MISCELLANY.

REVOLUTION THREATENED. After doing what it could to trample under foot a law of Congress, enacted for the express purpose of carrying into effect a stipulation of the National Constitutioneven exhorting the fugitive, if necessary. to shoot down the officer attempting to ar rest him-the "Independent," of this city. edited by a number of D D.'s, is advancing another step in the road to ruin, and talks of resolutionizing the country by force of arms, in case of defeat at the ballot boxes. Of course it does not, in so many words, recommend the measure, (for that might expose it to an indictment for treason.) but it is evidently preparing the minds of its readers for such an issue in a certain contingency. Well, if the attempt is made, we predict that the Black Republicans will be worse whipped on that tack than even at the ballot boxes. Says the Independent of July Blat :

"Should the Federal administration continue to employ the army and treasury of the Union in aid and defence of the Border Ruffians, the peaceful remedy will be in the hands of the people of the free States on the 4th day of November next for one day only. If they see fit to use their elective power for that purpose; the relief will be completed on the 4th of March next. We must bear what may befull in the interim. as we can-as the Providential consequence of past devotion to party. The people will not levy war, nor inaugurate a revolution, even to relieve Kansas, until they have first tried what they can do by woting. If this peaceful remedy should fail to be applied this year, then the people will count the cost wisely and decide for themselves boldly and firmly, which is the better way, to rise in arms and throw off a government worse than that of old King George, or endure it another four years, and then vote again."

The Independent is sustained in its treasonable outgivings by numerous other po liticians of the same Abolition Republican school For example, in this Republican Sectional Convention at Philadelphia, Gen. James Watson Webb, of the New York Courier and Enquirer, said, as reported in the New York Times ;

"Why, I ask, are we here? We are here because the country is in danger. We are here because a solemn compact, by which the curse of slavery was limited forever to latitude SO deg. 30 min, has been violently disruptured, torn asunder, and the elbows resting on their knees and their fa- eloquent. His opportunities of serving ces buried in their hands. Some had strug. gled forward, no doubt hoping to reach the airways and possibly escape.

When the report of the explosion was heard on the surface, it was too well apprehended what had occurred. Rumor says, hat for a day or two previously indications had been given of what was about to octur. "Blower," or casual explosions of gas, had taken place. Two door ways had been blown down only on the previous day, and there was too many reasons to believe from the quanity of electricity with which the air had been charged, that an ex-plosion of a more extensive nature might scouted the idea of using the term hartake place. This was toofully verified; and of the 200 coliers who worked in the Cymmer Colliery, more than one half were at a moment's notice swept into eternity. 116 from its mouth. The word in connexhuman beings went down into the pit of earth that morning and of that host only six returned alive. The screams of the wives and mothers at the mouth of the pit-those women congregated there to await and recognise the dead-as during the long interval that ensued between the period when the first ntelligence of the explosion spread on Puesday morning till the last body was but not before giving rise to debate by brought out on the morning of Wednesday, were frightful and distressing.

All day long the brave fellows who venured down, almost in the face of death to oring up the dead, sent up the bodies of the infortunate men and boys who had perished, and when these were brought to the surface the recognition of a beloved husand or darling child awoke harrowing ries. On Wednesday morning the 110th ody was brought out, and it was left to conjecture whether any still lay in the pit f death It was supposed, however, that all who had perished were now brought

Workmen were immediately put on to supply coffins for the dead There they were, working hastily with the saw and plane, to construct rude shells in which to leposit the unfortunate dead in their untimely graves, amid the crowds of eager people still waiting to see the last of the freadful calamity.

An inquest was opened on Wednesday, and adjourned for a fortnight.

Her Majesty's Inspecter of Collieries, Mr. Evans, is engaged in fully elucidating the facts.

