MISCELLANY.

THE DOMESTIC RELATION AND PRIVATE LIFE OF A LION.

Let us sketch the story of the lion's life, beginning with his marriage, which takes place towards the end of January. He has first to seek his wife; but as the males are far more abundant than the females, who are often cut off in infancy, it is not rare to find a young lady pestered by the addresses of three or four gallants, who quarrel with the acerbity of jealous lovers. If one of them does not succeed in disabling or driving away the others, Madam, impatient and dissatisfied leads them into the presence of an old lion, whom she has appreciated at a distance. The lovers fly at him with the temerity of youth and exasperation. The old fellow receives them with calm assurance, breaks the neck of the first with his terrible jaw, smashing the leg of the second, and tears out the eye of the third. No sooner is the day won and and the field clear than the lion tosses his mane in the air as he roars, and then crouches by the side of his lady, who, as a reward for his courage, licks his wounds caressingly. When two adult hons are the rivals, the encounter is more serious.

An Arab perched in a tree one night, saw a lioness followed by a tawny lion with a full grown mane; she lay down at the foot of a tree, the lion stopped on his path and seemed to listen. I he Arab then heard the distant growling of a lion, which was instantly replied to by the lioness unfuriously. The distant roar was heard approaching, and as he came nearer the lioness roated louder which seemed to agitate her husband, for he marched toward her as if to force her to be silent, and then sprang back to his aid post, roaring defiance at his distant rival. This continued about an hour, when a black lion made his appearance on the plain. The lioness rose to go toward him, but her husband guessing her intention, bounded toward his rival. The two crouched and sprang at each other, rolling on the grass in the embrace of death. Their bones cracked, their flesh was torn, their cries of rage and agony rent the air, and all this time the lioness couched and wagged her tail slowly in sign of satisfaction. When the combat ended, and both warriors were stretched on the plain, she rose and smelt them, satisfied herself that they were dead, and trotted off quite regardless of the uncomplimentary epithet which the indignant Arab shouted after her. This Gerard tells us, is an example of the con-

Our lion then is married, let us say. He want; but I finally said. is the slave of his wife. It is she who alstoops. On arriving at the dowar (the collec'ion of tents-what we call a "village,") for their supper, she lies down while he leaps into the enclosure and brings to her the booty. He watches her while she eats, taking care that no one disturbs her; and not until her appetite is satisfied does he begin his meal. Toward the end of December, they seek an isolated ravine, and there she presents her lord with one, two, and sometimes three puppies, generally one at that time, and so I come away. male and one female. If the reader has ever seen or handled a puppy lion, he will understand the idolatry of mother and father, She never quits them for an instant, and he only quits them to bring home supper. When they are three months old their weaning commences. The mother accustoms them gradually to it, by absenting for longer periods, and bringing pieces of mutton carfully skinned. The father, whose habitual demeanor is grave, becomes fatigued with the frivolus sports of children, and for the sake of tranquility removes his lodging to a distance, within reach, however, to render assistance if required. At the age of four or five months, the children follow their mother to the border of the forest, where their father brings them

At six months old they accompany their father and mother in all noctural expeditions. From eight to twelve months they learn to attack sheep, goats, and even bulls; but they are so awkward they usually wound ten for one they kill; it is not till they are two years old that they can kill a horse or bull at one bite. While their the present Emperor was born, and it is education is thus in progress, they are ten times more ruinous to the Arabs, since the family does not content itself with killing the cattle required for its own consumption, but kill that the children may learn how to ple. kill. At three years old the children quit home and set up for themselves, becoming fathers and mothers in their turn. Their places are occupied by another brood. At eight years old the hon reaches maturity, and lives to thirty or forty. When adult he is a magnificent creature, very different in size, aspect, color and disposition from the lion to be seen in the menageries and zoological gardens-animals taken from ty. From thence he did nothing but desthe mother's breast, bred like rabbits, de prived of the fresh mountain air and ample nourishment. As an indication of the size attained by lions in a state of nature we may cite the fact mentioned by Gerard, that the strongest man in the cavalry regiment to which he belonged, was unable to carry the skin and head of the lion Gerard

THEATRICAL SELL.

A green-horn at the Memphis Theatre, who had never witnessed a minic conflagration on the stage, was present a few evenings since at the performance of Theit to be real, was surprised at the insensiceived with great applause, when, with a good-humored air, he looked around him time had become impatient for his return,

The Astor Library is an institution of which any city or country might well be proud. Its vast size; its immense collection of volumes; the imposing appearance, internally and externally, of vails within, illustrated only by the turning of leaves, or the subdued voice of a these will strike the visitor most impres-

Stepping into a restaurant recently, to take "a half dozen roasted in the shell," we overheard a dialogue, touching the Astor Library, which made us laugh half the night, and yet we doubt whether the reader will appreciate it; and yet we are sure he would if he had heard it as we did.

