· APPETICAL DUN. Some friend has sent us, under a blank cover, a copy of the subjoined very clever and very practical jeud' esprit, addressed by his delinquent subscribers. We copy the urticle simply for the amusement of our readers; for as Mr Randolph used to say of his constituents, we have the best and hoblest set of subscribers that ever honored and sust fined a public journal They therefore as a body need no such ingenibus hime ut should there be found here and there an exceptional case, he is at lib erty to consider the Hiswathen appeal addressed to him .- Nat Int

Should you ask us why this dunning Why these sad complaints and mormurs Murmurs loud about delinquents Who have and the paper weekly. Read what they have never paid for, Read with pleasure and with profit, Read of church affairs and prospec's, Read of news both home and foreign Read the essays and the poems, Full of wisdom and instruction; Read the table of the markets, Carefully corrected weekly-Should you ask us why this dunning We should answer, we should tell you. From the printer, from the mailer, From the kind old paper maker, From the landlord, from the carrier From the man who taxes letters With a stamp from Uncle Samuel -Uncle Sam the rowdies call bim ; From them all there comes a message, Message kind, but firmly spoken, "Please to pay us what you owe us" Sad it is to hear such message When our funds are all exhausted When the last bank note has left us, When the gold coin all has vanished, Gone to pay the paper maker Gone to pay the toiling printer, Gone to pay the landlord tribute, Gone to pay the weekly carrier, Gone to pay the faithful mailer, Gone to pay old Uncle Samuel -Uncle Sam the rowdies call him-Gone to pay the Western paper Three and twenty hundred dollars! Sad it is to turn our ledger, Turn the leaves of this old ledger, Due for years of pleasant reading. Due for years of toilsome labor. Due despite our patient waiting Due despite our constant dunning Due in sums from two to twenty. Would you lift a burden from us ? Would you drive a spectre from you ! Would you taste a pleasant slumber? Would you have a quiet conscience ? Would you read a paper paid for ? Send us money - send us money, Send us Money-send us money; SEND THE MONEY THAT YOU OWE US!

Turn and see what sums are due us,

Due for volumes long since ended.

A ROMANCE OF LIFE IN NEW YORK THAT IS NO FICTION.

all centuries. But neither truth or fiction can paradel in meanness the act of Post of the 221 inst: A wealthy gentleman, whom we shall teen, upon whom his fondest hopes and warmest affections were centered, as the companion and solace of his widowed life. Circumstances requiring his frequent absence from the city, he had permitted his daughter to pass her weekly vacations from school with friends here, whom we shall call Mr. and Mrs. B., who resided up-town, in one of our tashionable neighborhoods.

The young lady became acquainted accidentally, with a young man, whom we shall call Mr. C., who also resided in this city. The beauty and fascinations of Miss A. captivated him, and Mr. C. became early in the morning, and in the plainest only two hundred men, and Murat a frequuent visitor at the house where manner. It took place at half-past 8 o'she passed her vacations—so frequent that Mr. B. felt it his duty to apprise Mr. A. of the circumstances, lest any responsibility of the consequences might

The three drove at once to a lawyer's office, where it was found that it would require some hours to prepare the papers, and it was agreed that the three should meet at the o'clock the next morning, at the same office, to sign the documents, the money meanwhile, being paid to Mr. C., and his word of honor given to execute the release.

At nine o'clock the next morning, Mr. C. drove to the door of Mr. B., inquired for Mr A. and demanded his wife! She, hearing of his being there, entered the room; and in the face of the violated agreement, the payment of the heavy forfeit, the agony of her desolate father, and the warning of her friends, went away with her husband.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD. We are indebted to the Home Journal for the following free translation of a suggestive passage from "Les Femmes," a recently published work of Alphonse Karr. It contains a world of wisdom, if the reader's philosophy can but find it out:

THE MURAP FAMILY.

The name R durat has been so frexuently mentioned recently in conection with possible events in Naples that a brief glauce at the history of his family will be found highly interesting .-It is alleged in some quarters that the Muratists constitute a considerable party in the Neapolitan dominions; while in others the existence of any such party is unreservedly denied. It is also alleged that Louis Napoleon clandestinely favors the pretensions of his cousin. But whatever may be the value of all the statements put torth in the public journals, we have not yet learned that the Prince who is surrounded by some distinguished enemies of the Bourbons of Naples, is truly indifferent to the progress of events in the Italian peninsula, although his claims to the crown of the Two Sicilies are certainly anything but legitimate. The life of his father, Joachim Murat of Naples, is one of the most extraordi nary in modern times, presenting a succession of those signal vicissitudes which occur only to the experience of tew men, conspiciously illustrating the danger which ever attends unsecreptable and constitutions and constitution of the experience of the men, conspiciously illustrating the danger which ever attends unsecreptable and constitutions and weldon, each trains between Wilmington and trains between Wilmington and trains between Wilmington and Weldon, each trains between Wilmington and Weldon, each trains be which ever attends unscrupulous ambition, as well as the instability of the grandeur and greatness which sometimes invest the path of the successful adventurer. A CERTAIN DISEASE. DR. JOHNSTON.

A CERTAIN DISEASE. When the misguided and improdent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ili-timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, diters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delayng till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerare sore throat, diseased nose, noctural pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafners, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head face and extremities, progressing with frightful ra-pidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commis-scration, till death puts a period to his dreadist suf-ferings, by sending him to "that better from whence no traveller returns," To such therefore, Dr. Johnston pledges himself to preserve the most inviolable secrety; and, from his extensive practice in the first flospitule of Europe and America, he can confidently recommend a safe and speedy cure to the unfortunate victims of this horrid disease. It is a melancholy fact, that thousands full victims to this dreadful complaint, owing to the unskillular case of the case.
