MISCELLANY.

IMPORTANT FROM SOUTH FLORIDA. Destruction of Fort Meyers by Fire--Battle between Volunteers and Indians.

The following intelligence has been received by the New York Tribune by letters from Fort Myers to June 24. It is of considerable importance, as denoting the resolve of the savages to continue hostilities, notwithstanding the campaign has been closed, and all the troops withdrawn from the field. By them it also has accounts of the destruction of Fort Meyers (an important post situated on the Caloosahatchee, about 33 miles above Fort Myers) by fire: "Fort Myers, Saturday, June 21, '56. "Last Friday, the 18th instant, Fort Meyers was almost destroyed by fire, which caught accidentally, in consequence of a spark from a lighted pipe catching to the palmetto thatching on the roofs of the barracks. The flames spread rapidly, and before long, the hospital, barracks, stables, sutler's store and government storehouses were burned. All the clothing was destroyed, and the constant popping off of the loaded guns in the quarters prevented any effort on the part of our men to save much. Happily no one was hurt. Louis, the sutler, lost about $2,000 worth of goods. The United States Steamer Ranger, went up yesterday with carpenters, provisions, &c., for the sufferers. The fire occurred in the evening at eight o'clock. The soldiers lost much of their hard earned savings, and it is to be hoped that Congress will remunerate them for their losses. So intense was the heat that gold watches and even an iron bedstead were melted down."

By another letter we have accounts of a severe engagement between a detachment of Florida volunteers and the Seminoles, which resulted in the defeat of the former, not, however, without considerable loss on the part of the Indians. The following is the account: "Fort Myers, Monday evening, June 24, 1856. "A schooner from Tampa brings the startling intelligence this evening, that the volunteers have had a fight with the Indians, on the 14th or 15th instant, at Poase Creek, not far from the mouth of White's Creek. There were about twenty-five of the volunteers, under Capt. Hooker. They (of the volunteers) were repulsed from a hammock which they attacked, with the loss of two killed--Howell and Pierce--and Hollingsworth dangerously wounded, and a number of others slightly so.

At Fort Green John Parker, and a man named Regidecht, were killed by the savages. "Letters to Lieut. Benson, at this post, state that the Indians first attacked a farm house and killed a man, and were pursued by the volunteers until they came to this hammock. Here the Indians made a stand, and commenced taunting the whites with such expressions as these--"Come out, you cowards; you dare not fight us;" which so irritated them that they dashed in and a fight ensued. They say several Indians were killed--perhaps as many as nine. One certainly was, for they brought the corpse of an Indian away with them, and several are said to have fallen into the river. It is also said that As-sun-wah, the great orator of the nation, is the one killed, which would be a most happy occurrence, if true, for he is a most determined enemy to peace. I will give you fuller particulars by the next mail. This is all I can obtain at present.

"P. S.--On the 13th instant a house about two miles from Fort Meade was attacked by Indians, and Wm. Parker, Alderman Carlton, and Spot Whitten were killed. There is no further news."

ANECDOTE OF A SLEEP WALKER.

During the Revolutionary War there was a gentleman of large property residing in Brooklyn who was addicted to the habit of walking in his sleep. Paucity-struck at the invasion of the enemy he daily expected that his dwelling would be ransacked and pillaged. Under the influence of these fears, he rose one night, and taking a strong-box which he never attempted to lift without assistance, he proceeded down stairs, furnished himself with a lantern and spade, and in a deep wood-glen about a quarter of a mile from his house he buried his treasure, carefully replacing the sods, so as to create no suspicion of their having been removed. This done, he returned, depressed, and went to bed. Next morning he was first to discover the loss of the strong-box without having the slightest remembrance of what had passed. Enraged at his loss, he immediately accused his domestics of robbery, as no traces of violence were perceptible on either the locks or doors of his house that could induce him to suspect strangers. Month after month elapsed, and still the mystery was not solved, and his family began to want the necessities of life, without having the means of procuring them.

At that period of public calamity, no money could be raised on real estate, and it was at that season of the year when agricultural labor had ceased, which left him no means of earning a support for his family. To augment his misery, his only son lay confined by a violent fever, without any one of those comforts which his situation demanded. The despairing father was strongly affected by this melancholy view of the future; his rest became more frequently broken, and he would often wander from room to room all night with hurried and unequal steps, as if pursued by an enemy. His wife and daughter, who were accustomed to these nightly wanderings, never attempted to disturb him unless they were fearful some accident would befall him; in this case it was necessary to employ the most violent means to wake him, upon which he would exhibit so much fear and distress that they usually suffered him to recover from the trance, which was succeeded by drowsiness, after which he would sink into a light and natural sleep, which generally continued for several hours.

One night as his daughter was watching at the couch of her sick brother, she heard her father descend the stairs with a quick step, and immediately followed him. She perceived he had dressed himself and was lighting a lantern at the hearth, after which he unbolted the door and looked out; he then returned to the kitchen and taking the lantern and the spade he left the house. Alarmed at the circumstance--which was not usual, though it sometimes occurred, as above related, without the knowledge of his family--she hastily threw on a cloak and followed him to the wood, trembling with apprehension of she knew not what, both for herself and her father.

