

Good Roads.

A Good Road Factor.

A striking article in a monthly magazine suggests the appearance of a new factor in the movement for better highways in the country. It describes the growth of interest in the automobile on the part of people who live in small towns or in the adjacent territory. It indicates a variety of ways in which machines of this character are now being used outside of the cities and gives photographic illustrations in support of its contention.

The attitude of the rural population toward the automobile is changing. At first there was some occasion for antagonism. Tourists from the cities with their rapidly moving conveyances frightened horses along the highways, caused many runaways and often hurried on their journey without offering assistance to the injured or paying for damage due to their carelessness. They left in their wake great clouds of dust and often made themselves obnoxious by their reckless driving. On some frequently traveled roads they aroused the indignation of the farmers to the highest pitch.

The sentiment now is changing. This is partly due to the growth of the industry with more experienced chauffeurs in charge of the machines and with more recognition of the rights of others by those who use the highways for pleasure rides. But it is also due to the increasing sales to the farmers and townspeople, who are finding the automobile an economical and useful vehicle in rural life. In the article mentioned the farmer's wife is shown taking produce to market in a runabout. The farmer himself carries his wheat to the mill in the same sort of conveyance. The real estate agent is able to show his prospective customer over farms at a distance from town much more easily and quickly than with a horse and buggy. The ranchman finds an automobile a time saving and distance eliminating factor in his work. The physician has his territory enlarged and his professional duties lightened by the same agency. The necessary trip to town, once tiresome and deferred as long as possible, is now made quickly in rain or shine.

This change in feeling resultant from the growing use of the automobile is bound to have its effect in the direction of better roads. When the first agitation started for highways along which owners of touring cars might take pleasure runs across the country many thought, "If the favored few want good roads let them pay for them." Now there is a local interest which is growing rapidly. If there are to be connecting highways between cities they must be built by local taxation and not by Government appropriation. The reasons of practical value to the farmer to encourage the construction of roads have been many. In some places they have been operative. In others the increased taxation demanded has proved the drawback, but it is true that the bridge and the ford and ferry have given place to the highway with its bridges as the machinery of travel has developed. It may be possible that the perfection of the automobile and its increasing use in the country will have a practical result in a marked strengthening of the good roads movement.—Chicago Tribune.

Working Highways.

In the towns where the public highways are worked under the money system, how many hours are required with a team for one day's work?—C. A. K. Answer—Under the labor system of working the highway, whereby persons and property are assessed not for so many dollars but so many days' labor, which, however, may be computed at the rate of a dollar a day, eight hours constitutes a day's work; but any person assessed more than one day must be allowed to work ten hours each day. Under the money system, each person or piece of property is assessed so many dollars, which must be paid. The commissioner of highways may, if he so desire, employ any person to work, and he may prescribe the number of hours and the amount to be paid therefor just the same as any other employer. He is supposed to use his money to the best advantage, and if one man does more work than another by working longer hours or otherwise, the commissioner can pay him more. You can readily see that under this method there is no regulation as to the number of hours; all depends on the commissioner's acting in good faith. It is possible that work on the highways may come under the eight-hour labor law.—Country Gentleman.

The Only Safe Way.

Don't sleep on your left side, for it causes too great a pressure on the heart.
Don't sleep on your right side, for it interferes with the respiration of that lung.
Don't sleep on your stomach, for that interferes with the respiration of both lungs and makes breathing difficult.
Don't sleep on your back, for this method of getting rest is bad for the nervous system.
Don't sleep sitting in a chair, for your body falls into an unnatural position and you cannot get the necessary relaxation.
Don't sleep standing up, for you may topple over and crack your skull.
Don't sleep.—Puck.

VISITOR MUST BE ENTERTAINING.

To be a well bred and considerate guest is more difficult than to be a successful hostess, for the latter takes the initiative, while the former must follow or conform. Failure to do this is inexcusable from a social point of view.

A guest's obligation begins with receiving an invitation, for the acceptance or refusal of it must be made immediately. Too often however, time in answering is allowed to drag, and the woman who has sent an invitation is often uneasy to know whether or not her friends are coming. A tardy refusal may throw out the entire success of the occasion, through the hostess' lack of time to substitute other persons for those who fall on the last day.

