"BE NOT WEARY IN WELL DOING." BY JOHN OF TRUAX.

"Be not weary in well doing," said a venerable and gifted lady to me, one even ing, in her own parlor, laying down the paper, and turning towards me, in her chatty, pleasant way; and she added : You are a lawyer; and may sometime be a judge. The caution is worth remem "I hope I shall always try to do as wel as I can," I replied.

"Yes; but that is not exactly my meaning. Here-suppose, for instance, you had caught a thief in your house; what would

My mind reverted to the skulking, filthy vagabonds of the Police Court; to their degraded, hopeless faces, and whimpering, false entreuties, and I said:

"I should not wish any revenge; but I would have him sent to prison for s long w term as I could procure, merely as a "Yes, yes; I understand," said the old lady. "I knew very well what your lawyer's view would be; but I've followed my own advice, in such a matter, before this. and I am thankful for it. I well tell you iny story, if you promise me not to repeat

I promised; which promise this permit ted publication, by the way, does not break.

"I noticed just now the great case of the heirs of Dougherty against the City of Cincipal counsel for the defence."

"I know," I said, "and the defence carried the case, too; and a splendid argument that summing up of Tarlton's must have been, by all accounts. Is Tarlton the law. yer who gave you what you think bad advice? Why, there are not half-a-dozen country. You musn't set up a woman's notion against a leading lawyer's opin-

"Let me tell you," answered the old la dy, "that you can't easily have too much respect for a good "woman's notion," as you call it. But here's my story :

About fifteen years ago there was a public procession through the streets of this city, for the inauguration of the new Governor. The show was uncommonly brilliant; and I myself, with every remaining person in the house, was outside upon the front piazza. Wishing to wave my handkerchief along with the rest, I stepped int the house for it, having left it upon the sofa, when to my astonishment, I beheld a man in the front parlor, gathering the valunbles from the mantle and table. I scream ed ut pretty sharply, as you may imagine; and two or three women and Patrick, my sturdy Irishman, running in, we easily secured the thief in spite of his desperate struggles to escape. We tied him up pret-ty tight end locked him up in an upper room, while Put ran off for an officer. It was a long time before he returned; and while I was waiting, it occurred to me that I had noticed a certain air of good breeding about the features of the culprit, who was quite young; and that if he real.y were an unfortunate boy betrayed into a course of crime by circumstances, I could perhaps do a better deed by him than to deliver him over to the clutches of the law and the in fectious companionship of felons.

Pat returned, with the officer; and seeing the District Attorney, a good friend and acquaintance of mine, passing by at the moment, I asked him in to get his opinion. We went up stairs to our temporary jail and found the prisoner quite safe, and much fatigued with his exertions and with crying; for his lamentations seemed to have been profound and bitter. We talked with him for quite a long time. It appeared by his story that he was the son of respectable parents, and that he law by which they are to be governed; had been well trained and educated; that, therefore no law of Congres is by them however, being both proud and reserved. considered binding in any manner. and somewhat hasty withal, he had a few menths before had a difficulty with his fa oath-bound organization among all the ther, who seems to have been a somewhat male members of the church, and to acharsh and rough man, and not to have un knowledge no law save the law of the sterstood his son's character, reproved him "holy priesthood," which comes to the peowith great severity, and even threatened ple through Brigham Y ung, direct from corporal punishment; that upon the young God, he, Young, being the vicegerent of man's resenting this, his father had actual- God and prophetic successor of Joseph ty laid hands upon him, not precisely in Smith, who was the founder of this blind the way of chastisement, but in such wise and treasonable organization.

"Indeed I will," I answered warmly, "If one in a hundred were as good as that, I think I should be in favor of 'Women's Rights,' even to the ultra technical extent of having them for makers and administrators

"I suspect they don't lack much of their due influence," she said slyly. "But indeed, my young friend, the story may be worth remembering. Your profession tends in many ways to harden the heart and to cause distrust of all. But strive not to lose sight of any chance when reform and benificence may be substituted for punish ment; nor let any failure discourage you. Be not weary in well doing."

I very soon departed, but I have never forgotten the noble old lady's story, nor, I trust, wholly failed to practice its lessons.

RESIGNATION OF A U. S. JUDGE The Hon. W. W. Drummond, one of the instices of the supreme court of Utah Territory, has forwarded his resignation to Washington He thus sets forth his reas > Fifthly. That the federal officers of the territory are constantly insulted, harassed and annoyed by the Mormons, and for those insults there is no redress.

> Sixthly. That the federal officers are daily compelled to hear the form of the American government traduced, the chief executives of the nation, both living and lead, slandered and abused from the masses, as well as from all the leading members of the church, in the most vulgar, loathsome and wicked manner that the evil passions of man can possibly conceive. THE EXPLOSION OF A BOILER IN A PRINT-

> ING OFFICE The Indianapolis (Ind) Journal of Thurslay last, furnishes the following accout of the late explosion in the press room of the Sentinel of that city, which was briefly noted by telegraph a few days ago:

About a quarter past ten o'clock last night the new botter of the Sentinel office, which had just been put up, and was being tried for the first time exploded The office was in process of removal from the old location to the Capital House, which had een leased by the establishment, and a portion of the presses had been set in order, ready for work, and most of the cases had been removed The boiler was placed on the west side of the open court or yard it, for the first time, to try it.

The engineer and one or two others were dashed several of the men from the boiler 'oom into the press room, blew the boilerpart of the east wall of the wing, and let the floor of the two upper stories down, disaster we found the press room, on the und smoke. The wall that had not been blown down was forced a foot or two out of the p rpendicular, the floors all crushed into a mass at the bottom, with a portion of the boiler underneath, and worst of all the body of a boy, crushed and blackened, under the boiler. After a good deal of effort the heavy iron mass was removed, and a boy named Geo. Homan taken out horribly crushed, leaving home; did so; and-which in my and quite dead. Mr Randall, the foreman opinion was one of the truest proofs of his of the news room, was badly hurt, as was a boy named Fred. Mudbarger; also; Frank Schuyler, Jacob Lex. and a son of Mr. Doughty, one of the proprietors. None of these were dangerously hurt, we believe. A public meeting was called to afford relief to the proprietors of the demolished office. The loss is about $12,000.

Another account says: The fire had been made under the boiler a little over an hour, and no indications were seen that any unusual amount of steam had been generated. In consequence of some difficulty in the working of the pump, which was all the work the engine was doing, Mr. Vinton and Mr. Grazier were about opening the steam-chest to see what the matter was, as the pump was easily worked by hand. At this moment the explosion occurred. The boiler, those say who seem to have noticed most attentively, appeared to rise from its bed, and shoot upward with terrible force.
