lay upon her cheek.-The old woman was watching for customers, and her eyes rested upon the form of the stranger as he proceeded leisurely along, pausing now and then as he seemingly recognized some spot familiar in other days or noticed some unexpected, and to him doubtless, painful changes. The old woman, suddenly drooped her basket, and the apples rolled hither and thither, but she did not see them. 'George !' The stranger turned in the direction of the voice. In an instant his quiet manner vanished. 'George !' ' Mother !' and the twain were clasped in each other's arms. Greaty did some marvel at the scene. 'Has the old woman fainted ?' cried one. 'Has she been stealing?" asked another. Yes she had been stealing-stealing whole years of care from Time, and flinging it to the winds. 'But one touch of nature makes the whole world kin,' and there was many a heart that beat softer at the scene.

Twenty years ago 'George' had left his ome in Utica N. Y., and gone 'down to the sea,' and done 'business upon the great waters.' After varied fortunes, that brights ened at last, he had returned to find the old homestead razed to the ground, a block of stores occupying its site, every inch of which had been deat to him. He found no brother, no sister to welcome bim,-but an old man pointed out his father's grave. It was sunken, and without a stone to mark where he lay. Of his mother he could ob-tain no trace. She had left Utica long ago

'LET THAT TRUNK ALONE !'

The Detroit Tribune relates the followng rich incident :- 'An old lady who resi ded in Sandwhich was taken ill a few days since, and to all appearance died. She had een living alone for some time, and it was thought she had a good deal of money towed away in some secret corner, as she had been well to do in the world. The neighbors attended her during her illness and when she had ceased to breath, made reparations to perform the last offices to he dead. The body was measured for the coffin by the undertaker, who went about his work. The corpse was washed and made ready for the burial. Yet, the adies, in performing these duties noticed that the body was unusually limber, and hid not exhibit the rigidity of corpses in general after being dead for only half - an hour. For the purpose of obtaining some clean linen, which was known to be lock? ed up in a large trunk in a corner of a room. one of the women got the keys and went to open it. The instant the lid of the trunk was heard to grate on its hinges, up poped the old woman in the bed like the 'rale ould Irish gentleman' of the song, and screeched out, 'Let that trunk alone !'the lid of the trunk was dropped like a tot potato, and with a universal cry of surorise, the neighbors gazed upon the live corpse' before them. The nervous twiching of the lips, and the angry flashes from he little gtay eyes, was sufficient evidence that their services were not needed longer, and with merriment depicted upon their countenances they left. The undertaker was reluctantly compelled to give up his job and the funeral was postponed sine du! The old woman is alive and well, and declares that she was in a trance. But it is the general opinion of the neighbors that she was only playing possum."

EXTRAORDINARY AFFAIR IN THE GULF.

As Capt. Daniel Gorman, of the ship Jessy, from Limerick, was on his outward voyage, and when about forty-five miles southeast of the island of Anticosti, during a thick fog, and surrounded by field ice, he heard the report of a gun. Supposing it to be a signal from another vessel near at hand, he caused the fog bell to be rung, to avoid a collision. In about twenty minutes the fog cleared off, and his ship was found to be close to a piece of ice, on which lay in view the body of an Indian extended and still bleeding profusely from a wound in the chest. He was quite dead, and 1 ot far from him lay the body of another Indian. with a dead seal alongside of him. The first poor fellow, it is conjectured, despairing of relief from certain death by starvation, had just put a period to his existence, not imagining that aid was really so near. They probably went out together on the field of ice to kill seals, and had drifted out to sea, when the first dying from the cold, the other committed suicide to avoid a more lingering death - Quebec Mercury, May 27.
