

MISCELLANY.

A JUDGE'S MUSTARD BATH. Two or three days ago, a young friend who had recently been spending some time in Georgia, related to us an anecdote, which shows how thoroughly scared the people of the interior of Georgia were during the prevalence of yellow fever in Savannah.

It seemed that Judge R., of the Supreme Court of that State, was up in the country at the same time, but twenty hours run by rail of the terrible disease. Quite suddenly, late one afternoon, he was seized with headache, pains in his back and limbs, &c. Having heard that these were the indications of yellow fever, he extended his visit to the interior of Georgia, and in great consternation, applied to a friend who was posted for advice. A hot mustard bath was urgently advised, and being prepared, the Judge was soon having himself with the irritating fluid. Presently he felt better, and finding a cake of soap in the vessel of water, he began to apply it freely upon his person. After quite a pleasant exercise in this way, he looked down on his body and discovered that he was turning black! Oh, horrors! His friend was hurriedly sent for, came, and declared that the symptom was intensely expressive of yellow fever.

"But," said the Judge, shivering the while, "I feel no pain; I feel well!" "So much the worse; the absence of pain is a marked symptom." "Good Heavens!" the Judge ejaculated, "what shall I do?" "The only hope is in the mustard, rub away!" was all the consolation his friend could give.

And rub he did with a will. He used the soap to open every possible pore, and after some minutes sent for a candle (for the twilight was fading), to ascertain his exact cuticular condition. On examination, he was as black as a crow, and the soap, which a careless servant had dropped into the tub was discovered to be somebody's Patent Paste Blacking.

We only add that the Judge survived.

MONTGOMERY MAIL.

HORRIBLE AFFAIR. The New Haven Journal and Courier of the 30th of April, gives the following particulars of the attempt of Willard Clark to murder Richard Wight, at New Haven, Conn., on Saturday night last, a notice of which we have already published.

About 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, Willard Clark, grocer, doing business on the corner of York and George streets, entered the house of Mr. John Bogart, No. 19 West Chapel street, which he had been accustomed to do, at intervals, for a number of years past. He went into the kitchen and there found Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wight, the son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Bogart, who, seeming to be somewhat annoyed by the presence of Clark, left the kitchen and passed into the parlor, Clark followed them into the parlor, and advancing to the side of Mr. Wight, presented a pistol to his head, and discharged it within a few inches of his ear. The ball entered the head of Mr. W. directly back of the right ear, and passing through the brain, lodged in the cranium at the back side of the head. He fell upon the floor, giving a few terrible groans, which were distinctly heard by persons passing the house, who immediately entered to the assistance of the family.

Clark looked upon the scene of blood for a moment, and then quietly walked out of the house. The alarm of murder spread with astonishing rapidity through the neighborhood. Officer Lee Dunning was immediately despatched in search of the murderer. He proceeded to the store of Clark, where he found him very quietly engaged in his usual occupation. He asked Clark what he had been doing, to which he replied, "I don't know." He then told him that he must go along with him, to jail; to which Clark replied, "Well, I suppose I must."

Clark took out a sum of money from his pocket, and very coolly handed it to his partner, and gave him directions concerning the disposition he must make of it, and gave orders in regard to the payment of some debts, and he then told officer Dunning that he was ready to go.

He was safely lodged in jail, and offered no resistance while on his way thither, and seemed as cool and as deliberate as he ever did in business transactions. Drs. Knight, Punderson, Blakeslee and Hubbard were called in, but could render no medical or surgical aid, as it was believed he could survive but a short time. He was placed upon a cot, where he lay without any apparent motion, occasionally groaning audibly. A part of the brain protruded through the aperture made in the head, and the appearance of the wound indicated that the ball in passing through the brain took a direct course from right to left.

The whole cause of this terrible tragedy seems to be the jealousy Clark entertained for Mr. Wight, who had married Miss Bogart against the wishes of Clark. For several years past Clark had sought the hand of Miss Bogart in marriage, and had been repulsed by her, and finally she dismissed him about a year since.

Miss Bogart formed the acquaintance of Mr. Wight, to whom she became attached, and on the 12th day of last March they were united in marriage. At the time she married Mr. Wight she was but 17 years of age. The family are highly respectable, and the sad news of such a deliberate attempt to murder has created the greatest excitement in the city.

A despatch, dated New Haven, April 30th, says, "Richard Wight, who was shot on Saturday night by Willard Clark, was lying at 9 o'clock this evening. It was thought that he may possibly survive. He recognized his father from Newark, N. J., to-day."

