THE NATIONAL AMERICAN PARTY. Our readers are now acquainted with the Platof a constitutional Union must admit the patriotic purity of the sentiments declared, and no one need to pretend to be a friend of southern rights who repudiates them. Every thinking man will perceive that this is the only movement that can hold out a hope of preserving the Union; and though the public may be disappointed in this hope, yet all is and will be done that can be done, and the American party may quote the expression and apply it to themselves and their country: " If Rome must fallwe are innocent."

Not the least consideration in regard to the great work accomplished by the American Organization, is the rending of the veil that concealed hostile designs against the South, by the false names of "National Democrats" and "National Whigs." Our readers know that we have long looked to this result as a " consummation devoutly to be wished." We now see each other face to face, and the humbug and flummery of " the Administration" " the party, &c." we trust is banished from the mental view forever; and we trust, that through the power and influence of this Orfare, but look to the advancement of self alone.

But let them suit whom 'they may, they will be found to be TRUTHS, the examination of which cannot be postponed nor evaded.

There is a morbid fear of sectional divisions .-And, pray, have matters been otherwise for a long time, in practice, whatever may have been the theory? The Compromises were strictly sectional; compromises that the free States practically repudiated on every occasion that offered a chance to do so-ever complaining against them, and never approving until their repeal gave a hypocritical pretense for hostility. Is it not practically sectional that all the free States are ever expressing this hostility-through the press, the legislatures, the clergy, and abundance of guerrillas un-

While the Free States are all sectional in their operations, all hostile to the South, is it so very States, with all her cargo-3,000 rifles, 1,800 Colt's alarming a matter that the Southern States should revolvers, 1,000 pounds fixed ammunition, a brass become sectional in self-defence? DANGER IN THE DARK.

There has lately made its appearance a work under the above title. In the guise of fiction and the habiliments of romance, it delineates the spirit, principles and tendency of anti-republican Romanism. The Protestant press speaks of it in terms of great commendation. The New Orleans Delta says: "It discloses all the tricks and plots of the Papal Church in their true light. From our New York Correspondent. NEW YORK, June 19th, 1855.

Last Sunday I attended the religious exercise "Five Points." This spot until about five years ago was foul and infamous with every form of loathsome vice and squalid wretchedness. Rickety old wooden houses, unpainted and windowless bowed to each other over streets rarely visited by the scavenger, reeking with heaps of garbage and last night at the Cours House. Our paper goes green with the vegetable mould of their stagnant to press before the hour at which a report of his gutters. Dark and narrow allers led into subterranean rooms whose dungeon like walls, always slimy with moisture, worked a slow but sure death to their inmates or to break-neck stairways mounting to dreary dens, where henest poverty shivered in rags or more frequ ntly where the crimilured such degraded humanity as wandered after nightfall into their vile neighborhood. Pale, sickly and deformed children, the off-pring of disease and shame infested the sidewalk, and wolfish eyes gloated on the passer by from doorway and casement, with a light which betrayed an equal readiness to filch a purse or cut a throat. Very much of this has been cared by remedies of the good Samaritan Pesse. The site of the old Brewery one of the worst of the buildings I have attempted to describe is now occupied by a substantial building of brick, used by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Church, acting in concert with Mr. Pease, as an industrial school for the benefit of the poor outcast children in the vicinity. But it was pleasant too to see these children gathered about their good teacher, clean, orderly and attentive. Mr. Pease had a Herculean labor to perform in establishing his school, small as the task may seem. So utterly wild and goneastray were these urchins, that it was months before he could succeed in keeping them in the school room any length of time. The decorum of the school room was continually broken by the slang ejaculations, explosions of awful oaths sudden yells, and now and then when the teacher
