WAS IN A TERRIBLE FIX

A Georgia Woman Tells How She Felt Like She Was Being Killed-Cardui Helped Her.

Pelkam, Gal.-"I was in a terrible fix." writes Mrs. E. L. Bigham, of Pelham. Ga. "I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. I had such pains in my sides and would swell up so I could hardly stand it. I was irregular and could not do my work. My head ached all the time, so bad at times I felt like it would kill me. I also suffered with drawing pains in my legs and my back hurt and I was getting poorer every day, but Cardui got me up able to do my work and I feel better than I have for some time.

"I cannot praise Cardui strongly enough. I will recommend it to all my friends."

As a tonic, for weak women, we know of nothing equal to Cardui. It gives strength and ambition, brightens the eyes, clears the complexion, regulates the system and helps you back to a new youthfulness of looks and feeling.

Made from pure vegetable ingredients, it contains no powerful, mineral drugs, or deleterious compounds. Containing no glycerin, or similar material, it has no mawkish, disagreeable taste, and has no possible bad after-effect.

Absolutely harmless, it is good for young and old and should be in every family. Try it. Your druggist sells it.

Platinum, used extensively in electrical work, is only mined in California and Oregon in this country, the former supplying 85 percent of the American product.

According to a German scientist, the center of the earth is a core of iron or similar material, nearly 6,000 miles in diameter, separated from the outer stony crust, 1,000 miles thick, by a layer of some plastic material.

During the past year the General Electric Company has produced a new gas-electric car for short line railroad work. The new car is driven by electric motors from current supplied by a gas engine driven generator located in the forward part of the car. This single car takes the place of an entire steam train, including engine, tender, baggage and paseenger coach.

A suggestion has been made by those interested in the promotion of the monorall system to relieve the transportation problem of New York city by the erection of these lines on a structure to be thrown up over the present elevated structures. It is said that arrangements have been made to demonstrate their practicability by the construction and operation of one of these lines in a suburb near that city, and, if entirely successful, the Public Service Commission will be formally asked to give its consent to the scheme of making use of the present elevated struc-

Artificial nitrates are made extensively in Norway and sold in competition with the natural product of Chile. The annual production of nitrate of soda in Chile is 1,800,000 tons. In 1920 this may be expected to be increased to at least 2,500,000 tons. At the same time and at the same rate of preduction, the Norwegian production will amount to about 300,-000 tons, or only 12 percent of the Chilean. It is probable, however, that other factories may be established, which will largely increase the total production of artificial nitrates. From experiments made in various countries it may be concluded that artificial nitrate is as good a fertilizer as Chile saltpeter, and on some lands a better one.

INDIANS AS CHURCH MEMBERS. Deeply Religious, Once They Are Con-

vertedIndian Evangelists.

It has been only a few decades since the selfsame Indians who now are taking an active interest in the religious life of Oklahoma were terrorizing the Southwest with their deeds of cruelty. During the summer the annual Comanche revival is held west of Cache. Last year fifty converts were taken in through the influence of the campmeeting.

The Indian, when converted, is deeply religious, and enjoys, more than the average white man, the privilege of holding and attending religious meetings. His preference is for campmeetings, as this form more closely resembles the conventions held by the tribes before their conversion to Christianity. It is the custom for the Methodists and Baptists in particular to hold camp-meetings for the Indian tribes, among whom they have been

Remove Grease Spots.

As soon as the grease is spilled on the floor sop it up with a soft cloth, then lay blotting paper over the spot and iron with a warm flat-iron till the grease is absorbed by the paper. If the spot is very large it may take more than one piece of blotting paper to wholly absorb the grease .---Boston Post.

Olive Oil Hint.

As soon as a can or bottle of olive oil is opened put in two lumps of loaf sugar to the pint. Keep in as cool a place as possible. The sugar does not change the taste of the oil. I buy olive oil by the gallon, although my family is small. I always treat it in this way, and the last in the can is as delicious as the first .- New York World.

Stains in Cotton.

Peroxide will take out many stains in cotton and silk or even satin frocks, and is especially good for those that come in white satin sleeve linings from overheating exercise. As the lining in the smart coats comes only to the waist and is loose from the cloth, being attached lightly at the seams, a towel or other linen can be rolled up and pushed under the stained part when the liquid is applied .----New York Tribune.

