MISCELLANY.

A correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, writing from Shanghai, gives some interesting information in regard to the vital statistics of the Chinese. These, he says, have not attracted the attention, in the United States, which they deserve. The discovery of gold mines in California or Australia is not a small matter: but should mines of gold be compared with millions of men? Its "living souls" -its men, women and children give a country its power. The lack of moral worth among the Chinese is compensated by its numbers. Low as is their condition compared with that of European nations, it is commanding, when viewed with that of their immediate neighbors. Materials for examination of vital statistics in China are abundant. In the present distracted condition of the country, the greater part of the State papers is wholly devoid of truth. For information, then, we must turn to a different class of writings which corresponds to the histories of townships in the United States. Every community has its own Tung Chi, as these histories are called. From one of these, which embraces the statistics for the whole empire, it is found that in 1710 the population was estimated at 23,000,000 This estimate is un-doubtedly too low. The census taken in 1792 shows a population of upwards of 307,000,000. In 1812, we find the population has risen to 360,000,000 in the eighteen provinces This was the period of the Chinese Empire's highest prosperity; yet, notwithstanding this prosperity has given place to direct confusion, it cannot be but that the above number has been swelled to 400,000,000. In a commercial point of view, China presents one of the most inviting fields in the world. Its people are a nation of traders, barterers and salesmen. Free intercourse with 400,000,-000 of people is a matter of moment, and may well be so considered by the United States. There are, too, things religious,

Our benevolent enterprises first gained a footing in China in the year 1829; as for scientific pursuits-such as the investigation of the country's natural products and the surveys of the coast-not a begin-political, scientific, as well as commercial, which should not be disregarded. This intercourse is yet to be secured. Very few, in America, are aware of the exceedingly narrow limits prescribed to their countrymen in the "Celestial Empire."-

American commerce with China dates back only to 1784, when the ship Empress ly, then, and for a long time after, was opened to commerce; and it is now rening has been made. The writer thinks that for the United States to place a naval force of twenty vessels on the China coast-with a view to the introduction and regulation of a free intercourse with these millions of menwould be like putting money into the bank at the largest interest.

"A PIECE OF HER MIND."

In the Baton Rouge Advocate we find the following peppery communication from. the advocate says, "a young and handsome widow, who sometime since discarded the weeds of woe." It appears that three young gentleman of that town had published card, which the widow chose to consider in some degree personal. Her letter is a mo-del in is way:

BATON ROUGE, January 10. Eds. Advocate: I gave you credit for posin giving publicity to the impertinent card of the "Trio Bachelors," copied into your columns vesterday from that worthless six by nine sheet known as the Baton Rouge Comet; but I regret to say that I have heretofore over-estimated your characters, [oh, scissors!] and hasten to alter my judgment to suit the circumstances. But it is with neither you nor the upstart editor of the Comet I wish to deal, but that worthy and henceforward notorious three pettilogging limbs of the law, who parade themselves for sale in the advertising colums of a newspaper, to the highest bidder, as though sensible wo-men—"widows and old maide" included could not better invest the sums mentioned as necessary to purchase them, in stock, cat tle, horses, hogs, sheep, or Mr. Editor, even a drove of Kentucky mules for plantation purposes. These graceless sprigs of impertinence are well-known to the writer hereof, who would advice all heiresses of a speculative turn to invest in Nicaragoa land scrip if they wish to run a risk, but if they wish to make dead loss a certainty, let them turn sap-heads of "Magnolia Retreat." A WIDOW. Yours. &c.,

"Can you take off my "baird" here?" said a grave, tall, slab-sided Yankee to an Albahead then." While the barber was rasping three cents worth from his bhin, his "sitter" saw an assistant putting cologne upon a customer's hair, through a quill in the cork of a bottle. "Look o' here, squire." said the Yankee, "can't you squirt some o' that peppersarse onto my head, tew? Say, can't you throw a little o' that in for the three cents ?

