MISCELLANY.

A CLERGYMAN TURNED SOLDIER. Some twenty years ago, a young man. whom I shall name "Jamie," was pastor of a large congregation of the Established Church of Scotland. At school and at college he was distinguished for the love of learning, and as a minister unr valled r his eloquence and mental attainmen s He had been settled about a year, and was upon the eve of being married to a fine young woman he had loved from childhood. when the heritors and several English Colonel Ashe. As she rounded to her gentlemen, who were then on a visit to the Nor h, attended kirk to hear the famous Brunswick they appeared upon the shorpreacher. H. more than verified his fame; be enraptured his audience. His themewas the story of his church. Its many John Ashe!-Huge Waddell, take heed! vents of disastrous wars, its marryrs, its Consider well, brave gentlemen, the heroes, its undying hope, even when des pair seemed to shroud it in endless night; its unweared toils and its final triumphs were each in turn presented to the mind of the hearers, with a power and feeling that defy descript on. He stood the genius of eloquence personified. But there was one you not that youder, accross the water, among his hearers who was not bewilderdered by his glowing pictures.
The gentle hearted Beella, his betrothed, when the congregation dispersed, followed him to the manse. He received her in his study, but while conducting her to a chan she sank upon the floor, and burst into tears. "O Jumie! Jamie!" she exclaimed. as he raised her tenderly in his arms, and seated her on a sofa, "ye hae broken me pute heart !" "How so, my Bella? explain!" "Ye were drunk, raving drunk Jamie, and I wonder the elders did ac tak ye out o' the pulpit ! Ye whined and ranted, and sametimes God forgie me for sa ing sae, I thought I saw the Evil One stand ng beside you, laughing and clap-ping you on the shoulder. and infusing life into his sermons, he was m task with unwearied industry and nuthe habit of taking a glass of whiskey be-fore entering the pulpit. The morning be-fore he preached the fatal sermon, he felt r ther nervous, for he knew there would be strangers to hear him, and took nearly two glasses. What he said, or how he conducted himself, no effort of memory sued by seven Russian cavalry, the forecould recall -the death of Bella alone had most of whom passed a lance at him; by merged into itself the doings of that dread- shifting his position he avoided it, but it enful day. The compliments which he re- tered the body of his horse, and both lay ceived sounded in his ears like satire and prostrate on the ground. Malone, releasmockery, and the very name of liquor im- ing himself as soon as possible from his pressed him with horror!

where he obtained a situation as a teacher; enemy's lancers It momentarily occurred but every thing appeared so black to him to him that by keeping himself in constant that he expressed fear he should, in some motion, he should be a more difficult obunguarded moment, destroy himself.

His friend, who was a sailor, suggested he resolved to sell his life as dearly as possome active employment, that would call sible. In this unequal contest, his plan into play his physical faculties, and thus was to face as many as he could, strike the give his mind a spell, and ended by offer. hance of the nearest upwards, instantly ing to procure him a place before the mast thrusting his sabre into his antagonist. In in a ship "I like your suggestio," he this manner he had actually disputched said, "but dislike the sea." "Then turn three, and was engaged with a fourth, soldier and seek employment in India. when assistance coming up, the others fled. where there is always plenty of fighting' "I will," he said, springing from his chair, "when my engagement expires, I will pur chase and Ensign's commission. I won inuscular exertion and the excitement natder the thought never suggested itself to me, for my ancestors, far back as I can trace them, were sorblers. Better, far better, die on the field of battle, than fall by one's own hand !" We separated.

A few weeks since, in running my eye fallen Russian, rallied, and determined if along the list of those who had distinguish possible to try his prowess once more, and ed themselves at the battle of Inkerman, I he soon had the opportunity, on a Russian saw the name of Lieut. Col. ...... A letter sergeant of as fine statute as himself, whom, from my friends bus since informed me that he had served in India under Lord the ground in the sight of several witness-Gough, and was promoted for his gall int les. conduct in three campaings. He was present at the battles of Alma, Balaklava and Inkerman, and at last accounts was in good health, engaged in the siege of Sebas-topol. He was still single; his "heart was dead to fove!"

Incident in the History of North Carolina. At the late commencement of the Unitheme was, "The Early Times and Men of the Lower Cape Fear." The speaker recited, during the course of his oration, the following thrilling and ever memorable incident in the history of the Old North State. In speaking of the position of North Carolina in the great struggle for American freedom, he Litthe first of the year 1766, the sloop of war Dilligence arrived in the Cape-Fear, bringing the stamps. Now, look what shall happen! She floats as gaily up the river as though she came on an errand of grace, with sails all set, and the eross of St. George flaunting a peak, her cannon trowning upon the rebellions.

Well, said the Chancellor, I have one premy strong objection.

What is it? asked the Sergeant.

Why, just now I happen to have a better mule.

What trade is it? said the inquisitor.

I am Chancellor of the State of New her cannon frowning upon the rebelious it? said the inquisitor. It am Chancellor of the State of New little town of Brunswick, as she yawns to her anchor. People of Cape Pear, the issue is before you! The paw of the sergeant. Strike the issue is before you! The paw of the pa

the hou is on your heads—the terrible PAE TAI- WEELY CONTRECTAL lion of England! Will you crouch submissively, or redeem the houor that was pledged for you? You have spoken BY PHOMAS LORING-EDITOR and PROPER. brave words about the rights of the peote-have ye acts as brave? Ah! gentleman, there were men in North Caro-ina in those days. Scarcely had the stamp ship crossed the bar, when Colonel Waddell was watching her from the shore. He sent messenger to Wilnington to his friend uchor, opposite the Custom House at with two companies of friends and galbut yeomen at their backs. Beware, perilous issue you dare! Remember that armed resistance to the King's authority is treason! In his palace, at already chafing against you; and know Bugland still keeps the Tower, the Fraitor's Gate, the scaffold and the axe? Full well they know; but

They have set their lives upon the east,

And now must stand the hazard of the die. By threats of violence they intimidaed the commander of the sloop, and he romises not to land his stamps. They seize the vessel's boat and hoisting a nast and flag, mount it upon a cart and narch in triumph to Wilmington. Upon their arrival the town is illuminated. Next day, with Colonel Ashe at their head, the people go in crowds to the 25() BAGS for safe by ADAMS, BRO & CO. Governor's house, and demand of him James Houston, the stamp master. Upon his refusal to deliver him up forthnow-I canna live out this day-I feel my with, they set about to burn his house blood freeze-O' God, be merciful to me a bove his head.
