The Pulse of Life.

The Charlotte Dally Observer is made up-on the principle of making the best possible newspaper, regardless of cost, and then tak-ing chances on getting back the cost and something more for our efforts.

Whoever subscribes for the Observer is not laying out an expense account, but is making an investment. The news columns carry information that is worth money and so also do the advertising columns. The business man who will watch these columns will find many an opportunity to turn an honest dollar in trade and at the same time give the other fellow what he is looking for.

The newsgatherers of the company's publication are trained to get and print news of commercial value. New business opportunities, new enterprises, changes and developments in old enterprises where there is op-portunity for trade, are all carefully recorded. The Observer is invaluable for family reading. Everybody ought to have a clean newspaper. It is the equivalent of an education for those who cannot otherwise get

Her Native City.

The misapplication of words in ordinary conversation is one of the positive and peculiar traits of a large portion of the negro race, due in a measure to their desire to appear "eduacted" beyond their fellows. An example of this characteristic occurred recently at Birmingham, Ala., where a group of elaborately attired negroes were leisurely sauntering along the handsome streets of that bustling Southern city, showing the who resided in another part of the season. South. Discussing the varied attractions of Birmingham, a dusky beau remarked that "Miss Pearl Lucile was very much delighted with our town, on this her first visit." Prompt- bill ly, Pearl Lucile in all the bravery of a "star" guest, replied, "Of course, I am. I like this town so much I intend to make it my native city."-From the June Bohemian.

Opportunities are of no earthly good to the man too slow or behind the times to take advantage of them. The world is full of opportunities, but if they do not come floating around the enterprising man's way in rapid succession he'll get out and manufacture them.

MAKING SUNSHINE It Is Often Found in Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, most sickness comes from wrong food, and just so surely as that is the case, right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams.

"I had terrible night sweats and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time, and my wife saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it.

"I had no faith in it, but took it to please her. To my surprise it did not distress me, as all other food had done, and before I had taken the fifth package I was well on the mend. The pains left my head, my mind became clearer and I gained weight rapidly. "I went back to my work again and now after six weeks' use of the food I am better and stronger than ever before in my life. Grape-Nuts surely saved my life and made me a strong, hearty man, 15 pounds heavier than before I was taken sick.

NUMBER OF HENS IN A FLOCK.

The Subject Discussed From the Single Point of Utility.

By M. Ray Dawley.

There is considerable controversy over the subject of the size of the flock. In the Australian laying contest six hens are kept together. Some breeders even keep hens in individual pens. Laying aside the matter of breeding and considering only the utility points, we want to know what size a flock should be to make the most profit. Sometimes thirty hens will lay as many eggs as fifty hens in the same pen. The reason for this is that, with fifty in the flock they were too crowded. By reducing the number we better the conditions. Supposing a house eight by ten feet to be large enough for twenty hens, we give each hen the privilege of eighty square feet of floor space, while if the house were built sixteen by twenty feet, each hen would have 320 square feet to roam over, or four times the room. The latter house should be large enough for eighty hens. The former house would cost about $25 and the latter one some $80. That is to say, it costs $1.25 to house a hen in the small flocks, while in the large flocks $1 pays for the

So we have a double advantage for the hen by building the house large. Moreover, the sunlight and ventilation in the large house are better; hence, it is easier to keep dry and

A factor of as much importance as the above is the amount of labor required. In having only one water pan to fill, one place to feed, one place to gather eggs and one roost to clean, instead of four roosts, the work can be done in much less time, and therefore the profits are more and the cost of equipment less.

On the other hand, a large house cannot be drawn about like a colony house. It has to stay in one place. The hens have to come out on the same ground, and so find less green food and forage than the hens scattered about in small flocks. Diseases are very contagious, and so the risk is greater in the large house.

I have had splendid results keeping two hundred hens in one flock in a house sixteen by fifty feet with a yard 100 by 300 feet. Part of the yard is in sod and part is plowed and sights to a young woman of the party | sowed to oats or wheat twice each