Williams five o'clock. called occasionally, or whenever in his rounds he could make it convenient, to enjoy the society of his "family" and the caresses of his "loving wife." Thus all passed off happily, until one day last week a gentleman called on the lady, representing to the family with whom she was living that he was her lawful husband, demanded his child, the little, bright boy to whom we have referred. She blushed and fainted, but finally recovering selfpossession, assumed not to know the stranger-she had "never seen him before in her ife." The gentleman produced a daguerrectype of the lady and child, with other conclusive evidences of the truth of his statements. She finally made a clean breast, and confessed all-implored his forgiveness, offered to return with him to Seneca Falls, where they had formerly resided, and to be henceforth a dutiful wife. But the gentleman respectfully declined he was unmoved by her entreaties, he scoffed at her tears, and was inexorable in his demands for the child. She was obliged o yield, of course, and taking the little one Kansas being raised and discussed unwith him, he bade the faithless wife farewell and departed. She hurried away at he same time in pursuit of her paramour Williams, who was in an adjoining town cess. on his usual business tour. It appears that At the evening session political speech the husband left his home at Seneca Falls es were made by Mr. Cragin, of New about a year ago and went to New Orleans, tampshire, Mr. Underwood, of Kenwhere he had been engaged in business un tucy, and Mr. Leiter, of Ohio; and at til now. WASHINGTON, August 6, 1856 .- In the SENATE, upon the resumption of the question of an appropriation for the harbor at Dubuque, the bill was advocated by Messrs. Harlan and Jones, of Iowa, and opposed by Messra. Clay bor, which meant a place of refuge for vessels, and certainly did not apply to a landing on a navigable river so far ion with Dubuque was a misuomer. Mr. Douglas also spoke in opposistion to the properiety of the appropriation, and cited facts of so much force as seemed to us to produce the defeat of the bill, which soon afterwards occurred. The bill to continue the improvement of the harbor at Michigan city was passed, Messis. Toombs, Stuart. Bright, and Seward. The harbor of Vermillion (Ohio) was favored by an appropriation of $43,000, some explanation by Messrs.

wade and Hunter. A greater portion of the day remaining was occupied with an appropriation for the improvement of the Ohio river to the amount of $200,-000, to which an amendment was prosed by the Committee on Commerce, substituting $90,000. An additional amendment also came under consideration, which was designed to exclude from the benefits of the contemplated appropriation the Louisville and Portland Canal. Many Senators participal in a discussion which was, to a great extent, historical in its character, among whom were Messrs. Hunter, Toombs, Pugh, Crittenden, Bright, Stuart, and Brown. Another appropriation was likewise the subject of debate-that for the harbor at Chicago, to the amount of $50,000. Messrs. Douglas, Trumbull,

Cass, and Dodge participated in it .--The last named Senator, an unfrequent debater, spoke with great earnestness in the ist of April, 343, under the direction of th

people of the North told 'you shall have this matter forced upon you' Now what are the people doing ? Our people, loving order and loving law, and willing to abide by the ballot box, come together from all parts of the Union, and ask us to give them a nomination which, when put fairly before the people, will unite public sentiment, and through the ballot box, will restrain and repel this pro-slavery extension, and this aggression of the slaveocracy. What else are they doing? They tell you that they are willing to abide by the ballot-box, and willing to make that the last appeal. If we fail there, what then? We will drive it back, sword in hand, and, so help m+ God ! believing that to be right, I am with them (Loud cheers, and cries of 'Good ') Now, then, gentlemen, on your action depends the result. You may, with God's blessing, present to this country a name rallying around it all the elements of the opposition, and we will thus become so strong, that through the ballot-box we will save the country. But, if a name be prosented on which we may not rally, and the consequence is civil w.r-yes, nothing more, nothing less, but civil war-l ask, then, what is our first duty ?"

These abominable sentiments were received by the Convention with "loud cheers and cries of good." And again he said, in the same speech,-

"On the action of this Convention depends the fate of the country; if the Repubhcane fail at the ballot box, we will be forced to drive back the slaveocracy with fire and sword." (Great applause.)

Hon. Erastus Hopkins, a member of the Convention, said-

"If peaceful means fail us, and we are driven to the last extremity where ballots are useless, then we'll make bullets effective. (Tremendous applaus.)

"It is the duty of the North, in case they fail in electing a President and a Congress that will restore freedom to Kansas, to revolutionise the government"- (Resolution of a Black Republican meeting in Wisconsin)

The candidate of these violent men is John C. Fremont. They tell the people of the United States that they must take him or revolution. They are going to try ballots, first, and if these do not succeed, then Bullets. Such is Black Rep blicanism, in one of its features. Some other devel opments of it we shall notice t.ereafter.
