From Chambers' Miscellany.

SKILL LEADS TO FORTUNE. It will be recollected that one of Sir Walter Scott's sayings was, that "Whatever might be said about luck, it is skill that leads fortune!" There can be no doubt of this as a general principle,-Few self-indulgent and apathetic men do well in any line of life. The skilful, the active, and steadily persevering. usually carry off prizes which turn up in the wheel of fortune. At the same time, something is due to circumstances, as well as to the Power which wisely controls human destiny. Practically, however, the thing to be borne in mind is-that the young are bound to exercise all proper means to secure improvement in their condition. That with a fair store of ambition, prudence and meritorious skill, it may be possible to attain a station of eminence—that is, "fortune," though, perhaps, not without correspon-ding responsibilities and cares—we present the following compendious list of distinguished men who rose from humble and obscure circumstances:

Esop, Publius Syrus, Terence and Epictetus-all distinguished men in ancient times—were serfs at their outset Protagoras, a Greek philosopher, was at first a common porter. Bleanthes, another philosopher, was a pugilist, and also supported himself at first by drawing water and carrying

The Professor Heyne, of Gottingen, one of the greatest classical scholars of his own or any other age, was the son of a poor weaver, and for many years had to struggle with the most depressing poverty. The efforts of this excelgreater and more protracted than those of any other on record; but he was finally rewarded with the highest honors.

Bandoccin, one of the learned men of the sixteenth century, was the son of a shoemaker, and worked for many years at the same business.

D Alembert, the French mathematician, was left at the steps of a church by his parents, and brought up by a poor woman as a foundling, yet arrived at great celebrity, and never forgot or abandoned his nurse.

Ammenius Sacophorus, founder of the Mystic Philosophy at Alexandria, was born in poverty, and originally earned his subsistence by carrying sacks of wheat-whence the latter part of his name.

Amyot, a French author of some cele brity for his version of Plutarch, lived in the sixteenth century, and was at first so poor as to be unable to afford oil or candles to assist his studies, which he had to carry on by fire-light; and all the sustenance his parents could afford him was a loaf of bread weekly.

SINGULAR CASE OF SPONTANEOUS COM-BUSTION.

The Concordia Intelligencer, of the 12th inst., relates the following :

Mr. V. O'Bryan, of this parish, informs us that a few days ago he painted some lowells with a mixture of white and black lead, linseed oil, and turpentine, for the purpose of making a waterproof covering for cotton, and during a rain he had it placed in a shed adjoining the gin house, where it had not remained two hours bethe grounds on Wednesday, the 15th, at 3 fore it was a spontaneous flame of fire. The lowells had been painted two days. Mr. O'B., says he smelled something burn ing some time before he discovered the fire, and had his gin stopped several times to examine the gudgeons, etc., thinking it was caused by friction, but discovering no signs of fire he examined elsewhere, and discovered the cause just in time to save the building from being consumed.

VALUATION OF BOSTON. The Assessor's valuation of Boston this year presents an aggregate of $248,000,000. The gain of valuation in the city since 1846, ten years ago, has been one hundred says the Traveller, is more than the entire valuation of either Maine, New Hampshire or Vermont.

VIOLENT TORNARO.

Sept. 19th gives an account of a tornado RECEIVED THIS MORNING;which on the previous Wednesday evening passed over the township of Winchester Mountain, &c., destroying fences, breaking trees, and unroofing barns and houses. The storm king committed some strange fantastics, and saw-logs of a large size were carried several rods, and in some instances split or otherwise broken. A large secure the advantage of the best location fat hog was carried twenty rods and then thrown so violently on the ground as to en hand at tear out his entrails.
