Carload of Aeroplanes.

Cincinnati, O., Special.—The first shipment of aeroplanes via the Southern Railway from the West and what is believed to be the first freight movement of this character in the South will be the exhibit from the Wright Brothers' factory at Dayton, O., which will be an attractive feature of the Appalachian Exposition to be held at Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 12 to Oct. 12.

The machines to be displayed at Knoxville by the Wright Brothers will move from this city to Knoxville over the lines of the C. N. O. and T. P. and the Southern Railway and while Southern traffic officials are not expecting a steady movement of aeroplanes in the immediate future they are taking pleasure in the fact that they will handle this car.

The Knoxville exposition will have the distinction of being one of the first to have a comprehensive display of air riding craft.

Chinese Business Honesty.

With due respect for others the Chinaman is perhaps the most honorable and upright business man in the world today. His business principles are founded entirely upon honesty, and he adheres to his policy with the insistence of a leech. The chase after dollars stops if he has to resort to a low trick to get them. Of course, a little thing like telling a falsehood occasionally does not bother him so much; but when it comes to plotting and scheming to defraud some one the task becomes distasteful. The equal of the Japanese in initiative and insight, he is much their superior when integrity is concerned. A Japanese does not think twice before deciding to get the best of you. He calculates that you are liable to change your mind or get out of reach if he indulges in a little mental debate as to the propriety of cheating you.—The Bookkeeper.

Poultry in the South.

Looking upon the beautiful fields of Dixie land to-day and carrying the memory back to the hard times of the sixties, it is wonderful to note the great changes that have taken place over this lovely land of ours. Then it was when the ambitious Sheridan encouraged by the persistent Grant laid waste to the filled barns and garnered along the banks of the murmuring Shenandoah. Watching upon the hill tops groups of women and children could be seen looking at the last supply of food go up into smoke. It was then we looked upon a poor and bleeding South, existing only from the crumbs that were left from the once loaded tables of the pleasure loving Southerner's home. How our hearts would heave and swell as we looked at the tired and weary trooper slowly winding his way toward his once happy home, now all in ruins, wife and children almost starving, one or more of its dear inmates passed into the mystic beyond, and every hope in vain.

A half century has passed into eternity and a new world has opened in this sunny land, a new energy springing up among its people far more and better things. Therefore it is my desire to impress upon my readers that they should not lose sight of the great possibilities of the poultry industry in this great country, where the climate and soil are ideal for its success. A business that stands out as one of the great industries of our country.

The Southerner who wishes to gain the top round in the poultry industry in the South to-day, must put forward every effort and carefully consider the promoting of the following—Breed better birds, organize and maintain larger and better shows. If this is carefully followed the writer firmly believes that the South could be made to lead the world with poultry.

While we find many fine birds in the South, the greater majority of our poultrymen content themselves with inferior stock. This should be discouraged as it does not bring the desired results and it costs just as much to feed and care for such birds as it does the best. The cost may be a little more to start, but the results will be greater in the end, as the call to-day is for more and better birds.

One of the most important features of the fancy poultry business and one that has helped to push the work to its present field can be attributed to the poultry shows of our land. They have been the means of bringing about many sales of fowls at wonderfully large figures, and they will continue to help advance the poultry interests, if conducted along the proper lines. Every interested breeder should be connected with one or more local organizations and encourage it every year by extending any support that it may need. The show will help to open up more markets for your products and assure you of better success, as every large poultry section has its shows largely attended each year.

In conclusion, every good Southerner interested in poultry should be up and doing, in this pleasant and profitable work and make the sunny Dixie land the leading poultry section.—National Poultry Journal.

Plans to Utilize the Idle Lands.

Idle lands, like idle people, are seldom benefited by their idleness. At least, it is certain that land may be improved faster by growing some useful crop every year than by lying idle part, or all of the time. Moreover, we have thousands of acres that, because of insufficient drainage or lack of fertility, are not yielding profitable crops, and thousands of other acres yielding absolutely nothing. These lands represent an investment and must pay taxes, therefore by yielding nothing they consume some of the profits of the cultivated land.

This land should bring its owner some revenue. That which will yield a fair profit in the growth of timber should be given sufficient attention and protection from fires to enable us to profit on our investment. There are thousands of acres of fertile land that have been turned out and allowed to grow up to brush and weeds that with a little attention could be made to produce good profits in the growth of grasses for pasture or hay. These lands are along the creeks and rivers and have not paid in cultivated crops because of overflows or lack of drainage. They would, however, produce good grass and save us from buying forage or from sending to the North for hay. Let us plan to utilize them. We need the forage or grazing which they will produce.

Again there are large areas of uplands that have been turned out because of soil depletion. These lands

CALOMEL SPURS

That a good dose of calomel is as good for a sick tree as for a sick man is the curious doctrine worked out by William Morrison, station agent at Lincoln, Del., who claims practical results to prove his assertion.

