From the London Quarterly Review SOME ODD ADVERTISEMENT. . The papers are full of minor pit falls, into which the unwary are continu ally falling, sometimes with their eyes wide open. Of the latter class are the matrimonial advertisements; here is a specimen of one of the most artful of its kind we ever remember to have seen :

TO GIRLS OF FORTUNE-MATRI-MONY .- A bachelor, young, amiable, handsome, and of good family, and accustomed to move in the highest sphere of so- sterling, to any one who will obtain for the ciety, is embarrassed in his circumstances. Marriage is his only hope of extrication .his friends. Ingratitude was never one of N. B .- The witticisms-cockney scribbles deprecated.

The air of candor and the taking portrait of the handsome bachelor, whose very poverty is converted into a charm, is cleverly assumed. An announcement of a much less flattering kind, but probably of a more genuine and honorable nature, was published in Blackwood some time ago, which we append, as, like Landseer's Dog pictures, the two form a eapital pair iliustrative of high and low life :

MATRIMONIAL ADVERTISE-MENT.—I hereby give notice to all un sequent escape of a fugitive slave. married women, that I John Hobnall, am at this writing five and forty, a widower, ed Jacob Green, belonging to a Mr. Parsons, and in want of a wife. As I wish no one residing in Romney, Hampshire county, good sterling woman would be preferred, who would take care of the pigs.

. The more curious advertisements which from time to time appear in the public journals, but particularly in the Times, do not admit of classification; and they are so numerous, moreover, that if we were to comment upon one tithe of those that have appeared within these last six years, stringing together the following very odd

PROSPECTUS OF THE.

N. C. CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. THE North Carolina Annual Conference of the Mathodist Episcopal Church Stath, having determined to issue a weekly paper bearing the above name, the subscribers are authorized to issue this prospectus.

It is intended to publish a family newspaper, which, while it shall be religious in tone and sentiment, and maintain the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Church, shall be devoted to all trainferests of North Carolina, and furnish intelligence for every class of readers. In size and appearance the new periodical is to be equal to any of our Church papers, while it will surpass them all in adaptedness to the wants of our people. The entire insufficiency of the existing "Advocates" to the necessities of our position forces us to the publication of our own paper, and we confidently expect the hearty co-operation of the Members of our Church in all parts of the State and Conference, and hope to make the paper so interesting and instructive as to attract patronage from the public generally.

The "Advocate" will be published at $1,50 a year and the first number will be issued as early as practicable after the next Session of our Conference. It is believed that the publication will desirable that as large a subscription as possible be obtained before the Conference and the Minis ters and all others interested in the enterprise are respectfully urged to secure and forward the names and address of subscribers, particular attention being paid to correctness in writing the names of persons, post offices and Counties.—
Those who may have no opportunity of subscribing through the agency of our Ministers may write directly to Rev. Wm. E. Pell, Fayetteville,

The payment will be expected upon the issue of the first number. The location of the publishing office will be determined at the Session of Conference.

MISCELLANY.

A NEGRO STEALER TARRED AND FRATH

HE MANNER IN WHICH THE COAT IS APPLIED A correspondent of the St. Louis Demo crat gives the following account of punish ing a negro stealer in Parkville, Mo., unde the code of Judge Lynch. The man' name was Atkinson, and he was declared guilty by a committee of citizens of at tempting to run off with a mulatto slave girl. After the decision of the extra judi cial court had been rendered, some of the committee went for tary others for a bag of feathers; the rest stood guard before the office door. Tar enough was brough to besmear the entire population of Park ville, and feathers sufficient for at least 1

'Now,' said Capt. Wallace to Atkinson Now, stranger, to save trouble, off with your shirt.

With imperturbable coolness, and with out opening his lips, the prisoner doffed his linen and flannel. As he wore neither vest nor coat, this ceremony was soon concluded. 'He's obedient,' said one of the crowd

'it's best for him." 'He's got off too d-d easy,' said an-

'That's a fact,' said a third. By this time the prisoner was naked from the loins upward. 'Come out here,' said Capt. Wallace

Messrs, Bird and Hughes then cut two paddles-sticks about a yard long, and broad at one end-and proceeded slowly (amid the laughter and jests of the crowd, which Atkinson seemed neither to see nor care for,) to 'lay it on,' at least half a neck. As he was besmearing Atkinson' cheeks, one of the operators jocularly ob served that he was touching up his whi kers,' which of course produced great me riment among the crowd. All this while

'You are doing it up brown,' said a voice to the operators, flatteringly. 'Yes, sur,' said one of the operators with a laugh, as he took hold of the bag of feathers and threw a handful on the prisoner's back. 'Pour them on,' suggested a spectator.

'No, it's better to put them on in handfuls,' said a voice. Messrs. Bird, Hughes, Boyden and Sam-uel Johnson then took hold each of the end of two long poles, which they placed so as to form an extempore St. Andrew's 'Serves the d-d scoundrel right,' replied his companion. 'He ought to be hanged,' rejoined the first voice. 'Me's very right to do as he's bid,' said a person near the prisoner, as Atkinson calmly put his legs over the poles and sat

The four citizens named then raised him in the air-placing the end of the poles on the street, which was thronged with peo-ple, down to the wharf and back.

Just as the grotesque procession, amid shouts of laughter, ironical remarks, and other indications of popular opinion, reached the wharf, the steamer Martha Jewett arrived there. I boarded her, and when I landed again found that the procession had changed into several circles of talkers, the poles had disappeared, and the prisoner in his gratis habiliments with them. He left

Parkville that evening. THE SHORTEST WAY. Some twelve years ago, Napoleon, (Indiana,) was celebrated for two things, one for the carousing propensities of its citizens, and the other for the great number of crossroads in its vicinity. It appears that an Eastern collector had stopped at Dayton to spend the night and gain some information respecting his future course. During the evening he became acquainted with an old drover who appeared well posted as to the geography of the country, and the col-lector thought he might as well inquire in regard to the best route to different points to which he was destined. 'I wish to go to Greenfield,' said the collector; 'now which is the shortest

'Well, sir,' said the drover, 'you had better go to Napoleon, and take the road leading nearly north."

The traveller noted it down. Well, sir, if I wish to go to Edinburgh?' Then go to Napoleon and take the road Well, if I wish to go to Vernon ?

'Go to Napoleon and take the road south-'Or to Indianapolist' added the collector, eyeing the drover closely, and thinking he was being imposed on.
'Go to Napoleon and take the road north-

West? The collector looked at his note book; exery direction had Napoleon on it; he be-gan to feel his mettle rise, and he turned once more to the drover with-his head, and after a moment's hesitation,

Well, my dear sir, I don't know of any shorter road you could take than to go to Napoleon.'

GOOD MOTHERS. What is wanting, said Napoleon, one day, 'Mad. Campae, in order that the youth of France may be well educated?' Good mothers,' was her reply.

Would be a simple matter for each congregation or person,—thinking such a monument due,—to forward without ceremony a contribution to Mr. Whitehead, the acting Mayor of Norfolk, and the papers would acknowledge the receipt.
