MISCELLANY.

IMPRISONMENT FOR READING THE BIBLE. A letter from Florence, states that another Tuscan has been made to feel the vengeance of the popish priests. Domenico the following account of an exploit of Cecchetti was seized at half-past four o'clock in the morning, hurried from his ildren, to the prison of the Bargello, conlemined without any trial, without any witnesses, by the Council of Perfecture, to year's confinement in the Penitentiary of Imbrogiano, near Monte Lupo, whither way in which the captain came at, and he was conveyed in chains on the following captured one of his prizes is fully elucimorning; the crimes for which he was consigned to a dungeon being the possession of one Bible and two Testaments, and the avowal when examined by the Chancellor of the Delegation of Sata Maria Novela, that he considered Christ the head of the church. He was a workman employed in the tobacco manufactory of Emanuel Fenzi and Co., the well known bankers, who have for years formed this monoply. He lived on the first floor of a house in the Via Tadea. In another small apartment on the same floor was lodged a young man, the apprentice of a vintner in Borgo La Noce. He was struck by the good conduct of Cecchettis' children, and by the excellent and kind bearing of the father, and in the course of conversation and familiar intercourse at length learned that the father was in the habit of reading with his children and his friends the Bible And in casual chat with his own master he repeated this circumstance to him, ex. pressing his belief that the Bible could not be such a very bad book, after all, when it produced such happy fruit.

A few days afterwards, the vintner went to confession of San Lorenzo, and there mentioned to the confessor that his apprentice had been talking to him about Diodati's Bible, which he thought not so bad as had been represented. The priest immediat ly interrupted the confession, and refused him absolution. Next day he met renzo, and one of the fiercest and most relentless persecutors of the Tuscan Protestants. "Why, what is the matter with you," said Curate Buratti, "you seem dull ?" "Ah, Curate, no wonder, yesterday I was refused absolution." "Refused absolution," rejoined the Curate, "impossible; refusabsolution to so good a Catholic as you .--There must be some mistake; come to my prove nothing."

The vintner made his confe sion to Cu- in reply, and then Captain T., in brorate Buratti, and received absolution, the Curate Buratti, lost no time in denouncing dat?" Domenico Ceccheti to the Tuscan police as guilty of the crime of Protestant propagandism. Some three months ago, four gendarmes suddenly entered Cecchetti's house, about nine o'clock in the evening, and seized and carried off in triumph one copy of Diodati's Bible, and two copies of the new Testament Cecchetti heard nothing more of the matter for nearly ten weeks. On the mor- would see what he could do about it, ning of the 14th inst., however, he receiv- and a short time afterward he had the ed an order to appear before the delegate satisfaction of seeing a boat alongside of of Santa Maria Novello, and was required his vessel, with the English captain in 30 BBLS. EXPLOIT OF A PRIVATEERSMAN A writer in the Salem "Evening Journal" gives some interesting facts in relation to the marine of Salem in years BY THOMAS LORING-EDITOR and PROPRIEgone by. Among other things he gives ron, one of the Salem privateersmen in 1814: December 6, the Macedonian, Captain Penn Townsend, arrived with prize goods, and twenty-two prisoners. The way in which the captain came at, and dated in the following anecdote, the substance of which the writer had from his own lips.

It appears that just after he left the It appears that just after he left the Western Islands, where he had stopped to recruit, and while he was cruising to recruit, and while he was cruising between those islands and Tristan de Acunha, a sail was discovered on his bow, toward which he immediately kept away. kept away.

While running slowly down, with a light breeze, the lookout at the mast-head was hailed from the quarter-deck as follows: as follows :

"Mast-head, there ?"

"Sir ?" "Do you see that sail now ?" "Ay, ay, sir."

"What does she look like ?"

"She looks very large, sir. Guess she's either a frigate or an Indiaman. On hearing this, Capt. T. took his glass and went aloft to satisfy himself in regard both to his enemy's strength and calibre. After doing so, he came down from aloft, luffed his vessel up in the wind, sent all his men with the exception of nine or ten below, hoisted Dutch colors, and kept off again before the wind. Disguising himself so as to appear as much as possible like a Dutch skipper, and having transformed such Priest Buratti, the first curate of San Lo- of his men as remained on deck into very respectable Dutch sailors, Capt. T. ran boldly down across the enemy's stern and coming to under her leequarters, was hailed as follows: "Ship aboy !" "Hallo."