Faded Linen Suit.

It is quite the fad (not to mention considerations of economy) to send a faded linen suit of last year to have it bleached to white, when it will look totally different from the way it did in the original shade. Cottons and linens can also be dyed very satisfactorily, and so can straw hats. Thus the provident girl can have effective changes in her wardrobe without much expense or trouble. The factories send home each garment properly pressed and looking like new, and only the hems need be ripped out before the garment is sent away .- New York Tribune.

When Furnishing a House.

Aim at elegant simplicity. Do not make the mistake of thinking simplicity means cheapness; it is usually a costly luxary, but one that pays.

Avoid litter, gimcracks and overcrowding. Learn to appreciate space as a part of the furnishing. Many women only regard it as something to be filled, no matter with what.

To hide the carpet with furniture, the walls with pictures, sofas and chairs with pillows and mantels and tables with ornaments, regardless of taste or suitability, is not furnishing a home; it is stocking a junk heap.

Apart from the inartisticness of the overloaded house, the discomforts of keeping it clear makes it anything but liveable. Why should a woman wish to pass her days dusting useless ornaments that detract rather than add to the beauty and wholesomeness of your home? Certain houses are furnished with a simplicity that is studied almost to the point of ostentatiousness and artificiality; but better that than vulgar crowding. What the average householder needs to learn is that a beautiful home consist of not how much you can put into a house, nor yet in how little, but in having an eye for propertion, unerring taste as to what is in keeping and the nerve to throw away your most precious possession if it disturbs the harmony of your house beautiful .- New Vork Press.

Humboldt refers to a gigantic baobab tree in central Africa as the oldest organic monument in the world. This tree had a trunk twenty-nine feet in diameter, and Adanson, by a series of careful measurements, demonstrated bank book. It was passed out, and conclusively that it had lived not less than 5150 years-and it lives today. But even Humboldt was wrong in his premise. It has recently been proved that there is a tree in the new world which, of a verity, has lived to "a green old age," for it antedates the scriptural flood about two thousand vears!

This is a cypress tree standing in the province of Chapultepec, Mexico, ed at the window, holding out a perwith a trunk 118 feet and 10 inches in circumference. This has been shown to be (as conclusively as these things can be shown) about 6260 years of age. A Contagious Idea.

Imitation may be a nuisance rather than a form of flattery. A writer in the Outlook tells of an incident in a bank which is as amusing as it is probable. The teller was asked by a woman for a new envelope for her the lady behind, noting that her own envelope was a trifle dingy, also asked for a fresh one.

The third woman said, "Me, too," or words to that effect, and so it went down the line. When the teller's patience and his stock of envelopes threatened to give out he determined to call a halt.

doing missionary work. The Kiowas and Comanches are especially favorable to these open-air gatherings and attend in great numbers each summer. The Catholics hold first place in doing missionary work among the Indians of the Sauthwest, with the Methodists and Baptists close together for second place, and the Presbyterians and Episcopalians in third position. Recent congressional action has given all these denominations the control and ownership of the church and school lands, which they have improved by the erection of buildings thereon. Each of these denominations has numerous schools and churches for the red men throughout the new state, and occasionally may be found buildings belonging to one of the many other denominations.

Edwin Miller, a faithful Delaware Indian, was recently ordained a minister of the Gospel, following an examination before the Baptist commission. Although but twenty years of age, he began immediately to serve in the capacity of a clergyman.

The Rev. Mr. Sarcoxie has been in the ministry for twenty years. He speaks English, but preaches in Delaware. Miller speaks both English and Delaware.

In the Rev. Henry L. Cloud, a fullblood Cherokee Indian evangelist, the Methodists have their most influential missionary among the Indian tribes of the new State. Young Lone Wolf, a Klowa chief, is a Baptist minister, as is also Chief Gotobo, the head man of the tribe. The former is a Carlisle graduate, and reads his Greek Testament every morning before breaking his fast. One of the latest ordained ministers among the Kiowas was Kicking Bird, a descendant of the old war chief of that name .- Kansas City Star.