Some body has kindly undertaken to give the public something new in the dramatic Here is scene 1st, act 1st, of the new play : Scene street in front of the school house. Ragged boy munching a large green apple. Smaller ragged boy with trousers torn out behind, and dirty handkerchiel sticking out coming along: Boy with apple stops munching—'O. look a here," Ragged boy with the dirty handkerchief—Give me a piece of apple.' Boy with the apple—Shent do it.' Ragged boy with the handkerchiel—Ef you'll give me a bite, I'll show you my sore toe.'—[Exit omaes.]

A GOOD SUGGESTION. The Secretary of War, in his late Annu al Report, repeats a humane recommenda-tion heretofore made by him, that the same provision should be made for pensions to the widows of persons dying in the army service as for the widows of persons dying in the na y. The reasons of the discrimination hitherto made can only be found in

There are also two schools, Male and Female, that are in a flourishing condition. Conveniences of a substantial kind are prepared for those who are patronizing these schools, and the citizens of this place will continue to bestow kindness on those who are inclined to support them. UNFORTUNATE OCCURENCE.

We learn that a few days ago, a Mr. Horn, and a Mr. Green of this county, were making preparation at the house of Green for a deer-drive, when Mrs. Green was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of Horn's gun. He had placed the muzzle of his gun against she house, for the purpose of tightening the cap on the tube, when it suddenly fired.

Some three or four children were seriously wounded by the same discharge, but we learn that they are recovering.

This again demonstrates the importance of caution by persons handling fire-arms.

WHY THE GAS GOES OUT IN COLD WEATH-ER .- Mr. Douglass Secretary of the New York, Gas Regulator Company, writes a letter to the press to tell the public why the gas fails in cold weather, and the remedy herefor. He says; "Where the frost strikes the pipe, in crossing under iron gratings, from the sidewalk, or in alleyways, or any sailed from New York. A single port on-

MR. FILLMORE. -

A foreign correspondent of the Ledger alluded thus handsomely to this eminent statesman :--

"Nothing, indeed, can exceed the unostentatious carriage and simplicity of the American Ex-President on his whole journey through Europe. He goes and sees everything, yet nobody finds out who he is and what elevated station he occupied till UPHOLSTERS & PAPER HANGERS. he is gone. In Paris, while at the Hotel du Louvre, the landlord never knew his guest till some American had inquired for Ex-President Fillmore; and the same thing occurred in Marseilles, Nizza, Genoa and Leghorn. When the people learned who he was; there was considerable expressment and exacting nothing that is not usual with the most unpretending and unassuming gentlemen, he only leaves people with regret that they cannot show him some proof of their respect, or some attention corresponding with his station.

"Mr. Fillmore has now been in England, France, Prussia, Austria and Italy, and will have seen all Europe before he returns to the United States. He has everywhere been the unobserved observer of the poople and their institutions, and will return to the United States a better judge of European governments than the whole body of unfledged diplomats who are in a habit of sending abroad that they may become acquainted with court gossip and court manners, much to the detriment of their knowledge and usefulness in foreign parts. The manner in which Mr. Fillmore travels is the only one by which an American can really become acquainted with Europe and learn to love and cherish his own country. I hope to meet him again in Rome; and shall be delighted to pay him again that respectful homage to which his many private and public virtues, the true republican simplicity of his character, dered out great country, entitle him. What the fellow citizen of such a man!'

Devoted to News, Internal Improvement, Education, Agriculture, Manufacture & Com-WE know that the interests of the People of our State demand such a paper, and believing that one free from political strifes and quarrels of the day, devoted to such topics, will be the kind they desire, we confidently enter upon this enterprise with the assurance of meriting and meeting their approbation and support. Our object is to make the Times the mirror of the State, in which all can see their true interests held up and encour-

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS—To this subject we expect to devote as much space as a full statement of the various operations will require; for as our works of improvement advance, so do all the other interests of the State.

EDUCATION.—It is a source of regret to all interested in the Educational interests of our State, (and who is not?) that our papers are so much devoted to party politics, &c, that this great cause has been too much neglected; we propose, therefore, to devote to this subject, a portion at our space. We will foster and carefully note the advancement of Education, not only in our higher Schools, but siso in our Common Schools.