Morrison has a large plain tree in front of his house, which is supposed to be about twenty-five years old. For years the tree has borne but few plums, never over one or two quarts. A faithful believer in calomel for the would yield a handsome profit on their value and the expense of putting them in condition for grazing cattle and other live stock. Not only is this so, but in a few years if the brush and briars are kept down they will be in condition to again yield profitable cultivated crops.—National Poultry Journal.

Alfalfa.

Mrs. R. S. C., Corkville, Ga.—I have planted a patch of about one-half acre in alfalfa, and want to know if I must pasture it any the first year, or how many times I must mow it, and at what time. If I am successful with it this year, hope to plant five or six acres of fine river bottoms another year. Any information as to the cultivation of this plant will be highly appreciated.

Answer—You certainly should not pasture your alfalfa the first year—if ever. It is a plant that does not stand pasturing the "best in the world," and it will yield a great deal more if cut and fed, or made into hay, than if pastured. It should be cut as soon as it commences to bloom and as often as that stage is reached in succession. The soil for alfalfa should be very rich and clean of weed seeds. Lime is an important constituent of the soil, and if not a strong lime soil it should have a dressing of five to ten buckets or more of air-slaked lime per acre every two or three years. In February of each year it is advisable to apply 600 to 800 pounds of 10-4 acid and potash per acre and run over the surface crosswise and diagonally two or three times with a cutaway harrow, followed, if convenient, by a smoothing harrow. This tends to destroy weeds and grass and splits the crowns of many of the plants, increasing their vigor. Weeds are the great pest of an alfalfa field, and dodder ("love-vine") is bad also. In buying seed one should be careful to get such as are guaranteed to contain no seeds of dodder.—R. J. Redding, in Atlanta Constitution.

The Tick Problem.

The tick problem has deterred many in the past undertaking to introduce improved sires, because most of them have to be bought north of the quarantine line. We would, by all means, advocate tick eradication, though in some instances the farmers are not ready to take up this important phase of the work. The next best thing is to immunize the susceptible animals against tick fever before they are taken to the farms. This can readily be done, and statistics show that where the work is properly done between eight and nine per cent. of the cattle so treated are affected when ticks get on them, whereas more than fifty per cent. of them will be killed by the ticks if this precaution is not taken. Through the department of veterinary medicine the State College of Agriculture is in a position to render this service to the people of the State and the only charge will be the feed bill during the time the treatment is given.

What is true in regard to cattle breeding would be equally applicable to horse breeding. As stated above, the college is in a position to render all assistance necessary in organizing clubs, purchasing the sires and establishing this work in any section of the State where a desire for this assistance is expressed. We have already started work of similar character in many places, and are anxious to prosecute it as rapidly as possible and get these breeders' clubs organized in every section of the State for all classes of live stock.—Milton P. Jarnagin, University of Georgia, in Atlanta Constitution.

It Pays to Caponize.

A capon bears the same relation to a rooster as a steer to a bull, and as bull meat is not equal to steer meat, so are roosters not equal to capons. When cockerels become capons they cease to grow combs and wattles, do not crow and fight, grow much faster and finer flesh and bring more money than ordinary chickens. If a cock weighs ten pounds, a capon will weigh fifteen, and bring three to four times the price, $125 often being paid for 100 capons. It certainly pays to caponize surplus cockerels. A set of tools, with full instructions for using, costs $2.50 and only ordinary skill is required. For caponizing, cockerels must be less than six weeks old and weigh a pound or more.

Exercise For Chicks.

Exercise is absolutely necessary with brooder chicks, or else bowel trouble and cases of indigestion will surely result. Use plenty of short, clean litter, in which scatter dry bread crumbs, millet seed, cracked wheat and very fine cracked corn.—Farmers' Home Journal.

IDLE TREES.

ills of men, Morrison determined to try his favorite remedy on the tree, and last fall bored a hole in the tree and into this hole inserted a spoonful of the medicine, and then plugged the hole up tight.

The result has been wonderful. For the tree, that hardly bore enough plums to give it a name, has several hundred quarts of fruit now ripening on its limbs.

Morrison will begin a regular treatment for the decaying tree.

GOOD ROADS

From the Pulpit.

The unique manner in which a portion of a Missouri county obtained good roads will be of especial interest in Georgia, with sentiment for that issue at floodtide.

It is not often that the aid of the pulpit is invoked in the cause of highway improvement, but that agency has set Jefferson Township, in Nowdaway County, to unusual activity, according to the Kansas City Star.

For several years Rev. Father F. P. Pleid, pastor of the Catholic church at the Benedictine monastery, near Conception, Mo., preached to his people that the building of good roads constituted not only a civic, but a Christian duty.

He pointed out in a series of sermons that had or impassable thoroughfares caused farmers to stay at home on Sundays, which militated strongly against the uniform observance of their religious duties.

