The Republican county convention met last Thursday at Skippersville, but adjourned without making any nominations. They will wait until after the State convention meets and then what Mr. Eves says will be law and gospel.

At a Democratic meeting in Goldsboro on the 27th, ult., Mr. D. M. Hardy, who attended the Third party convention, and who put Dr. Exum in nomination for Governor, came out and acknowledged his mistake and promised to return to the Democratic fold and do good work for the party.

Dr. Exum, the Third party nominee for Governor was in the wrong crowd when he remarked that he preferred negro government to the present system of government. A newspaper man was in hearing and at once "pressed the button." The "Governor" tried to stop the editor by offering a bribe of 20,000 subscribers if the paper would come over to the Third party, but this only makes things worse, as Democratic editors are not for sale.

Organizations are a power in this land of ours, and two years ago the farmers of the South and laboring men throughout the Union were fully organized. Under the organization of the Farmers' Alliance the Southern farmers were on the high road to a great victory. In many ways they had the victory in their own hands, and but for the fact that a few took charge of the many, that organization would have brought to the country such legislation as is really claimed and needed. These few leaders demanded great things from the old parties which, by their deeds the Republicans refused to heed. These men thought that the Democratic party ought to give them their demands, or some of them at least. They never considered that the Democratic party was out of power. True we had a Democratic House, but the bills passed by it were killed by the Republican Senate or vetoed by the Republican President.

The men who made those demands know that the Democratic party would give many of them if it had the power. Many of them know the position held by the Democratic party and are yet willing to hold with that party, but others are ignorant of the truth, while others still know all and are only leading another way for selfish purposes.

A large number of people, out with the two old parties, met at Omaha and formed a new party and that party set up as its leader a man whose record is blacker than Harrison's or Reed's or any other South leader.

Do the men who caused the birth of this new party ask the Southern white people to support such a man as this J. B. Weaver? His political record while in Congress shows a direct opposition to the people of the Southern States. His war record is enough to make Southern white men flee from the party he represents.

This man Weaver has been condemned by the press, but the press can be disputed, but when charges are made that can be proven in black and white; when men give facts that cannot be denied, there can be no disputing. We want every man who has a leaning toward this Weaver party to read an article in this issue entitled "Weaver at Pulaski, Tenn."

We would not force one of these Third party men against his convictions, but we ask that they well consider what they are doing. They, perhaps, have considered the object of their new party, but truly they have not considered the character of the man who leads their ticket.

If the new party would elevate the down-trodden masses it should place its banner in the hands of a man whose character and deeds are pure, and not in the hands of a man, who for the consideration of a few dollars, sold the freedom of the Southern white men.

The time for disputing and getting mad is past; the white men of this State and this country have a question to decide which must be decided sensibly.

THE FARMERS' FRIEND.
 News and Observer.

Cleveland deserves to be held in high esteem by the farmers. He has ever shown himself to be a sympathizer with them, and he has worked for their advantage. He has fought their battles and been faithful to their interests. They have never had a better friend. We make a quotation from his message to Congress in 1886. These are his words:

"Our farmers and agriculturists—those who from the soil produce the things consumed by all—are perhaps the more directly and plainly concerned than any other of our citizens in a just and careful system of Federal taxation. Those actively engaged in and more remotely connected with this kind of work number nearly one-half of our population.

None labor harder or more continuously than they. No enactments limit their hours of toil, and no interposition of the Government enhances to any great extent the value of their products.

And yet for many of the necessities and comforts of which the most scrupulous economy enables them to bring into their homes, and for their implements of husbandry, they are obliged to pay a price largely increased by an unnatural profit which, by the action of the Government, is given to the more favored manufacturer."

These words of his however fall unheeded on the ears of the Republican Senators who were bound to render service to the protected manufacturing interest which had furnished "the fat" in their campaigns. Again in a message of 1888, President Cleveland said:

"Our farmers, long suffering and patient, struggling in the race of life with the hardest and most unremitting toil, will not fail to be, in spite of misrepresentations and insidious falterings, that they are obliged to accept such prices for their products as are fixed in foreign markets where they compete with the farmers of the world; that their lands are declining in value while their debts increase, and that without compensating favor they are forced by the action of the Government to pay, for the benefit of others, such enhanced prices for the things they need that the scanty returns of their labor fail to furnish their support or leave no margin for accumulation."

Mark these words, uttered by a man whose honesty of sentiment no one doubts. "Our farmers, long suffering and patient, struggling in the race of life with the hardest and most unremitting toil."

limited by usage. Ten hours is a day's work in some lines of industry, and eight hours is the limit that other men are allowed by law to labor. No man working under contract can do any work in which the government is interested after the eight hour. Then it is against the law for him to strike a lick.

