POETRY.

TO HIM I LOVE. When panting it dropped in its hot stimmer bower ; If e'er to the peasant soft evening was dear, When his calm cottage home in the valley was near ; If ever the heather was sweet to the bee, Beloved 1 thy affection is dearer to me 1

If ever the eagle was proud of his might, As his eye met the sun in his heavenward flight ; If ever old ocean was proud of his waves, As foaming they rolled over brave seamen's graves ; If captives e're triumphed when ransomed and free, I am proud of thy truth-thy devotion to me.

If ever the exile on far foreign shore Sigh'd friendship's kind smile he might never see mo If e'er the sweet nightingsie walled in the grove, When she missed the soft call of her answering love, I pine for thy presence so blessed to me, And waste my young spirits in weeping for thee !

But still in my sorrow one ray pours its light, Like the nioon when it bursts on the darkness of night If ever the bow spanned in glory the heaven, If ever the bark through the blue deep was driven, If ever the summer brought calm to the sky, Our souls are unchanged in their faith till we die.

A GLEAM OF SUNSHINE IN AN OMNIBUS. We have been much impressed with the following simple anecdote in one of the New York letters of "Fidelus" to the any passenger out of the cars by force who Boston Transcript:

It was bitter cold the other night when I entered a Broadway omnibus that on the platform of the cars, (a very dangerpitched over the ice furrows like a ship ous position,) and refusing to enter the car in a gale; there were two handsome ladies, evidently on their way to Wallack's or the Varieties, with an assiduous beau a gruffy old gentleman, in one corner and a denure little woman in another; presently in jumped a little girl, with a red hood encircling her face, which wore a very grave and care-worn, vet eager look; she was enveloped, in from, for non-compliance. a large thick shawl that fell to her an-

cles; after looking intently at the face of every passenger, she put her hand beneath her shawl and struck up a most plaintive air on a harmonica concealed there; the two handsome ladies became interested, and their beau fumbled in his pocket; the demure little woman brightened up and smiled on the poor musician; the gruffy old gent untied his muffler and sighed; thus encouraged, the child suddenly began to sing a pen-

TENACITY OF LIFE IN A TORTOISE. A water tortoise in the possesion of Mr. J. G. Shute, of Woburn, Mass., an amateur Zoologist, has just died, after living in water two years and six months without food. It is believed that this reptile's wonderful tenacity of life, Redi, a distinguished Italian physician, kept one fasting eighteen months, and a land tortoise, in which he had removed its entire brain, lived and was active more than six mouths afterwards. MISCELLANY

From the Newbern Journal March 26. BEAUFORT HARBOR.

We are indebted to J. D. Whitford, Esq. President of the Atlantic & N. C. R. R company, for the following copy of a letcitities of Beaufort Harbour. We ask for property belonging to their own countrythe letter an attentive persual : BARQUE MELDON, BRAUFORT HARBOR, )

March 18th, 1856, DEAR SIR :

In answer to your note of this date making enquiries about the dimensions of this vessel, and requesting my opinion relative to the facilities of the harbor for ships of heavy tonnage, I have to inform you, that the Barque Meldon measures-length of keel 110 feet, breadth of beam 27 feet. depth of hole 17 feet, draft of water now with 550 tons rails on board, 16 1-2 feet.

With regard to the harbor, it is easy of access and affords shelter from all winds and the bottom is excellent for anchoring. In any ordinary time sailing vessels could enter the harbor drawing 18 feet; with the assistance of steam tugs, Vessels might cross the bar drawing 19 feet with perfect safety. .

It gives me pleasure to say as this is my first visit to the coast of North Carolina, that the representation abroad about Beaufort Harbor, does it great injustice, and I was most agreeably disappointed. The bar and harbor are unexceptionable-the Pilots on the coast are polite & competent and obtained without difficulty. I shall return to England and endeavour to get another cargo of Mr. Stanly's rails, for I acts passed by the General Assembly to know of no place I would sooner sail from, provide more effectually for the protection than the Port of Beaufort. of the slave interests of the State. Agents than the Port of Beaufort.

- I am with much regard,

Yours, GEO. JOHNSON.

REMARKABLE CASE OF ABSTINENCE FROM FOOD.

We learn from the Rockingham (Va.) Register that Samuel Henly, who resides about two and a half miles from Spartapolis, in Rockingham county, has totally betained from food for fifty seven days ! and he may yet survive several days. For some time he has been in a rather melancholy mood, and about two months ago he refused to eat, and since that time has not taken anything except water; and strange to say, he is still alive, though reduced to a mere iskeleton. Neither physicians for friends can induce him to take any nourishment. - He declares he can swallow

Boston Trav. FARMING IN TEXAS .-- Small farming is a good business in Texas. The Houston Star says that a gentleman some years ago bought a small farm in that vicinity on a credit. He was then over 50 years of age and in bad health, and had a family of some half a dozen children to support. This gentleman has paid for his farm, and now makes annually over $1,000, with no other aid than that afforded by his own family. Those who expect to do likewise, however, must calculate upon hard work and strict economy.

Burning New York, a Boston editor argues, would de no great achievement for the English. It is no more than the ter from Capt George Johnson of the Bar- New Yorkers do themselves once in five que Meldon, (recently arrived in Beaufori years; and when the English should Harbour with a cargo of railroad iron) to have destroyed that village, they would reply to a note from Mr. Whitford making have the satisfaction of knowing that certain inquiries in regard to shipping fa- they had burned $100,000,000 worth of men.

WHY IS PORTSMOUTH FORTIFIED.

The formidable defensive works in course of construction at Portsmouth, (England) have excited the surprise of some of the Paris journals, and the Assemblee Nationale

"If even the approaching conclusion of a peace is not quite assured, it may be demanded in the face of what danger these works are now being constructed ? Assuredly, the Russian squadron now buried in the harbor of Sevastopol was never a menace to the British coast, and the two remaining Russian squadrons which still float at Cronstadt and Helsingfors have shown that their ambition wisely consists in defense and not in attack. A war between England and the United States-a war which is by no means probable, notwithstanding the passing difficulties of the moment-would in no case expose the powerful squadron of Great Britain to be braved in their ports by the American navy. It is in vain that we search for the enemy against whom it is now a question of defending Portsmouth." IMPORTANT TO NEGRO STEALERS. We publish to day one of the series of

of the 'underground railroad,' and especially the negro-loving skippers of Yankee vessels frequenting the waters of Virginia, should give this law a careful perusal.

One of the sections of this Act provides that any free person concerned in the esthat any free person concerned in the es-cape of a slave from that State, shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than five or more than ten years; the jury, at its discretion, may also condemn the offenits discretion, may also condemn the offen-

If the person so offending shall at the time be in command of, or attached to a vessel, the same shall be forfeited to the Common wealth. — Rickmond Whig.
