LETTER FROM EUROPE.

We are permitted to lay before our readers, the following interesting letter, written by our distinguished towns-woman, now making the tour of Europe, (and whose name will readily occur to every one,) to a gentleman in this city:

Florence, Tuscany, May 20, 1855.—In our wanderings amid the antiquities of Rome and along the peerless Bay of Naples, Dr. L. has often said how much you would enjoy these scenes. Again this morning, when I was describing a day in Pompeii and a night upon Vesuvius to Powers, the sculptor, Dr. L. remarked, "I wish you would write that description to Mr. S. I know it would please him so much." Trusting his words may be prophetic, I gladly send you the record from my journal, which I style

A Day in Pompeii and a Night on Vesuvius.

May 6, 1855.—At early morning, we went along the sea shore to Pompeii. The atmosphere was filled with the blue light so peculiar to Naples, which rendered distant objects incred bly near. Thus, Capri, Proceda and Ischia, the triune isles of beauty, seemed almost at our feet. We passed through Portici and Resina, the roof of buried Herculaneum, through Terre del Greco and La Annunciata, all so near one to the other, as to appear quite a continued village, linked together by verdant vineyards.

From near Castalemare, the ancient Strabia, we walked through the olive grove to Pompeii. The long narrow streets are p ved with lava, and the deep track of the chariot wheels is still there, with the rust from the tire yet remaining. The houses are a l built around a courtyard, in the centre of which is a fountain and little flower gardens. All the floors are beautiful Mosaics, and the walls are painted in light colors. Upon this glo ving ground are the figures of nymphs and female dancers, indescribably lovely in drawing, and radiant in color. The sleeping rooms were exceedingly small and without windows, so the light must have been admitted from springs in the roof from the Atrium.

In the house of Sallust, there is a fresco of Diana and Acteon wonderfully expressive. In another the death of Adonis.—Venus is represented in all her luxuriant beauty, but grief veils, as it were, the full perfection of her charms. In her white arms she holds Adonis, while his eyes are fixed upon her with an expression of "love stronger than death." Cupid has fallen at his feet; his arrows are scattered, and his bow is broken. It is really one of the most pathetic pictures I ever beheld—the hues and tints are so life-like. The fresco is in one of the recently uncovered houses. Only in these the treasures of painting and statuary remain. All the first discoveries were taken to the Museum at Naples.—Together, they constitute multitudes of valuable objects, revealing the "inner life" of the Pompeiians, who have been a prosperous and happy people.

We visited the Forum and the Temples. The Theatre is so perfect that a drama might even now be acted therein. We went to the Amphitheatre where the grapevines twine around the trees and cast off long branches, binding them together by rich green garlands. The Amphitheatre is an immense structure, and in wonderful preservation. As I stood in the Temple of Isia and looked up at Vesuvius, which seems to rise at the end of every street, sad and mournful feeling possessed me, increased by the silence—the intense silence unbroken by the sound of footstep or the song of birds. We went down into the cellars of Dromedes Vilia, and saw the Amphore, wherein the ashes have displaced the rich Falernian. Near the doorway is the impression of a female form of rounded proportions. Upon the skeleton arm was found a gold bracelet with the name 'Julia' engraved upon it. All the day we passed amid the roofless houses, the ruined temples of a dead religion, and in the silent streets. We dined without the walls and beyond the "streets of Toombs"—then returned to Resina, and thence descended the mountain. It was a lovely evening, and thousands were hastening up. An eruption of Vesuvius is quite a carnival time to the Neopolitans. Even the King left the close retirement of his palace at Caserto (twenty miles from Naples) and followed the example of his subjects in ascending the fiery Mountain. His carriage was encircled by a multitude of guards, and the soldiers lined the pathway as he passed along.—The first night I saw the eruption there was only one crater opened, but now eight were pouring out streams of lava which gathered to a great river and fell over the precipice, a cataract of liquid fire, resembling in its grandeur our own Niagara. Slowly, majestically it flowed down the gorge. It was only when some obstacle impeded its progress that the great waves would rise up and dart across the rocky barrier, with a wild, fierce sound, which mingled not with any other of earth or air. We passed hours walking near the craters—then seated ourselves on the cliff overhanging the cataract of lava, and then supped by the red blaze of the volcano. Was not that a glorious day to remember? We dined in Pompeii, the Destroyed and supped upon Vesuvius the Destroyer.

