MISCELLANY.

These people remind me more and more every day of the North American Indian In complexion they are lighter, but not unlike him. They have the same vaulting walk, the same erect and daring attitude. Perhaps the strongest part of the likeness is in dress. The mocassin of raw bide. made by perforating the edge with holes, and lacing it over the top of the foot with strings, is decidedly Indian So is the coarse stuff legging, fitting the ankle and calf of the leg closely, and tied telow the knee. The tunic, too, is only a white shaggy blanket, hanging down not quite to the knee, with holes for the arms, and sometimes with sleeves. The Greek as well as the Indian wears a large knife stuck into his girdle, with the handle ostentatiously exposed. Their habitations, are as similar as the difference of climate and building materials will permit. I speak here of the peasants of the interior. The dress of the females is a little different .-They are barefooted. Their under-gar-