One of the speakers was from the country-a dry goods merchant-the other a metropolitan, who first spoke:

"Yes, considerable."

"Where you been?"

"Well, I went to hear Burton-furny dog, he is !-went to the opery-didn't understand it-went to the Bowry-saw three men and one woman killed in five der the free This made her husband roar minutes, and saw 'em all, every one of 'em, again in the next piece, alive and kicking."

NAPOLEON III.

Louis Napoleou Bonaparte, the present Emperor of the French, was born on the 20th of April, 1808, at the Tuilleries. His mother was Hortense, Queen of Holland, the wife of Napoleon's brother Louis, to 5()() CASKS in extra order, for sale by whom that kingdom had been assigned .-The marriage of Hortense and Louis was most unfortunate; they did nothing but quarrel, and in September, 1807, they finally separated at Amsterdam, and Hortense returned to her mother in Paris. There remarkable that he and the King of Rome were the only two persons of the family of Napoleon whose births were received with military honors and the homage of the peo-

There is one circumstance connected with the fate of this family which historians have not as yet observed, but which is well worth mention. Napoleon the Great set aside his own best friend and councillor, to obtain an heir to the throne of France. He married a Princess of Austria, and by her he had a son. That birth was the culminating point of his power and his dignicend. He died in exile--his son also.-Who succeeded to his name, his fame, his power? The child of Hortense, who was the child of Josephine! In the person of the Emperor of the French, we find not the offspring of Napoleon the Great, but the offspring of his discarded wife. What an illustration of the truth of the adage-"That it is man who proposes but God who dis-

"HE HAS TAKEN ME OFF." One evening, in London, Martin Madan was sitting in a coffee house with some of his gay companions. At a loss for amuserese, in which the house of the heroine is ment, they proposed to him to go and hear supposed to be consumed. He, supposing Mr. Wesley, who was preaching in the neighborhood, and to return and "take him bility of the audience at the danger, and, off." As he entered the place, Mr. Wesspringing to his feet, exclaimed: "By thun- ley was announcing with great solemnity der, I'm as brave as any of you, but I'll be this text, "Prepare to meet thy God." ## BALTIMORE LOCK HOSPITAL. DR. JOHNSTON.

THE founder of this Celebrated Institution of-fers the most certain, Speedy and only effectu-remedy in the world for Gleets, Strictures, Seminal Weakness, Pains in the Loins, Constitutional Debility, Impotency, Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Affections of the Kidneys, Paipitation of the Heart, Dyspapaia, Nervous Irritability, Disease of the Head, Throat Nose or Skin; those serious and melancholy disorders arising from the destructive habits of Youth, which destroy both body and mind. Those secret and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the song of the Syrens to the mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage, &c., impossible.

YOUNG MEN.

Especially, who have become the victims of Solita-SECRET DISEASES.

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence. Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London; graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever knowns Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervoueness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashfuiness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

A CERTAIN DISEASE A CERTAIN DISEASE. When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the scode of his painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shaine, or dread of diseavery, determined from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat diseased nose, noctural pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, r on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commisseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings, by sending him to the services of the nose fall to the nose fall ferings, by sending him to "that Course from whence no traveller returns." To such therefore, Dr. Johnston pledges himself to preserve the most inviolable secresy; and, from his extensive practice in the first Hospitals of Europe and America, he can confidently recommend a safe and speedy cure to the unfortunate victim of this horrid disconnection. case. It is a melancholy fact, that thousands fall victims to this dreadful complaint, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that deadly poison, mercury, ruin the constitution, and either send the unfortunate sufferer to an untimely grave or else make the send the constitution.

TAKE NOTICE.

It is with the greatest reluciance that Dr. JOHNETON permits his card to appear before the public, deeming it unprofessional for a physician to advertise, but unless he did so, the afflicted, especially strangers, could not fall to fall into the hands of the many impudent and unlearned Imposters, with innomerable Faise Names or condited Quackshops, swarming these large cities copying Dr. Jonuston's advertisements or advertising themselves as physicians, illiterate shallow-brained fellows, too lary towork at their original trade, with scarce too ideas beyond the brute, who, for the purpose of Entisting and Deceiving, carry on five or six offices, under as many different False Names, so that the afflicted Strangers, escaping one, is sure to tumble headlong into the other. Ignorant Quacks with enormous lying certificates of great and astonishing cures from persons not to be found, who kenyon taking large bottles of Liconics Warns and other packages of fifthy and worthless compounds, cumingly prepared to impose upon the unfortunate and unsuspecting. Trifling month after month, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and, in despair, leaves you with ruised health, to sigh over your gailling disappointment.

It is this motive that induces Dr. J. to advertise, ron as at a case Can cure for. To those unacquainted with his reputation, he deems it necessary to say that his creden tials or diplomas atways hang in his office.