Dr. L. says I must not fail to tell you of our visit to Pozzuolia, where St. Paul landed after his shipwreck at Malta. We stood upon the very spot his sacred feet first pressed. In the wonderful temple of Jupiter Serafis, Dr. L. obtained a fine piece of marble, from which he has had made for you a paper weight. From Pazzuolia we drew to Baia, which you remember was the grand Rendezvous of the Roman fleet in the days of the Empire. Along the shore are many ancient ruins, and the temples of Mercury and Venus. We drank of the Falernian, so loved in Horace, on the 'Monti Nuovo' where grow the grapes from which it is made. We saw the lake of Acernus, and the cave of the Cumean Sybil. We returned to Rome by land from Naples, traveling slowly, and visiting all the points of historical and poetical interest. We spent an hour at the tomb of Cicero, and one day at the "Villa Cicerone," built upon the foundations of his country seat, Molo de Gaeta. In the Pontine marshes we saw the Fero Appia, where St. Paul met his friends from Rome. I could give you volumes of our wanderings but time and space forbid me. When we meet again I will describe the scenes of charming interest, through which we have passed. I was enraptured with Rome. It was the realization of the dreams of my youth to wander through the Coliscum—to stand within the Forum and Capitol—to look upon the Palaces of the Cæsars—upon the triumphal Arches and the ruined Temples. It was as though I saw enacted before me a drama I had often read with delight.

Naples is beautiful beyo d all other cities of earth. Florence is lovely with rich treasures of Painting and Sculpture and its environs are more exquisite than 'the visions of the enthusiast."

I like the Italians—they are kind and genial. I have met with friends cordial and excellent, who have never permitted me to feel that I was a stranger.

Believe me, &c. O. W. L.

INDIAN VISITERS TO WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—At an early hour yesterday morning the office of Indian Affairs was surrounded by a crowd of persons, in the midst of whom were several highly ornamented, yet almost nude Indians who had just arrived in this city by the cars from the West. They proved to be a party of four men, a lad of about seventeen, professing to be an interpreter, a woman, and a little girl about four or five years old.

They were promptly admitted into the reception room of the office, and on the arrival of Acting Commissioner Mix they presented themselves before him, and claimed to be a delegation from their tribe; but, owing to the very imperfect knowledge which Ben. Losson, their interpreter, possessed of the English language, it was difficult to ascertain the precise objects of their visit.

Wadengoh, who appeared to be the leader, said he wished that his Great Father would invest him with the dignity of great or principal chief of the tribe, and give him a military coat with epaulets, a horse, bridle, spurs, and a pair of saddlebags, as well as money, alleging as a reason that such things had been done for the Sacs and Foxes when they visited their Great Father at Washington. He said: "If you will give me mo ey, or other things, I will take them home." He was poor; the Kaws were all poor, and wanted money. In fact "money" was the burden of his song. He then presented the Acting Commissioner with a head-dress of feathers, which he desired to have hung up in the office and exhibited to those who desired to see it.

Egoshabbee then addressed the Acting Commissioner, urging that the request of his leader might be granted, and expatiating on the poverty of his tribe and their want of money.

Adekanay addressed the Acting Commissioner to the same effect, and was followed by Theagemony, who desired that his leader's request might be granted, and that their Great Father would give him "big money, heap," to carry home.

Acting Commissioner Mix then asked them upon what authority they came to the city? What sort of paper they had brought with him?

Wadengoh said the paper they got from their agent they lost in the river while on board of the steamboat; that it was lost, gone in the water. It was' he said, a good paper, and it wanted the Commissioner to make him a chief. He got a paper from Mr. Choteau (their trader) also, which was lost at the same time. That was also, a good paper.

The Acting Commissioner said, as their Great Father did not send for them, they should not have come. He regretted their presence here without the authority of the Department or the permission of their agent. As to the chief-making, their Great Father would leave that to the tribe. The Kaws were alone authorized to confer that title upon such members of the tribe as they might prefer. When they have selected the man of their choice as chief, their Great Father would then give him the appropriate medals and recognise him as the choice of his people.—If Wadengoh, by his behavior and conduct, shall merit the favor and confidence of his people, and show by his conduct that he is deserving, then his Great Father will recognise his position. He then desired to know from the interpreter if they had no other object in visiting Washington than to make Wadengoh their chief?

They had none but that and the others already expressed.

The Acting Commissioner then asked them when they intended to go home?

Interpreter. Whenever our father says so.

Acting Commissioner. What is the name of your agent?

The interpreter, after asking the delegates, said they did not know, except that he was called "Major;" was a small man, and had light hair. (This describes Agent Clarke.)

Acting Commissioner again asked what they wanted. Did they not come on other business besides that of making a chief?