He did not, however, confine his efforts to oral argument. And this is how our contemporary describes the manner in which the monastery with which he was affiliated set the nearby farmers a practical object lesson:

"The monastery owns a section of fine land and several fine draft horses. The fathers did not purpose to have their horses struggle along bad roads every time they desired to drive to town or to market in the rainy season, or just after a rain in any season. The fathers began by grading the road from the monastery, Old Conception, to Conception, a distance of three miles. Then they chained two pieces of railroad iron together, and after a rain they dragged the road several times. That was several years ago. They have kept it up consistently ever since. The result is a road as smooth as a boulevard. There have been heavy rains in that section for a week; the creeks and branches are out of their banks and it is not possible for a horse to wade through the mud in some sections of that county or township. It is different with the three miles of road leading from the monastery to Conception. The week's rain, the heaviest of the year, has had little effect on the road, and it is possible for a team of horses pulling a loaded wagon to trot along this superior thoroughfare."

Such initiative on part of the monastery had its logical effect upon the landowners of the surrounding territory.

The roads are now dragged on an average of ten times a year, at a trifling expense after the first operation. The deadly rut has disappeared and from year's end to year's end the highways are passable to heavy loads hauled by one or two mules. The farmers view the movement as one of the best investments in their experience and the fever has spread to other sections of the county.

Substantially, the interest of the clergy of Georgia in good roads is equal to that of the clergy of Missouri. Already many preachers of various denominations in this State have spoken a good word for the crusade that has so wonderfully inspired the industry of all classes of Georgians. Persistent agitation in this direction would not only exert a salutary influence on religious phases of community life; it would, as well, be reflected in commercial and industrial aspects.

And the preachers are citizens as well as preachers.—Atlanta Constitution.

Cost of Neglect.

It costs for transporting wheat by steamer from New York to Liverpool, 2100 miles, one-sixth less per bushel than it costs the farmer to haul his wheat 9.4 miles. These facts and figures show the vast importance of road improvement and justify the Government of the United States in experimenting with a view to improving the roads of the country and stimulating the interest of farmers in the work.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

State Control Favored.

State control of highway building, the making of surveys, establishing grades and maintaining a uniform system of roads; the power to enforce the building of highways in certain localities, and the authority to actually build them where the whole State would be equally benefited, are among the twentieth century requirements of State governments in the movement for good roads.—Kansas City Star.

Automobiles Gave Stimulus.

The automobile is an established fact, and it must be treated as a fact and provision made for it. It has given the present great impulse to road improvement in the United States, and this is a debt that the farmer, the chief enemy of the automobile, owes to it.—Baltimore Sun.

Savages and Talking Machines.

Bishop Stinger, whose field is far up in the ice fields of the Yukon, has many Indians in his diocese, and while entertaining them with a lecture had a talking machine as a part of the lecture equipment. This interested the aborigines mightily, and one chief, after listening to it in silence for awhile, marched up, placed his hand on the horn and in guttural notes said: "Ugh! Cananed man!"—Boston Record.

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

What Happened.

Willie had tried by various means to interest his father in conversation.

"Can't you see I'm trying to read?" said the exasperated parent.

"Now, don't bother me." Willie was silent for almost a minute. Then, reflectively:

"Awful accident in the Subway today."

Father looked up with interest.

"What's that?" he asked. "An accident in the Subway?"

"Yes," replied Willie, edging toward the door. "A woman had her eye on a seat and a man sat down on it."

Epidemic of Itch in Welsh Village.

"In Dowlais, South Wales, about fifteen years ago, families were stricken wholesale by a disease known as the Itch. Believe me, it is the most terrible disease of its kind that I know of, as it itches all through your body and makes your life an inferno. Sleep is out of the question and you feel as if a million mosquitoes were attacking you at the same time. I knew a dozen families that were so affected.

"The doctors did their best, but their remedies were of no avail whatever. Then the families tried a druggist who was noted far and wide for his remarkable cures. People came to him from all parts of the country for treatment, but his medicine made matters still worse; as a last resort they were advised by a friend to use the Cuticura Remedies. I am glad to tell you that after a few days' treatment with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, the effect was wonderful and the result was a perfect cure in all cases.

"I may add that my three brothers, three sisters, myself and all our families have been users of the Cuticura Remedies for fifteen years. Thomas Hugh, 1650 West Huron St., Chicago, Ill., June 29, 1909."

College-Bred Farmers.

That the boy who wants to learn to dig a ditch, harness a horse, use a plow or milk a cow would go in vain to the colleges of agriculture in the country. Dick Crosby, of Washington, D. C., a specialist in agricultural education, told the department of rural and agricultural education of the National Education Association recently. There are 300 more secondary schools and colleges teaching agriculture than there were 18 months ago, he said, but they teach theory only.

Prof. G. F. Warren, of Cornell University, expressed the opinion that the farmer without an agricultural education was headed for the poor house. He quoted figures to show that ten college bred farmers averaged $847 yearly income, against an average of only $318 for the farmers whose education had been limited to the district school. Most of the teachers used to say, he said, that any fool could farm. Now they say agriculture is too difficult for high schools.

Industrial education does not mean educational revolution, declared Arthur R. Dean, of the New York state education department, addressing the department of manufacturing. "A portion of agriculture and industrial practice can be expressed in mathematical form." He told the department that employers must permit boys and girls to attend school for the sake of the preservation of American citizenship.
