FOUGHT FORLIFE WITH FANATIC

A copy of an order issued in the Philippines, which calls the attention of the army to the gallant conduct of Private Jeremiah Cronin, of the Twenty-third Infantry, has just been sent throughout the army by the War Department. The order, officially, captioned "gallant conduct," tells what Cronin did, and this, according to officers on Governors Island, was one of the bravest acts in the history of the service.

Army men who have served in the Moro country in the Philippines are a unit in declaring that the hardest man to kill in the world is the Mohammedan fanatic among the Moros. Colonel Scott, Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, who brigade." was for several years in command of operations against the Moros, has said that the Moro bolo is the deadliest thing in the world in the hands of a

Jerry Cronin, according to the order issued in the Department of Mindanao and signed by Lieutenant F. S. Young, his battalion adjutant, did nothing more or less than fight with a stick of kindling wood a Moro armed with a bolo. This was in a district of Mindanao, where the Twenty-third Infantry was on duty.

The Moro's weapon, the order states, was "a heavy, keen edged working bolo."

The order says that Private Harry Smith, of the Twenty-third, "while walking unarmed, about seventy-five yards in the rear of his barracks at 6.40 a. m.," was surprised and asback of Smith's head, then he struck him on the left arm. The force of this blow threw Smith to the ground in token of victory. with such force that his shoulder was dislocated. Thus he was absolutely at the mercy of the Moro.

At this point Cronin comes into the affair. Cronin happened to leave the barracks and, hearing Smith's cry, hurrled to the rescue. Cronin had no arms of any kind, but he knew he had no time to lose if Smith's life was to be saved. Seizing a stick of kindground Cronin started for the Moro. Smith's struggles with another blow of his bolo when Cronin rushed upon claws into the upon part of his body.

Then began the strange single comthe struggle was heard in the barsoldiers was sent to aid Cronin.

The rescuing soldiers were unable to fire at first without danger of hittake up a certain position, adding range, at the same time covering him- it off home. He did it, and the soldiers began firing. Half a dozen steel capped body before he gave up fighting and fell to the ground, dead.

The order in which the story of Jerry Cronin is told closes by stating that his "coolness and presence of mind and his fearless attack with only a diub on a desperate well armed and reflect credit not only upon himself, but upon his company and regiment as well."

In passing it may be added that "Jerry" is on the way home with his regiment now .-- New York Times.

HANDLING A TIGER.

"In a cage near the room in which lived while in Khiva," says Mr. Langdon Warner in the Century Magazine, "was a tiger from the Oxus swamps. He had taken a dislike to me, and every time I passed his cage he got up and paced angrily toward he, snarling.

"Into the cage of this beast, at the command of the prince, a Turcoman stepped, armed with a short stick as big round as his wrist. With this stick he struck the tiger's nose as he made for him, and then, with the slowly up to the shrinking beast and comp'ny. stoked his face and flank.

HIS "BOYS."

There are times when the so-called red tape" of the army gives way under the stress of circumstances. At the Battle of Chickamauga, General Willich, who was commanding a brigade, incurred the displeasure of General Rosecrans, the commanding general, by some very slight omission. General Willich was sent for, and informed by the general commanding that he must consider himself under arrest for the present.

"General," said Rosecrans, sternly, consider yourself under arrest, and leave your sword here until your case is tried."

"Yes, general, I will consider myself under arrest," was the reply, and shust so zoon as dis fight's over I'll come and fix him up." "But, sir," said the astounded Rosecrans, "I want you to consider

"Of course I do," responded Willich promptly, "and so zoon as I get off dis fight, I'll be up and settle him." "But, sir," expostulated the commanding general, "I can't let you go yourself under arrest now."

"He can't do it; they don't know him. Me they know; I teach them. I fight them, and none of the boys would know how to fight or what to do, only when I go with them. My boys belong to me; yes, me, General Willich. I command the brigade, and I must fight the brigade!"

General Rosecrans gave it up. General Willich was requested to return and "fight his boys," which he did most successfully. And that was the end of the matter.

Making Flour of Cotton Seed.

Flour from cotton seed meal as an edible is said to be no longer in the theoretic stage. For a number of years cotton seed crushers have been claiming that cotton is a grain crop as well as a fibre and that from he seed an edible flour may be obtained.

If flour in any quantity could be produced from cotton seed, the price of wheat flour would be reduced materially, and anything is a boon which contributes to reduce the cost of living.

From Tennessee comes the announcement that this cotton seed flour has appeared. A prominent oil mill man said last week:

"James J. Hill and other econo mists have stated that the United States can no longer class herself as a wheat exporting country and withness, and that all in a very few years Americans must gone feeling in my look elsewhere for a portion of their stomach. I had food supply. food supply.

"Those who believe in the South as the future salvation of the nation say that the chances are that neither Mr. Hill nor others who have given the food question much thought have counted upon the possibility of new life had been the untounched source—the cotton a recommending it field of the South."

In heralding to the world this new product, the Ennis, Tenn., Daily News says: "Cotton seed flour is a commercial fact and Ennis stands sponsor for the announcement. It has arrived and it has come to stay. It is not only a good, a healthful, delicious and nutricious food, but it is a patriotie one.

50 Per Cent Better

"I have used less than one bottle of Cardui," writes Mrs. Gertrude Ward, of Rushville, Neb., "and am feeling fifty per cent better than when I began taking it.

"Before taking Cardui, I had suffered with female trouble, for eight years. My greatest trouble was irregularity. I also suffered with severe pains, every month, but now I am greatly improved and will recommend Cardui to all my suffering friends."

The Woman's Tonic

The rare medicinal herbs of Cardui are imported by the manufacturers direct from Europe and are not to be found in any other medicine.

These ingredients are what give Cardui its superiority, as a female medicine and tonic, over any other medicine. For over 50 years Cardui has been the favorite woman's medicine. The ladies like it, because it is so easy to take, so gentle, so safe, so reliable in its results, and they have faith in its curative tonic powers, because of the thousands of other ladies it has helped.