Honest industry is always rewarded. No young man need complain of being kept poor, if he rolls up his sleeves and goes to work.

AN IRISH ORIGINAL.

Bow-street, London.—Among the odd fish who were caught by the watchmen in casting their nets lately in London, was a Hibernian wag, rather advanced in years, of very seedy exterior, but possessing all the dry good humor, and joke-cracking disposition of his whiskey-loving country. On being put to the bar, the watchman was called on to state his charge, and this was done in very few words. In fact, Mr. Butler the delinquent, was found drunk, under the piazzas of Covent Garden, at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Well, said Sir Richard, how do you account for your disorderly conduct? Mr. B. (with a grin)—O! Faith, Sir Richard, I never was much of an account, and if I was myself, when I was drunk, as the watchman says, what I'd be saying wouldn't do me much good, for 'dear men't talk to tales.'

Sir R.—What brought you in such a state? Mr. B.—I suppose I brought myself that way by drinking liquor.

Sir R.—It would have been well if you had taken yourself home to bed.

Mr. B.—You're right, it would have been well, but there was two reasons against that—first I was blind drunk as well as dead drunk, and so I couldn't see my way, and next, if my eyes were as good as your Worship's, I couldn't have seen what I haven't got, which is a bed.

Sir R.—Have you no lodgings? Mr. B.—Divil a lodgings, except in the words of the old song, 'On the cowld ground.'

Sir R.—What are you? Mr. B.—Faith I'm a prisoner, I believe.

Sir R.—I mean how do you get your living? Mr. B.—Through the blessings of Providence.

Sir R.—Have you a trade? Mr. B.—Is it me?—the divil a trade.

Sir R.—Were you brought up to no business? Mr. B.—No, by my soul, I was tenderly reared, and my education was my only patrimony.

Sir R.—That sort of money doesn't go far with a man of your inclinations.

Mr. B. (with a laugh)—You're right again; all the learning in the world is of no use at the bar—I mean at the bar of a public house—unless you back it with the circulating medium.

Sir R.—I'm afraid you have been circulating your earnings through a very improper medium.

Mr. B.—Divil a truer word you ever spoke in your life.

Sir R.—If I let you go now, you'll set off, and get drunk again?

Mr. B.—I'll go back I won't, for I haven't a rap in the world; and as for my credit, it's like my coat—worn out.

Sir R.—I am half disposed to try you.

Mr. B.—Now for tippling, I hope, your Worship; for if you do I'm sure to be found guilty.

Sir R.—You seem to be a good humor'd fellow.

Mr. B.—There's a pair of us, your Worship.

Sir R. laughed, and told Mr. B. to go about his business and mend his ways.

Mr. B.—Before I go, I'll ask you one favor.

Sir R.—Well, what is it?

Mr. B.—Just to give me a bit of a note to your countryman, M'Adam, and as I despair of mending my own ways, perhaps he'll give me a job in tending the ways of others.

Sir R. again laughed and bid him go out and wait, and he'd endeavor to put him in the highway to industry.

Mr. B. shrugged up his shoulders with good humor, and pulling up his menialities, trotted out of the office. The worthy magistrate subsequently gave him a letter, which would probably procure him present occupation.

DOCT. JOHNSTON, BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.

WHERE may be obtained the most speedy, pleasant and effectual remedy in the world for all SECRET DISEASES. Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Weakness, Pains in the Loins, Constitutional Debility, Impotency, Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Affections of the Kidneys, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin; and all those serious and melancholy disorders arising from the destruction of the system, which destroy the body and mind, those secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the songs of the Sirens to the mariners. Urge your friends to the most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN.

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have embraced the path of duty, and distinguished themselves by their services to their country, or for the sale or hire of negroes, whether the property is owned by the advertiser or by other persons, the same are extended by the term "immediate business."

MARRIAGE.

Married persons, or those contemplating marriage, should be particularly careful to consult Dr. Johnston, who will give the most judicious and salutary advice, and be restored to perfect health.

DR. JOHNSTON.

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London; Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, and other cities, he has effected many of the most astonishing cures that ever were known. Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at every sound, and being unable to sleep, or being troubled with indigestion, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

A CERTAIN DISEASE.

When a misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an untimely death is the result. It is a disease which is often contracted by those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying the cure, and thus rendering it more difficult, and his many wonderful Cures is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted. Those who wish to be speedily and effectually cured, should when the symptoms first appear, apply to Dr. Johnston, who will give the most judicious and salutary advice, and be restored to perfect health.
