Let Plymouth people and the public know what is going on in Plymouth. THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1891.

THE Assembly Standard is the name of about January the first with J. T. Pettiford as editor. We wish the new enterprise enccess.

House is being discussed by the press and public throughout the United States. Crisp Mills, Springer, McMillan or who? These are a few of the candidates for that office. will not be very long, it seems before the Shall it be a Northern man or a Southern man is asked. We do not believe the South is as anxious for the Speakership as it is for an honest Speaker. Let the next Speaker be honest and patriotic whether he comes from North or South.

Tms is the closing week of the Southern Exposition at Kaleigh. During the past sixty days our capital city has been the scene of much pleasure and the central point of attraction and great interest has been manifested by North and South, and we are sure that much good has been accomplished by what will soon go down to history as the famous Southern Inter-State Exposition By this Exposition the South has shown to the world her many natural advantages of production, and what wealth she has and By it the North and South has been drawn into eleser relation and the friendship of the two sections has been increased.

To-DAY is Thankagiving and the people of these United States have been requested by their Chief officers to meet at their ac... custom places of worship and render teanks unto God for the many blessings he has bestowed during the past year. We as free American citizens have just cause to be thankful. We are, of all nations, the most favored and on this day it is our duty to Business of every kind should be suspended for it We knew from experience that and the day spent in prayer and thank giv.

Remember the orphans, the poor and all suffering humanity around you, and while rejoleting over your own blessings strive to make them happy by your charity.

the re-election of Col. L. L. Polk for the third term as President of the National

The complement is one to North Carolina and to the Affiance of the State as well as to Col. Polk personally.

This honor to Cot Polk carries with it great responsibilities and enlarged opporcunity for usefulness. The year 1892 is the crucial yers of the Farmers' Abiance, and in that year it will either meet its Waterloo of defeat or its Austerlia of victory.

With the prestige of an election for a third term Col Polk will naturally have an influential voice in determining the course of the order The policy agreed upon will determine the future of the order. If it re. mains true to its original platform and seeks in "a strictly non-partisan spirit" to secure needed reforms, lends its great influence to promote the Welfare of the millions of toliers, it will go forward upon an era of class 1, 50; of class 2, 241; of class 3, 83, great prosperity and u culness. But if it shall efficially or unefficially attach itself to out this year is $22,000 against $37,000. the mongrel concern which socialists and malcoutents in the West have organized under the misnomer of the People's party. its career will soon end and the hope of the people in it as an agency to help them will be destroyed. C.I. Polk has an open door of usefulness such as no other Southern man has had in a century. If he consistently opposes partynction by the Alliance, seeks to make the organization true to its principles, he will make a name for his self that will be worthy of the grateful remembrance of the Southern people long after he is dead. Every pat lotic man will devoutly trust that this vince you as to price and work. wisdom may be vonebsaved him, and that under his administration during 1892 the Alliance will grow in numbers and in influence.
