ting. He had a pistol in his hand, and floating in the current of prosperity, commenced loading it. He tried a ball and found it too small; Miss Shaw volunteered fitable and satisfactory to them, and wish to make to procure a "patch" for it. She did so .--The "patch" was not large enough and she procured another, and then the pistol was loaded.

Wood then said-"what shall I shoot ?"

Some one said-"shoot into the wood box." He replied-"I won't do that." Mrs. Clark exclaimed-"Don't fire in the house. If you are a going to shoot, go out of doors and do it. At this moment, Miss Shaw the impulse of the removal of the em- cried out, "If you want to shoot, shoot me, and shoot me so that I won't kick more than once !"

He turned towards het deliberately, and placing the muzzle of the pistol against her breast, fired ! 'The ball entered her body just below the heart, and she fell to the floor with a shrick.

Mits. Clark exclaimed in horror-"You have shot that girl | go and call the neighbors !"

Wood then took two letters from his pocket, and throwing them upon the floor, directed Mrs. C. to show them to the Coroner. He said nothing more and paid no attention to his victim, who was lying on the floor in an apparently dying state.

He commenced re-loading his pistol and Mrs. C. rushed from the house to alarm the neighbors. After she had proceeded a few rods, she heard another pistol shot, but ran The neighbors turned out, and on OH. reaching the house found Wood dead, he having shot himself directly through the beart.

Miss Shaw had recovered sufficiently to converse. She said she heard Wood breathe several times after he shot himself. She produced one of the letters that Wood threw upon the floor, and directed that it should be read if she died-if she did not, that it should be burned. A physician from Moravia probed the wound, and extracted from it the ball and a hook and eye that had entered it from her stays The ball evidently glanced off from contact with some resisting substance. Otherwise, instant death must have been the result. At daylight this morning Miss Shaw was still alive, but it was not believed possible for her to survive. She refused to con-
