MISCELLANY.

DEFECTIVE HEARING-("IN A PIG'S

EYE.") There is a certain red-faced, jolly individual, formerly, as he says, commander of the scow boat "Ina Pigsi," whose innate sure. love of fun and ardent devotion to the bottle has brought him many times under the official cognizance of the Police Justice of the Third District. An uncompromising hater of Dutchmen, and an enthusiastic. perservering, and ingenious practical joker. his unconquerable propensity, to play off his one sided jests upon his Teutonic victims, has made him well known in the neigborhood; and these peculiarities, added to his love of alcoholic stimulants, have not unfrequently got him into trouble so serious as to call for judicial interference. He was never known to lose a chance to crack a malicious joke on a Dutchman, or let slip an opportunity to get dronk on those detestable beverages known to the initiated by the alluring names of "stone fence" and "chain lightning." He rejoices in the appellation of William Barlow, and is of course always called Billy Barlow, but whether or not the identical individual of tattered wardrobe celebrated in song, this deponent saith not.

Whenever an unlucky spree, or an unusually serious joke upon some unfortunate German brings him before the Court, he resorts to some novel and ingenious expedient to shun the wrath to come. He has successfully feigned insanity, counterfeited been tried successfully by Physician , and found sickness, begged off on account of a death in his family, and once got permission of impervious to water, assimilating most perfectly the officer to step across the street to redeem his only coat from a pawnbroker, and ears of children, and for abrasions f almost when he slipped round the corner and in- every kind, and as a dressing in surgical operacontinently vanished.

He was brought up this time for being drunk and pouring dirty water into a Dutch-man's pickle-barrel, after having kept him ble as a medicinal remedy. For sale by the Pro-prietors, C. & D. DuPRE. awake all night by throwing paving stones prictors, on his roof, and rolling empty barrels into his cellar-way. The same man said that last week Billy started an alarm of fire, ran for engine 97, conducted the company to his house, and flooded his whole establishment, half drowning his wife, and sending all his floating furniture on little experimental voyages through the lower rooms.

On being brought before the Court, Billy shammed deaf-no question, however loud ly shouted by the Judge, or roared by the Clerk, would be hear a word of. He was, however, always ready with an answer, which he generally contrived to render as irrelevant and foreign to the subject as possible, and at the same time, when he did touch upon it, so constructed as to throw all the blame of the affair upon the unoffending German.

Judge-What is this complaint against made Mr. Barlow?

Victimized German-Please your honstones so noise, dat I cannot shleep. He limore never have the Rechandize from Bal. stones so noise, dat I cannot shleep. He timore, per schr. Exchange. Aug. 13th, 1855, come to mine house all day, he scares mine marked J. C. Huggins. Stored and advertised vrow, he makes mine children to cry de water from dere eyes; he gets drusted for mine lager, and den at night he blows mine pig up mit gunpowder, and puts de water in mine sauer kraut so he schmell worse as Judge--Mr. Barlow, what have you to say to this?

Billy, who had been regarding the Court with great apparent attention, and with his hand behind his ear, evidently doing his utmost to catch the words of the Judge, here ing in so doing to tread on the Dutchman's | inal Fimily Grocery, Front street. toes; and hit his wife a dig in the ribs with his elbows, and, looking stendfastly at the Justice, without a smile on his face, repli-

I quite agree with your honor that he keeps bad liquor-his rum is horrible, his brandy enough to burn the bowels out of any human, his whisky is damnable, and even his lager beer tastes like a compound of aloes, soapsuds, turpentine, tallow, and attention Judge-I said nothing about anybody's liquor-Billy-Just so, he charged me just the same.

Clerk-What are you talking about? Billy-Di zactly, he tried to tell me the Judge-Have you been playing your jokes on this man or not? Billy-I told him the very same words that you did, your honor; you d-d old pot-bellied Dutchman, said I, go to the devil with your rum; you're a-Julige-Silencel-Billy-Bloody scoundrel, and-

Clerk-Stop your noise. Billy-The most contemptible villain in the world, and-

Clerk-Either I'm a fool, or-Billy-You know that as well as I do; or any other place. so said I again-

Clerk-Keep still. Billy-Shut up your black mouth! If you dare open it again-Judge-I'll commit you for contempt. Billy-I'll break your jaw with this boot-

Judge-It's no use, I shall send you to Billy (to the Dutchman)-You hear what his honor says?--you've got to go to the tombs. Now you see the censequences of interfering with a respectable man. Good bye, Hans; I'll take care of your wife until you come out. I'll forgive you this time for being a Dutchman, if you'll promise not to do so again. (To the Judge) -Please the Court, let me speak for Dutchy. I don't bear malice against him; let him more than three months, and don't make 12 kegs do do do. off easy, your honor; don't send him up for him work too hard. Judge-1 shall fine you $10, Billy, for being drunk and disturbing the peace.

I'll get you off yet. Billy here took the German into a corner, and in five minutes succeeded in con-cape at even that rate. Billy now addressed the Judge. At any time your honor may have leis-
