

Men of Oak

Timbers of oak keep the old homestead standing through the years. It pays to use the right stuff.

"Men of oak" are men in rugged health, men whose bodies are made of the soundest materials.

Childhood is the time to lay the foundation for a sturdy constitution that will last for years.

Scott's Emulsion is the right stuff.

The Landing-Woodard Marriage.

ROPER, N. C., April 27, 1904.—Special. The Church of Advent, of this place was the scene of a pretty marriage at eight o'clock this evening, when Mr. Louis Sparkman Landing, one of Plymouth's substantial business men, took to wife Miss Gertrude, the charming and popular daughter of Mrs. Harriet E. Woodard of Roper.

The church was tastefully decorated with white and green, and was filled to overflowing with the many friends of the happy couple. As the lovely bride approached the altar leaning upon the arm of brother, Mr. Harry Downing Woodard, of Norfolk, Va., who gave her away, the church was filled with the rich melody of Mendelssohn's wedding march; and the groom with his best man, coming from the vestry room and joining her there, when, standing under an exquisite floral marriage bell, lighted from within by a large electric bulb, the Reverend Luther Eboru, with gentle impressiveness, said the sweetly solemn marriage service which made the union one. During the service "Oh promise me," was softly rendered, and as the procession turned to leave the altar, the stately music of Lohengrin's wedding march pealed from the organ.

The bride was elegantly gowned in white silk, with lace ornaments, and wore a veil, caught with a spray of jewels, a family heirloom. She carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The bride's maids were all loveliness in white silk and lace. They carried pink carnations.

The attendants were; the pretty little Misses Lillie and Ethel Barco, twins, and cousins of the bride, Flower Girls; Miss May Smith, a sweet cherub, bore the marriage ring on a silver tray; Miss Eva Cheson was charming as Maid of Honor, and Mr. Robert Walker was best man.

The others were Miss Leslie Harrison with Mr. Warren Singleton; Miss Neva Cahoon with Mr. Milton Clagon; Miss Alice Cahoon with Mr. Edgar Sprull; Miss Emma Ashbee with Mr. Henry Jackson.

Mrs. Thos. W. Blount presided at the organ, and Messrs. Thos. W., and W. A. Blount were ushers.

The presents were numerous and very beautiful.

From the church the bridal party with intimate friends drove over to Plymouth, where at the home of the groom a reception was held and an elegant supper served.

The bride is the grand-daughter of the late Colonel H. A. Downing, of Lees Mills, and a lineal descendant of Captain William Downing, who was one of the first representatives of Tyrrell county in the colonial legislature in 1735, and was unanimously elected Speaker of the House. Her charming personality made her a host of friends in this place who wish her all the happiness possible in her new home.
