After watching him a short time verity is in accordance with the example and finding that he could keep the vesof his predecessors, who never hesitated to sel headed right, the skipper streched act against the degenerate and rebellious himself upon the deck and was soon achildren of the church, and to smite the sleep. Shortly afterward, a squall aviolators and obstinate usurpers of its rights with the penalties set forth in the holy canons,' his Holiness thus proceeds:-

'We, therefore, again raise our apostolic voice in your august assembly, and we blame anew, we condemn, and declare null Star at his back. He sailed along an and of no effect, the law above mentioned, and all and each of the acts and decrees cogitating over how he should get out of which have taken place in Piedmont to the his difficulty. But at last he gave it up, detriment of religion, of the church, of our and shoving his slumbering master into authority, and of the rights of the Holy See | wakefulness with his foot, shouted, -acts and decrees of which we spoke with "Cap'n! Cap'n! Give me another star sorrow in our allocution of the 22d January last. We are, besides, obliged to declare, with the most profound regret, that all those who in Piedmont have not feared to propose, approve and sanction the said measure, and the law against the church and the rights of the Holy See, that all those also who are employed by them, who give support, counsel and adhesion, and who execute their orders, have incurred major excommunication and the other ecby the holy carons, the apostolic constitutions, and the decrees of general counci s, particularly those of the Council of Trente.

The Pope concludes by stating that after exercising severity, he remembers that he 'occupies the place of Him who in wrath remembers mercy,' and that, therefore, 'he humbly prays the Lord our God' to bring back to better sentiments the degenerate children of the Holy Church in Sardinia, and to show his blessings on the bishops and clergy of that kingdom 'in their present agony and tribulations.' The second allocution of the Pope is on the affairs of Spain and Swatzerland. After recapitulating the principal points of the concordat, concluded some time ago with Spain-one of which was that the property of the church should be invoilable-his Holiness declares that that convention has been impudently outraged and

'Laws have been passed which, to the great damage of religion, destroy the first and second articles of the Concordat, and which order the sale of the property of the church. Various decrees have been published, by which bishops are interdicted from conferring sacred orders; by which virgins consecrated to God are prohibited from admitting other women into their institutions; and by which lay chaplaincies and other pious institutions are to be com-pletely secularized."

The protests presented against these measures had, he says, been disregarded by the Spanish government, and some bishops who had opposed them had been forci-bly removed from their diocesses. He had therefore deemed it necessary to order his

ty and rights, against us and the authority of the Holy See; and especially we deeply deplore our solemn concerdat violated in defiance of international law; the authority BY THOMAS LORING-EDITOR and PROPRIE of the bishops prevented in the exercise of the sacred ministry; the violence employed against them; and the patrimony of the The execution of the Convent law pro | church usurped in spite or all Divine and authors of all these audacious acts, and we not escape the hand of the Almighty,'