When the invitation is for a luncheon or dinner, and has been accepted, guests should time their arrival to five minutes before the hour appointed. To be too early is almost as bad as being tardy, for a hostess is rarely ready to receive until the hour mentioned, and to have some one waiting in the drawing room while she finishes dressing is awkward for both.—Rosalie Schuyler in the New York Telegram.

HARD TIMES INCREASE ADVERTISING.

An advertising solicitor in a Southern city was asked by a reporter for a local newspaper if he was not enthusiastic over the prospect for "good times" and a lively business season.

"No," said he; "I can't say that, so far as my business is concerned, I have any reason to congratulate myself because the outlook now is for exceptionally good times. The truth of the matter is I have found after an experience of twenty years that the harder times are the easier it is for me to secure advertising. There are scores of business men in my town who never think of inviting patronage until their business begins to drop below normal."

TO CLEAN LACE.

To restore lace, either black or white, when soiled, place it in milk for 12 or 18 hours. The milk becomes acid; the lace should then be gently washed in it and afterwards well rinsed in clean lukewarm water and laid out smooth upon a pillow in the sun.—Boston Post.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENTS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peru-na and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peru-na I am cured." Mr. C. N. Peterson, 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peru-na has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peru-na. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

THE COSTUMING OF A POET.

Gabriele d'Annunzio Has a Numerous and Varied Outfit of Clothes.

The wardrobe of Gabriele d'Annunzio shares with his new play, "The Ship," the attention of the Italian newspapers. A Roman reporter who got an opportunity to look over his stock of clothes reports that the poet owns 72 shirts, 144 pairs of colored socks, some of silk and some of thread; 48 pairs of street gloves and 24 pairs of white ones; 8 umbrellas, including several of violet hue; 20 dozen handkerchiefs, 150 scarfs and neckties, 10 house jackets and 6 pairs of slippers.

There were about a dozen hats of all shapes, evening dress coats, dinner coats, frock coats, waistcoats, fancy and plain. Trousers and shoes are described as innumerable. The purchase of new supplies is described as being a serious business on which the poet concentrates his artistic faculties, so that nothing may belong to him which is not worthy of him. He also gives up his whole soul in the process of dressing, so that his mind may be completely at liberty when it is over in the consciousness that no mistakes have been made through discord in colors or combinations of inharmonious forms.—New York Sun.

Walking Round the World.

Of late years quite a number of men have started to walk round the world, mainly with the object of winning a wager. M. Georges Grandin however, a French gentleman, who, having twice made a tour of the world on foot, is now about to begin a third journey, is actuated by quite a different motive. He is a man of property and means, and the sole object of his self-imposed and arduous task is the patriotic one of promoting the friendship of France among the various countries he visits. Not only does M. Grandin not bet or live on charity during his journeys but he makes considerable profits by selling on the way books and pamphlets recounting the interesting impressions of his tours, and out of these profits he has already given a considerable sum to a hospital in his own commune.

One of his experiences was of a particularly thrilling character. While passing through Abyssinia he was taken for an Italian spy, manacled and imprisoned for a month. During this time he was terrorized by his guards, but succeeded by a bribe in getting them to remove his chains. It was only after a march of three hundred miles through a desert, during which his guards threatened to shoot him if he tried to escape, that M. Grandin came across one of Menelek's officials, to whom he was able to explain his position, after which he was treated with every consideration and respect.—The B.M.

Cheerfulness is one of the great miracle workers of the world. It reinforces the whole man, doubles and trebles his power, and gives new meaning to his life. No man is a failure until he has lost his cheerfulness, his optimistic outlook. The man who carries a smiling face and keeps cheerful in the midst of discouragements, when things go wrong, when the way is dark and doubtful, is sure to win.

This woman says that after months of suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her as well as ever.

Maude E. Forgie, of Leesburg, Va., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from feminine ills so that I thought I could not live. I wrote you, and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and using the treatment you prescribed I felt like a new woman. I am now strong, and well as ever, and thank you for the good you have done me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?