Wadengoh. I want an epaulet and a coat; a big coat and epaulets! The Kaws have too many head chiefs, and I want to be made the principal chief of the tribe. I came to see you all, and I want to be paid for it. I want to see all the chiefs in this city. If you have any more I want to see them. I want a horse and saddle-bags, and when I go home I want to be called a chief.

Egoshabbee. We want to have a chief made of that man, [pointing to Wadengoh.] We want him to look like the soldiers.—We want him to have a hat and epaulets like the men we met to-day. [Alluding to an association which had recently passed.] We know, father, whatever you say you will make good.

Acting Commissioner. I desire you to go to your boarding-house and stay there until to-morrow, when I will again see you. I will give you a paper to your father, the agent, to take home with you, and your Great Father will pay your expenses this time, but you must not come again without being sent for. Your Great Father has sent you one of his white brethren as agent at Council Grove, whose duty it is to watch over your interests and to provide for your wants, and you should always consult him before taking any step like that of coming to this city. By communicating your wishes through him it will answer every purpose, and save you the trouble of attending here in person.

The party then took their departure, apparently well pleased, though somewhat disappointed in the result of their interview.

The Kaws are located afar off on the Plains, and though not very ferocious and sanguinary, are yet exceedingly troublesome because of thieving propensities.—Emigrants to Santa Fe often suffer the loss of animals and other effects through their depredations; they, indeed, claim a right to levy such contributions in compensation for the privilege of passing through their country.

This party state that they sold a horse for sixty dollars to enable them to travel to Washington, but lost the money with their papers in the river. The presumption therefore is that they begged their way from Missouri to this city. They state that their journey occupied ten day. They are quite a comely looking people and pretty shrewd. Their boy interpreter is by no means very sensible, but somewhat garrulous, and has no doubt so magnified his office as to attain a degree of influence over them.

Organized on purely mutual principles, the life members participate in the whole of the profits which are declared annually. Besides, the applicant for life, when the annual premium is over $30 may pay one half in a Note.

All claims for insurance against the Company will be paid within ninety days after proof of the death of the party is furnished.

Slaves are insured for one or five years, at rates which will enable all Slaveholders to secure this class of property against the uncertainty of life.

Slave insurance presents a new and interesting feature in the history of North Carolina, which will prove very important to the Southern States.

The last four months operation of this Company shows a very large amount of business—more than the Directors expected to do the first year—having already issued more than 200 Policies.

DOCT. JOHNSTON,
BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL.
WHERE may be obtained the most speedy, pleasant and effectual remedy in the world for all

SECRET DISEASES.

Gonorrhœa, Gleets, Stricetures, Seminal Weakness, Pains in the Loins, Constitutional Debility, Impotency, Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Affections of the Kidneys, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Diseases of the Head, Throat Nose or Skin; and all those serious and melancholy disorders arising from the destructive habits of Youth, which destroy both body and mind, those secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the songs of the Syrens to the mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN.

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.

Married persons, or those contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, should immediately consult Dr. J., and be restored to perfect health.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. Johnston may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

OFFICE, No. 7, SOUTH FREDERICK St., 7 DOORS FROM BALTIMORE St., (east side,) UP THE STEPS.

BE PARTICULAR in observing the NAME and NUMBER, or you will mistake the place.

A CURE IN TWO DAYS, OR NO CHARGE.

No Mercury or Nauseous Drugs Used.

TAKE NOTICE.

DR. JOHNSTON is the only regularly Educated Physician who advertises his very extensive Practise, and his many Wonderful Cures is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted. Those who wish to be speedily and effectually cured, should shun the numerous trifling imposters, who only ruin their health, and apply to Dr. Johnston.

DR. JOHNSTON.

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London; graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known. Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

A CERTAIN DISEASE.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone be relied on, delaying till the consti utional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, noctural pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progress on with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commiseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings, by sending him to "that bourne from whence no traveller returns." To such therefore, Dr. Johnston pledges himself to preserve the most inviolable secrecy; and, from his extensive practice in the first Hospitals in Europe and America, he can confidently recommend a safe and speedy cure to the unfortunate victims of this horrid disease. It is a melancholy fact, that thousands fall victims to this dreadful disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that deadly poison, mercury, ruin the constitution, and either send the unfortunate sufferer to an untimely grave, or else make the residue of life miserable.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by private and improper indulgences.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects, produced by early habits of youth, viz:—Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.

Mentally—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion of Society, Self-Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages, can now judge what is the cause of their declining health. Losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale and emaciated, have a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of consumption.

Married Persons, or those contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, should immedi