Other men have laws made to keep their wages up. The tariff must not be lowered because they say it permits the wages of certain workmen to be kept at high prices. But how is it with the farmer's boys?

Ah, says the honest, the wise, the patriotic Cleveland, "No enactments limit their hours of toil, and no interposition of the government enhances to any great extent the value of their products." He pleads for the farmer; he pleads for the farmer's children; he pleads for the farm hand. Will there not be found in the hearts of every farmer and of every farm hand a responsive echo to these sympathetic words of his? Will there not come welling up in the bosom of every farmer who reads these lines a feeling that here is a man who is our friend and who deserves confidence and our regard. Let not the farmers of North Carolina be ungrateful.

FARMERS BE ON GUARD.

Hon. S. B. Alexander was the first President of the State Alliance. He is now a representative in Congress. As an ex-President of the alliance and a member of Congress, he has had ample opportunities to learn the best means of advancing the interests of the farmers. We believe that Mr. Alexander has carefully considered this subject, and that he is faithful to the interest of the alliance when he counsels all farmers to vote for the democratic nominees. Hon. Elias Carr was the second President of State alliance. Col. Carr is a farmer, and is practically identified with the interest of the farmers. Having been the representative head of the alliance, and with large experience acquired on his farm, we believe that he is competent to advise the farmers what is best for their interests. His counsel is to vote for the democratic nominees. Mr. Marion Butler is the third president of the State alliance. The first we heard of Mr. Butler he was a member of the State Senate. We do not understand that he was ever a farmer. His closest connection and knowledge of farming is probably due to his being the official head of the alliance. On the 14th of July Mr. Butler advised the farmers of this State to vote for the democratic State ticket. Now he advises them to vote for the third party State ticket.

This change on the part of Mr. Butler was almost sudden. It was on the eve of the election of his successor. It was made for the purpose of becoming his own successor. It shows that an influence controlled the alliance that did not control it when Alexander and Carr were presidents; that did not control it several months ago; that did not control it on the 14th of July, because Mr. Butler was not aware of it. What is this new influence, and where did it come from? Its spell is potent with many officials of the alliance, but it appears powerless to influence those who are not officers—the rank and file of the alliance. These will vote the democratic ticket. There is something rotten in Denmark. Let the farmers be on their guard.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

One hundred years ago the Capital of your State was founded upon the order of a Sovereign Convention of the people. The city thus called into existence by your will, in the quiet shades of a beautiful forest of oaks, in the County of Wake, has grown with your growth, nourished by the best blood of the Commonwealth, and is to-day the representative of your heroic past and brilliant future.

The history of Raleigh is your own history in an especial sense. Every county has contributed to its population, and sent hither some leader of the people in legislative assemblies, or some one of the noble spirits that have honored the judicial bench or the executive chair.

The ashes of many of Carolina's sons, distinguished in peace or war, rest here. Ties of kindred and friendship unite every county of your broad domain with this city. Its very streets and public squares are your own property. Here your laws are made, proclaimed, interpreted and executed. Here are many of your great institutions of State, and here are preserved the records which will be the grandest legacy of your posterity. To celebrate the Centennial of Raleigh, it is commemorated the deeds of the great statesmen, jurists, educators and soldiers that each section of the State has sent hither for the common welfare of all.

They have left an impress upon this community forever. They have made Raleigh in moulding the spirit of its people.

Accepting the bidding of modern enterprise, without forgetting the glorious traditions of the former days, we are rejoiced that with new life and strength, your Capital is growing daily in material progress. In churches and schools, in societies and workshops, in facilities for trade, in multiplied institutions, the improvements of modern life, and the comfort and beauty of her homes.

Therefore, celebrating with grateful hearts, the completion of her first century, the undersigned committee of her citizens cordially invite all North Carolinians, from every town and county, to assemble on the 18th, 19th and 20th days of October next, and unite with the people of Raleigh in the commemoration of the Centennial of their home and your capital.

During that week the Raleigh Centennial, at the State Fair, the laying of the cornerstone of the monument to the Confederate Dead of North Carolina, a magnificent pyrotechnic display, and a festival recalling colonial days, will take place for your interest and enjoyment.

We repeat, then, the cordial invitation to the people of North Carolina, and to those of Carolina ancestry or associations, wherever they may be, to come up as one man and with one heart. The citizens of Raleigh will bid you welcome.

[The above was signed by Theo. Badger, President, and H. E. Litchford, Secretary, followed by the names of fifty-eight citizens on the Board of Managers.—Ed.]