Having gained the place where he had three months since buried the box, he set down the lantern so as to reflect strongly upon the spot; he then removed the sods, and striking the spade against its iron cover, he laughed wildly and exclaimed: "My treasure is safe, and I shall be happy." And shouldering his heavy burden with the strength of a Hercules, he stopped not, as before, to replace the sods or the earth, but snatching up his lantern pursued his way directly home, to the great joy of his daughter who could scarcely support herself from the fears she had experienced, which were that he was about to dig his own grave and commit suicide, or murder some of his defenseless family. Inexpressible, therefore, was her joy on seeing him ascend the stairs and place the box in the former recess; after which, as usual, he retired to rest. His wife and daughter, however, were too anxious to sleep themselves; the one sat impatiently watching the dawn of day, and the other returned to the apartment of her suffering brother, to relieve his mind by the joyful event and her consequent hope of his speedy recovery.

When the gentleman arose in the morning, his wife observed the gloom upon his countenance as he asked about the health of his son, and expressed his sorrow at not being able to procure those comforts for his family which were so much needed. Finding him perfectly unconscious of all that had passed the preceding night, she watched the effect which the restoration of the box would have upon his mind; and as she expected, with an astonishment amounting almost to frenzy he exclaimed: "Who has done this? Whence came the box?"

Not until he had listened to his daughter could he be convinced of the possibility of his performing such an act while asleep. Suffice it to say, that once more restored to his dwelling, and the result of this blessing had a salutary effect upon his mind; and although he still continued his midnight excursions, yet his friends were gratified to find them less frequent than formerly, and his future dreams also, to judge by appearances, seemed to partake of the mild, serene character of his thoughts.

PROSPECTUS OF THE "SOUTHERN SENTINEL."

A Democratic and Miscellaneous Journal, to be published weekly, at Wilson, N. C. The existing condition of political parties, and of particular note, naturally suggests the establishment of a journal as the "Southern Sentinel" proposes to become. The present, indeed, is a crisis in our political history, and we need a journal. The Constitution has been invaded; the laws trampled and spat upon; religious liberty assailed; the sacred rights of the citizen trampled upon; our political scenery partially effaced; the wisdom derived from a time-honored experience unheeded; strange and questionable men have been pushed into high positions; and fanaticism, unchained from its axe and its jagged pike, in the North, is heard to howl among us in the South. These evils, so far as humble abilities shall serve.

THE SOUTHERN SENTINEL. Will endeavor to arrest. It will endeavor to inculcate a reverence for the laws as they exist, and for the Constitution, as it has been interpreted by the wise men of the past and by the Fathers of the Democratic faith. It will defend not only political but economic liberty, and will do battle against every hatched scheme or calumny, or open conspiracy. The Sentinel will also, to relieve the monotony of politics, devote space to literary topics, original and selected, as well as to miscellaneous subjects, which shall include Agriculture and the latest Commercial intelligence. In brief, no efforts nor expense will be spared to make the Sentinel one of the most useful and efficient journals in the South. The first number of the Sentinel will be issued about the first of the next month, and sent to subscribers at the rate of $2 per annum; $2.50 at the end of six months, and $3 at the end of the year. Discount made in behalf of clubs, who shall take five, ten or more copies. J. F. KERNAN, Editor. 130-31

PROSPECTUS OF THE RAIL ROAD TIMES.

AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL.
Devoted to News, Internal Improvement, Education, Agriculture, Manufacture & Commerce.

WE know that the interests of the People of this State demand such a paper, and believing that no free from political strife and quarrels of the day, devoted to such topics, will be the kind they desire, we confidently enter upon this enterprise with the assurance of meeting their approbation and support. Our object is to make the Times the mirror of the State, in which all can see their true interests held up and encouraged.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.--To this subject we expect to devote much space as a full statement of the various operations will require; for as our works of improvement advance, so do all the other interests of the State.

EDUCATION.--It is a source of regret to all interested in the Educational interests of our State, (and who is not?) that our papers are so much devoted to party politics, &c., that this great cause has been too much neglected; we propose, therefore, to devote to this subject a portion of our space, and to carry on and encourage the advancement of Education, not only in our higher schools, but also in our Common Schools.

FUTURE, MANUFACTURE AND COMMERCE.--At this stage of our progress, we are commanding the attention of all our good State and money-loving citizens. Therefore, the Market will be kept in the Wilmington Free-house, to throw light on either of these inseparable branches of Industry, will be carefully gleaned and inserted every week.

It is unnecessary to say more if we had time, but the "whistle of the locomotive" on the East and the cheering notes of the steam whistle, call us to close. Permit us, however, to assure you that the first number of the Times will make its appearance about the time the cars reach this place from the East.

TERMS.--The Times will be printed weekly in Greenboro, N. C., on new material, and contain as much reading matter as any paper in the State, for $2 per annum in advance.

CIRCULAR.

A BOOK FOR EVERY SOUTHERN METHODIST.
Early in 1856, probably in the month of February, I expect to publish a new work to the particular features of which I beg leave to call your attention.

The Annals of Southern Methodism, for 1855, will be a 12 mo. volume of not less than 560 pages, well printed, from stereotype plates, upon good paper. It will contain all available statistics in relation to the progress of the Southern Methodist Church, and the progress of the operation of the various educational movements; a resume of our Missionary operations, embracing whatever seems of general interest in that department; the names of the Tract and Sunday School Societies; whatever appertains to our publishing interests, with an account of all the new books, tracts, &c., which are enclosed in 1856, the appointments, numbers, &c., a summary of all reported revivals, notices of the various churches, reports of College Conventions, with all other interesting educational movements; a resume of our Missionary operations, embracing whatever seems of general interest in that department; the names of the Tract and Sunday School Societies; whatever appertains to our publishing interests, with an account of all the new books, tracts, &c., which are enclosed in 1856, the appointments, numbers, &c., a summary of all reported revivals, notices of the various churches, reports of College Conventions, with all other interesting educational movements;
