CHRISTIANITY THE SOVERIGN STYPTIC-THE APPOINTED STAUNCHER OF HUMAN VEINS.

From an Address delivered before the Literar Societies of Wake Porest College, June 100 1857, by Rev. Wm. Hooper, L. L. D.

It is the glory of christianity that has stamped an infinite upon every human being, and thus throws its heavenly ægis around every human life. It has taught us that the true nobility of man consists, not in the artificial and achis possession of a sour, capable of il-meetine, a material reduction in the price consequently, a bottle is worth 2,723,812 him and left him suspended. He died of the leading articles of food may be made, and still leave to the producer a fair return for his labor and capital, to demand more than which is neither just nor wise. Resolved. That in order to bring the prices of provisions to a fair standard, we pledge ourselves not to pay more than the annexed prices for the following articles, viz:-Butter, per pound, 25 cts ; beef, do. do, 12, veal, do. do., 10; pork, do. do., 10; mutton, do. do., 8; potatoes, per bushel, 60 -and in case of refusal on the part of the dealers to sell at the a bove rates, we do hereby pledge ourselves to each other and to the community not to purchase the above named articles for the thir: y days next

Resolved, That a committee of the citizens te appointed to, take the necessary measures in procuring provisions in large quantities direct from the country, to be sold at cost prices to the consumer, to report at an adjourned meeting. Resolved, That we call upon the authorities to strictly enforce the existing ordin ances relative to hucksters and skinners, and the citizens be urged to purchase their aupples direct from the farmer and the butcher.

All the resolutions were adopted except the third, which was opposed by several persons on the ground that it was impossible to regulate prices. Rev. Mr. Torrence advocated it, and declared that if necessafor a month. The resolution was finally said referred to a committee of ten to report at an adjourned meeting. A PROCLAMATION
